Spectacular 209 Crash Claims Lives of 2 Men

By RAY W. TYSON

Two men were killed instantly early this morning on Route 209, Town of Napanoch, when two cars collided on the bridge at the intersection of Route 55, police report.

Dead are William Dever of Kerhonkson and William Miles of Ellenville. Troopers said Dever was the driver of one of the vehicles, but that they could not determine who operated the second auto. Two passengers in the second car suffered severe facial lacerations and possible concussions, troopers added.

Rushed to Kingston Hospital were Tyrone Franklin and Robert Kirk, both of Ellenville. State Police said the accident occurred around 2:35 a. m.

According to Ellenville State Police, the vehicle carrying the three men was traveling south, approached the bridge, struck a guard rail and catapulted over the bridge's edge onto the top of Dever's sedan, which was traveling north.

Coroner Arthur Chipp pronounced Dever and Miles dead at the scene.

Highland State Troopers disclosed this morning that a 25-year old man suffered minor facial cuts following an accident on New Prospect Road, Town of Shawangunk.

Injured was Anthony Congelosi Jr. of Swan Lake. Troopers said he was traveling north along the road when he lost control and hit a guard rail.

Across the State, the Thanksgiving Holiday toll climbed steadily. Highway accidents have claimed at least 16 lives since the holiday began at 6 p. m. Wednesday.

In addition, two persons have perished in fires and six other types of mishaps. However, the toll this year is considerably below last year's carnage. At this time a year ago, 39 persons were reported killed. The period ends at midnight Sunday.

Around the nation, deaths mounted today as millions of Americans flocked to urban centers on Christmas shopping expeditions while others continued their Thanksgiving weekend visits. Early this morning the highway toll was 324, The Associated Press said.

The toll though continued to lag below last year's pace that led to 748 deaths during the 102-hour Thanksgiving holiday, a record for any holiday period.

Damp, wet, and wintry weather have made driving hazardous in most areas of the country. Rain-slicked roads along the Atlantic and Pacific states, while snow hit the north-central region, the Ohio Valley and portions of the Mississippi Valley. More snow fell in the Rockies, the northern plains and the Great Lakes area.

Clerk, Council Acts Face Mayor's Probe

By HUGH REYNOLDS

Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan is planning a personal investigation into the activity of the city clerk's office and the common council in the wake of widespread confusion over a space study for city hall passed Tuesday night.

"I don't know who's to blame for all this Garraghan told The Freeman in an exclusive interview, 'but something's wrong. I intend to find out just where this confusion originates, whether it's in the clerk's office or out of these council committees. It's getting so what's recommended, what's approved and what comes across my desk are three entirely different things.'

"Another thing," Garraghan said, "I didn't take this job to sit around my office waiting for the council to act on my proposals. My recommendation for a pay increase for the mayor sat in committee for six months. I want legislation moved one way or the other. If the council and I disagree on some particular measure I want to know why and we'll work it out if possible. This business of legislation lying in limbo has got to cease, and fast."

Actually, Garraghan said after his initial burst, "I doubt if it's Bud Lyle's (Thomas R. Lyle, city clerk) fault. He doesn't propose legislation and doesn't make decisions on it. It must be those wheelers and dealers in the council."

though it does mention a new city hall.

That resolution, a copy of which the Freeman has, apparently does not meet with the approval of every alderman, John Machione (R-12th Ward), in particular, Machione, in fact, emphasized on the floor of the council that he was not necessarily voting for a city hall downtown, in fact, was voting for a dual study. The first would entail a study of the present city hall and the possibilities of rehabilitating it. If this proved unfeasible then a study of a new city hall would be undertaken.

Machione says if the city needs a new city hall he is in favor of it but that his vote for planning of such in no way commits him to a city hall downtown.

The third party in this triangle, Designs for Business, one David Livingston, vice president, was interviewed by The Freeman. Livingston said the contract agreed upon a dual study, the old hall and the new one.

Mayor Garraghan took the council to task, calling for mass resignations, when they failed to approve an Epstein-sponsored resolution to buy 2½ acres of urban renewal land Downtown for $20,000. Garraghan contends Designs for Business must know where the city is going to build a new hall in order to design it.

Livingston's views do not support those of the mayor. Livingston says his company isn't concerned where the city builds a city hall, it will have little or no effect on the space study.

The mayor apparently feels the council approved his dream of a city hall downtown and is proceeding to solidify his plans. Part of these is the setting up of the Ulster County Civil Defense center in the proposed hall.

In fact, the mayor has scheduled a meeting next Thursday at 3 p. m. with state and county civil defense officials. Included will be Peter Savago, chairman of the Ulster County Board of Supervisors, Charles Penny (R-Shawangunk), chairman of the board of supervisors Civil Defense Committee, Major H. Edgar Timmerman, director of New York State Civil Defense and his deputy director, Charles L. Arnold.

Some of the personalities whose names will be appearing in the paper and heard on the news broadcasts in the months to come:

LAWRENCE A. QUILTY, insurance man, a Republican, who would very much like to run for the State Assembly if Ken Wilson should not seek reelection. It is possible that Wilson may want to run again, but he has his pension now and he just might want to retire.

Quilty, the father of 13 children, has been involved in many worthwhile fund drives and community affairs, most recently the Santorosi Memorial Scholarship fund drive. He was recently a co-manager for Judge Raymond J. Mino's successful bid for reelection.

COLONEL FRANK W. HARKIN of Kerhonkson, a Republican, who recently defeated George M. Barthel to become supervisor of the Town of Wawarsing, may be going for the county sheriff's office. If he does, he will stand a good chance of winning because Democrat Bill Martin just did not put himself on the line for Democratic candidates in the recent election. Harkin was mentioned for the post in 1965, but William A. Krum was chosen to make the run. Harkin's big win in Wawarsing may be just the boost he needs.

MELVIN MONES, Kingston pharmacist, who racked up a big victory on the Republican-Conservative line in the race for county legislator. Young, energetic, and a college graduate, Mones must be considered one of the bright lights in the Republican organization. He may be a man to vote against the party-liners if he thinks it will serve the people (and voters). He will be slated for bigger things.

FRANK COSTELLO, Town of Saugerties Democratic chairman, who led his party to a big and surprising victory in electing two of the five Democratic legislators and a town supervisor. Costello works quietly and, in doing so, was able to bring together Saugerties warring Democratic factions, attracting considerable independent support with dissident Republican assistance. A native of Glasco, employed as a salesman by Colony Liquor Distributors of Kingston, he has done a good job in his brief tenure as Saugerties chairman.

JOHN PARETE, Democratic county treasurer, a stockbroker at Wood Walker and Town of Olive Democratic Club president, is one of the glimmers of hope for the county Dems. His skill as a fund raiser should be an asset for the poverty stricken Democrats, and his organizational astuteness should prove highly valuable if his organization hopes to get off its feet.

PETER J. SAVAGO of New Paltz, Republican chairman of the Board of Supervisors, will, most likely, be the new chairman of the County Legislature. The margins that the New Paltz GOP turned out were astounding and Savago was behind it. Insurance man Savago also brought a new light into the ranks of the party and helped him win election as Town Supervisor—Anthony Moriello. Savago apparently realizes the value of inheritance.

T. ROBERT GALLO, Democratic alderman-at-large in Kingston, should build an impressive score in his new post if he can get the Democrats to work toward common goals. His talent contains a fair degree of temperament, but he should prove to be a popular political figure in Kingston for some time to come.

HAMILTON FISH JR. now looks like the potential nominee for the Republican bid to recapture the 28th District's congressional seat. He appears to be the only serious and well-financed contender for the crown, and, if Congressman Resnick doesn't run again, what with his threat to run in the senatorial primary if the Democratic party leaders don't want him, Fish will have more than an even chance against whomever the Dems put up.

Wide Range Cong Attacks

A New Loc Ninh Try Likely

SAIGON (AP) — Communist troops fired 25 to 30 mortar shells today at American positions in the Dak To sector, which had been quiet for 24 hours after the bloodiest battle of the Vietnam war. A field dispatch said there were some casualties.

American artillery responded with counter fire at suspected positions of the mortar crews, presumably detailed from five North Vietnamese regiments mauled in the three-week fight.

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong launched 19 separate mortar and flame thrower attacks today on South Vietnamese military posts, provincial, capitals and hamlets from north of Saigon to the fertile Mekong Delta south of the capital.

The government said its troops killed at least 110 of the raiders in one attack near Phuoc Binh, about 70 miles north of Saigon.

Leave 34 Dead
The Communist predawn attacks, most with mortars, left at least 34 persons dead—17 South Vietnamese soldiers and 17 civilians—and 140 wounded, including 92 military.

Fourteen mortar shelling came in the delta, which the Viet Cong controls, in an apparent effort to show the government cannot provide adequate protection for the people.

U.S. troops operating north of Saigon also had a brief encounter today with an unknown sized Communist force. A company from the U.S. 25th Infantry Division on a sweep operation 36 miles northwest of Saigon came under heavy small arms, automatic weapons and grenade fire. The 15-minute firefight left two U.S. infantrymen dead and 23 wounded. Communist casualties were not known.

In the attack near Phuoc Binh, the Communists fought men from the same South Vietnamese battalion that killed 143 Viet Cong in the same area Oct. 27. The earlier attack appeared to be a diversionary assault before the Reds' massive but unsuccessful drive to overrun the district headquarters town of Loc Ninh, 30 miles to the west near the Cambodian border.

Lost 918 Earlier
Despite the earlier defeats at Loc Ninh, where the Reds lost reported 918 killed in one week early this month, and later at Dak To, U.S. officers expressed belief that the enemy high command aims to press a dry season offensive in the jungles north of Saigon.

Near Phuoc Binh today South Vietnamese headquarters said an estimated battalion of guerrilla troops—perhaps 400 men—made three assaults on the perimeter of a company of government troops outnumbered by two-to-one. Each time they were repulsed with the aid of artillery and air strikes, a spokesman said.

Most of the Viet Cong dead were strung just outside the government perimeter. Some enemy soldiers managed to breach the perimeter but were quickly gunned down before they could get to the last line of defense. Government casualties were six killed and 40 wounded.

The South Vietnamese said they captured 39 weapons including five antiaircraft machine guns, two flame throwers, and 22 Chinese Communist AK47 assault rifles.

There were also these moves toward peace:

—The Security Council threw its support behind an appeal from Secretary General U. Thant for "greatest moderation" and his recommendation that Greece and Turkey eliminate a pact which permits Greek and Turkish troop contingents on the island.

—Manlio Brosio, secretary-general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, arrived in Athens after Greeks and Turks agreed to accept his good offices as NATO members. "An armed conflict among allies would be disastrous and unthinkable to me," Brosio said.

—Jose Rolz-Bennett, a special U.N. representative, met with Greek leaders after trying to calm officials in Turkey.

Russia urged peace, but a commentator in the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda accused "NATO agents" on Cyprus of "artificially whipping up animosity."

Center of Stress
Cyprus, about 40 miles off the Turkish coast and 500 miles from the Greek mainland, has been a center of stress for the two nations for centuries. The island's 600,000 inhabitants are predominantly Greek Orthodox, but Turkey claims the territory as historically its own.

The fear of open fighting, calmed somewhat since a crisis in 1964 and the establishment of a U.N. peace keeping force, rose quickly after a clash Nov. 15 in which 25 Turkish-Cypriots were killed.

Turkey charged that Greece was augmenting the 12,000 troops it reportedly has on the island and threatened to land its own forces unless they were withdrawn.

The threat, backed up by Turkey's superior strategic position and greater military might, triggered troop movements in both countries and the possibility of imminent fighting.

500 Yanks Flown Out
Turkey has demanded, besides removal of any Greek troops in excess of treaty provisions, the return of arms seized from Turkish Cypriots after the Nov. 15 fighting and payment of compensation for those killed and for property damaged.

The tenuous situation caused the State Department to fly out 500 American women and children to Beirut Friday in chartered airliners. Most of the group were dependents of U.S.

Cyprus Invasion Fears Ease, Peacemakers Work Feverishly

NICOSIA (AP) — American-made Turkish jets screamed over Cyprus again today, but fears of an imminent invasion worked on four fronts to head off a clash between the U.S.-equipped armies of Greece and Turkey.

U.S. presidential envoy Cyrus Vance carried to Ankara what a Greek foreign ministry source described as compromise proposals, and met for two hours with Turkish Foreign Minister Isihan Sabri Caglayangil.

The plan Vance outlined reportedly called for withdrawal of Greek and Turkish troops from the island and guarantees for the safety of the Turkish Cypriot minority. The proposal seemed a substantial Greek concession in the face of a superior Turkish fighting force.

A Turkish spokesman said the council of ministers would discuss the plan before a meeting later in the day of the nation's war planning group, the National Security Council.

The new overflights by Turkish RF-84F jets today came shortly after the council voted unanimously to ask both Greece and Turkey to pull back from "the brink of war" and refrain from acts likely to aggravate the situation.

Three bomb blasts, called the "work of Turkish saboteurs" by police, rocked Greek commuties without causing damage or injury.

There were also these moves toward peace:

—The Security Council threw its support behind an appeal from Secretary General U. Thant for "greatest moderation" and his recommendation that Greece and Turkey eliminate a pact which permits Greek and Turkish troop contingents on the island.

Orange Hunting Tragedy

Arrow Kills Cornwall Youth

Seventeen-year old Christian Cayas of Popular Street, Cornwall, was killed Friday when a friend fired an arrow into his chest from 30 yards, Newburgh State Police disclosed today.

The victim was reportedly hunting with three friends in an open field near Orr Mills Road, Town of Cornwall, when the tragedy occurred.

a 14-year-old boy has been charged with juvenile delinquency and manslaughter second in the Cayas youth's death. Troopers refused to reveal the boy's name, but noted that he is presently in the custody of his parents.

Two other youngsters, Richard Tennery, 16, of Cornwall, and another 14-year old were in the hunting party, troopers declared. The law forbids police from releasing the names of persons under 16 years in criminal matters, it was explained.

Not Intentional
Troopers stated that the Cayas youth was hit by the arrow in the upper chest from approximately 30 yards away.

They noted, however, that the accident was not intentional.

Asked why criminal charges had been preferred if there was no malice intended, police replied they were merely following orders and could not divulge any other pertinent data.

Death was instantaneous, troopers concluded.

Garraghan declined to name any "wheelers and dealers." Tuesday night the council approved $7,500 for a planning engineer from New York City. That much is clear, the city has hired Designs for Business Inc. of 609 5th Avenue and has agreed to pay them $7,500 but there seems to be some question as to what for.

The recommendation from the Mayor's Committee on a City Hall Downtown, chaired by Joseph Epstein (D-Sixth Ward) dealt with the possibility of building a new city hall in the Urban Renewal Area. The committee recommends the city hire Designs for Business for $7,500 to study a new city hall Downtown.

The resolution, passed 12-1 by the council, does not mention a city hall downtown although it does mention a new city hall.

NICOSIA (AP) — American

made Turkish jets screamed over Cyprus again today, but fears of an imminent invasion worked on four fronts to head off a clash between the U.S.-equipped armies of Greece and Turkey.

U.S. presidential envoy Cyrus Vance carried to Ankara what a Greek foreign ministry source described as compromise proposals, and met for two hours with Turkish Foreign Minister Ihsan Sabri Caglayangil.

The plan Vance outlined reportedly called for withdrawal of Greek and Turkish troops from the island and guarantees for the safety of the Turkish Cypriot minority. The proposal seemed a substantial Greek concession in the face of a superior Turkish fighting force.

A Turkish spokesman said the council of ministers would discuss the plan before a meeting later in the day of the nation's war planning group, the National Security Council.

The new overflights by Turkish RF-84F jets today came shortly after the council voted unanimously to ask both Greece and Turkey to pull back from "the brink of war" and refrain from acts likely to aggravate the situation.

Three bomb blasts, called the "work of Turkish saboteurs" by police, rocked Greek communities without causing damage or injury.

There were also these moves toward peace:

—The Security Council threw its support behind an appeal from Secretary General U Thant for "greatest moderation" and his recommendation that Greece and Turkey eliminate a pact which permits Greek and Turkish troop contingents on the island.

—Manlio Brosio, secretary-general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, arrived in Athens after Greeks and Turks agreed to accept his good offices as NATO members. "An armed conflict among allies would be disastrous and unthinkable to me," Brosio said.

—Jose Rolz-Bennett, a special U.N. representative, met with Greek leaders after trying to calm officials in Turkey.

Russia urged peace, but a commentator in the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda accused "NATO agents" on Cyprus of "artificially whipping up animosity."

Center of Stress

Cyprus, about 40 miles off the Turkish coast and 500 miles from the Greek mainland, has been a center of stress for the two nations for centuries. The island's 600,000 inhabitants are predominantly Greek Orthodox, but Turkey claims the territory as historically its own.

The fear of open fighting, calmed somewhat since a crisis in 1964 and the establishment of a U.N. peace keeping force, rose quickly after a clash Nov. 15 in which 25 Turkish-Cypriots were killed.

Turkey charged that Greece was augmenting the 12,000 troops it reportedly has on the island and threatened to land its own forces unless they were withdrawn.

500 Yanks Flown Out

Turkey has demanded, besides removal of any Greek troops in excess of treaty provisions, the return of arms seized from Turkish Cypriots after the Nov. 15 fighting and payment of compensation for those killed and for property damaged.

The tenuous situation caused the State Department to fly out 500 American women and children to Beirut Friday in chartered airliners. Most of the group were dependents of U.S.

Orange Hunting Tragedy

Arrow Kills Cornwall Youth

Seventeen-year old Christian Cayas of Popular Street, Cornwall, was killed Friday when a friend fired an arrow into his chest from 30 yards, Newburgh State Police disclosed today.

The victim was reportedly hunting with three friends in an open field near Orr Mills Road, Town of Cornwall, when the tragedy occurred.

Police said this morning that a 14-year-old boy has been charged with juvenile delinquency and manslaughter second in the Cayas youth's death. Troopers refused to reveal the boy's name, but noted that he is presently in the custody of his parents.

Two other youngsters, Richard Tenney, 16, of Cornwall, and another 14-year old were

Not Intentional

Troopers stated that the Cayas youth was hit by the arrow in the upper chest from approximately 30 yards away.

They noted, however, that the accident was not intentional.

Asked why criminal charges had been preferred if there was no malice intended, police replied they were merely following orders and could not divulge any other pertinent data.

Death was instantaneous, troopers concluded.

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

"... Oh thou of little faith, Wherefore didst thou doubt?" St. Matthew 14:31

The newest visual expression of faith in our nation's capital is the Bible History Wax Museum.

It is presented by Historic Figures Inc. which also runs the excellent National Historical Wax Museum. It stems from the suggestions of visitors to the historical museum. In it are 16 life-size scenes from the Bible beginning with the temptation of Adam and Eve and ending with the crucifixion and resurrection. Dedicated artists and craftsmen have given a moving and profound spiritual beauty to each of the eternal stories.

Standing in the darkened hallway viewing each tableau, one becomes part of the scene and its message of faith. Each has intense realism, and one leaves the Museum with a feeling of reverence and the realization of having had a moving spiritual experience.

Ouija Takes Over Spiritual Realm

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Ouija boards, those wooden slabs decorated with mystical signs and letters and used to seek answers from the spirit world, are becoming common items in American households.

This is seen by a Washington, D.C., analyst of religious affairs as an indication that church institutions are failing to deal sufficiently with human concern about supernatural realities.

Fair Street Speaker Named

DR. DAVID GAISE

The Rev. Dr. David C. Gaise, pastor of Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, will be guest speaker at the Institute of Christian Living adult program at the Fair Street Reformed Church this Sunday night.

The program will begin at 7 o'clock, with a pantomime of worship, telling the story of Ruth, enacted by members of the junior high youth fellowship. The adults will then go into a separate session to consider the topic, A Lutheran Looks At The Reformed Church. Dr. Gaise will review Lutheran-Reformed relations since the time of Luther and Zwingli, and Calvin, bringing the analysis up to the 20th century.

In October of 1529 Luther, representing his Tradition, and Zwingli, representing the reformed tradition met in a castle in Marburg, Germany, to consider the similarities and differences in their doctrines. While agreeing on all points save the sacrament of holy communion, the disagreement on this one point led them into their separate ways. Annual consultations from 1962 through 1966 between the Lutheran World Federation and the North American Area of the World Alliance of Reformed Churches holding Presbyterian Order have proved fruitful in re-opening discussions.

Members of the Lutheran Church have been invited to join their pastor. The program is open to the public.

South Rondout Methodist, First Street, Connelly, the Rev. James P. Veatch, pastor—

"Most of the churches in their presentation nowadays tend to ignore or downgrade the supernatural and mysterious," said Kenneth H. Wood, a Seventh-day Adventist minister and editor of the denomination's Review and Herald.

"This has left people wide open for all kinds of deviations to fill the vacuum," he added, "He assembled details on the matter for his church's publication."

Pitfalls for Faith He said in an interview that spiritualism—attempts to make contact with the dead—has "been growing stronger all the time," involving pitfalls for the Christian faith.

He cited various evidence, including increased attention to seances, the growing interest in psychic phenomenon, the preoccupation of some clergymen with such activity, in addition to the ouija board boom.

Although the board is mostly a home pastime, often taken lightly, he said it has become the top seller among games, the spirit-dealing board surpassing the money-dealing game, Monopoly, for the first time in 32 years.

Ouija board sales were expected to exceed two million in 1967, he said, adding, "Americans are tremendously interested in the occult."

Ship 'Other World' However, he said that many churches, in their current emphasis on secular involvement and service, have increasingly skipped teachings about the other-worldly sacred realm, leaving a need in the human conscience.

To fill the gap, more and more people have turned to non-Biblical substitutes, he said. He cited Leviticus 19:31 as a warning against such activity. It says: "Do not turn to mediums or wizards; do not seek them out, to be defiled by them: I am the Lord your God."

In other areas, however, numerous clergymen recently have encouraged research into psychic phenomena—telepathy, clairvoyance, telekinesis—and related fields of intangible processes.

A national organization, Spiritual Frontiers Fellowship, including many clergymen and lay Christians, was formed several years ago to promote such work.

Layman to Be Speaker Sunday

S. SAM FRATONI

The guest speaker at the Reformed Church of the Comforter on Sunday, will be one of its laymen, S. Sam Fratoni. Fratoni has been a member of the Church of the Comforter for the past 12 years, having moved here from Endicott. During that time he has served on the board of elders and has been youth advisor for nine years, still holding that position.

This topic for Sunday will be, The Power We Need—unleashing the Christian's great unrealized potential.

He is currently the co-chairman of Christian education for the Kingston Area Council of Churches and vice president of the Ulster County Community Chest. He is employed at IBM as manager of manufacturing education, and resides at 12 Florence Street with his wife and four children.

Hassle Growing Over Girls at Notre Dame

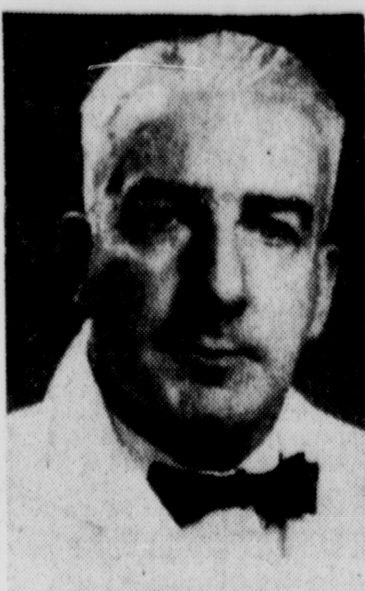

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Controversy over a possible merger of the University of Notre Dame and St. Mary's College has grown with the naming of a new president for the women's college.

The Rev. John J. McGrath, professor of law at Catholic University of America in Washington, was named president of the college Friday to replace Sister Mary Grace, But she said, "I have not resigned."

A release by Mother M. Olivette, superior of the Sisters of the Holy Cross who operate the college, said Father McGrath will become president Jan. 1 and Sister Mary Grace "has been invited to begin a special study of women in emerging Catholic universities of Latin America."

Neither the mother superior nor President Theodore M. Hesburgh of Notre Dame could be reached for comment on a merger.

Sister Mary Grace said the appointment is "collaboration" with Notre Dame. She said she and many members of the St. Mary's faculty are "opposed to a merger—a total merger or even a merger of academic departments."

Student Pilot, Man Found Dead

LONDON, Ohio (AP)—A student pilot from Pittsford, N.Y., near Rochester, and a man from Batavia, Ohio, were found dead Thursday in the wreckage of a small plane near London, about 25 miles west of Columbus.

They were identified as John Rockledge of Pittsford, and Wendell Stout, about 23, of Batavia, Ohio, the pilot of the plane.

The red and white Piper Cherokee had been reported missing after it left Columbus Wednesday for Cincinnati. Stout had left Rochester on Wednesday, the Civil Air Patrol said.

Authorities said the plane smashed a fence and landed in a cornfield.

Eight Injured As Ceiling Drops At N.Y. Store

NEW YORK (AP) — Eight persons—including four sales clerks—were injured Friday when a 25-by-30 foot block of ceiling plaster crashed to the floor in a lower Manhattan discount store.

About 35 patrons and employees were at the rear of the Century Store on Cortland Street, when the plaster fell, bringing lighting fixtures with it. All eight persons trapped momentarily under the debris, were taken to Beckman-Downtown Hospital.

One woman was admitted — Mrs. Mildred Forth, 54, of Maspeth, Queens. Early today her condition was described as fair.

Among the seven persons treated and released was Anne Pasquini, 23, of Union City, N.J. Fire officials said an investigation was being made of the accident.

Miss Forth lives at 60-36 59th St., Miss Pasquini at 380 Mountain Rd.

Firemen Enter Crucial Week

Kingston firemen move into what they consider a crucial week in their negotiations with the city for higher pay, Monday.

A spokesman for Local 461 of the United Fire Fighters Association told The Freeman today that there has been some misunderstanding by the public about the differences between police and fire department contract requests. The fire fighters have asked for more money than the police, who settled for a $350 across the board increase, because the firemen say their department (fire) works approximately 96 hours more a year on a regular basis, than the police.

Two meetings are set Monday night at 7:30. The mayor's Public Employees Relations Board will meet at city hall special meeting at Central Station.

U.S. Women to Viet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three prominent women have left for South Vietnam to spend a week inspecting U.S.-Vietnamese civilian programs in education, social welfare, refugees and other fields.

They are accompanying Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker on the flight to Saigon. Bunker has been in Washington to review the war's progress with President Johnson and other administration officials.

The women are Ambassador Eugenie M. Anderson, alternate U.S. representative at the United Nations General Assembly; Anna Lord Strauss, former president of the League of Women Voters and former U.S. delegate to the U.N., and Mrs. Norman Chandler, a vice president of the Los Angeles Times and wife of the newspaper's publisher.

C-H Dividend

The Board of Directors of Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation, at the monthly meeting held at the company's South Road Office, Poughkeepsie Friday declared a dividend of $1.08 1/2 per share on its 4.35 per cent cumulative preferred stock; $1.12 1/2 per share on the company's 4 1/2 per cent cumulative preferred stock; $1.18 1/2 per share on its 4.75 per cent cumulative preferred stock and $1.24 per share on its 4.96 per cent cumulative preferred stock. Each of these dividends will be payable Jan. 2, 1968 to holders of record Dec. 8.

Defense Denies European Censorship of AFN Radio

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department denies a charge by an official of the Armed Forces Network in Europe that it imposed news control on the network.

William Slater, managing editor of AFN, told a press luncheon in Frankfurt, Germany, on Oct. 26 that his editors were hampered in reporting some news concerning U.S. troops in Europe because they had to first get clearance from military authorities.

The Pentagon's denial dealt with four cases it said were cited by Slater. These were an alleged scandal in the European Exchange Service, the stabbing of a lieutenant, a reported reduction of U.S. troop strength in Europe and restrictions on local opinion interviews conducted by AFN.

The Pentagon said Friday that as for the alleged scandal, "no attempt was made to censor the story," but did say there "was some delay in issuance of information." The Pentagon said the story was carried in other news media, including the Stars and Stripes.

The stabbing incident, details of which were not disclosed, involved a woman who feared she had gotten to turn off her kitchen stove.

Officials said Mrs. Lewis Fauth, a Syracuse resident on a visit here, telephoned the Rochester Fire Communications Center to report her fears.

The information was relayed by radio to the Syracuse Fire Department via the Northeast Air Warning Service and a truck was dispatched to the Fauth home.

Minutes later, word was radioed back that the stove had been left on but that a burned pan was the only damage.

$9,450 Jewel Heist

CANANDAIGUA, N.Y. (AP) — About 200 rings valued at a total of as much as $9,450 were stolen today from a jewelry store in this city southeast of Rochester, police said.

The display window of Brenner's Jewelry Store was smashed before dawn and the rings scooped up, they said.

The store is at 137 South Main St.

river, but the Democrats, if they choose him, will really have to push him over here—he just isn't known.

ANOTHER NAME mentioned as a Democrat-in-contention is Horace Graham, former Mayor of Poughkeepsie. Graham lost the state senatorial race to J. P. Rolison in 1966 however, and he was mayor about 20 years ago. He simply does not appear as a winner.

WHAT IS interesting to note is that John Barry, recently mentioned as a GOP possible for the congressional post, was Ham Fish's campaign manager in 1966, when Fish ran against Resnick.

Some people are wondering whether Barry might just be a stalking horse for the Fish nomination.

Neal Brandow of Greene County supported "Sam" Aldrich in the now-famous primary battle of '66 and it is felt that Brandow, GOP chairman up there, does not look upon a Fish candidacy without jaded eyes.

There may also be a good deal of friction between Senator Rolison and Fish.

With all the obstacles, however, Fish has a lot of grass roots support and he has been campaigning ever since his '66 loss.

Turkey Day Tea Party Weed Is Fatal

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A poisonous weed used in a home-made brew served at a Thanksgiving day tea party killed one man and hospitalized two others.

Tests showed today that a tree tobacco containing a high amount of nicotine was to blame. It is a weed common to Southern California.

Dr. Bonnie C. Templeton, curator of botany at the Los Angeles County Museum of Natural History, and Leonid Enari, senior botanist at the county arboretum in Arcadia, analyzed the brew.

They said their findings corresponded with a coroner's autopsy on the body of Jack J. Garner, 33.

Soviet Claims 4 Defectors Against Talks

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet foreign ministry told the U.S. embassy today that the four American sailors who left their ship in Japan and came here to protest the Vietnam war do not want to meet an embassy representative.

On instructions from Washington, the embassy asked the foreign ministry Wednesday to arrange a meeting with the four. But today's reply left the embassy no further line of action to reach the defectors.

The young sailors also do not want to meet Western newsmen, Soviet spokesmen said.

They are Richard D. Bailey, 19, of Jacksonville, Fla.; John Michael Barilla, 20, of Catonsville, Md.; Craig W. Anderson, 20, of San Jose, Calif., and Michael A. Lindner, 19, of Mount Pocono, Pa.

They last appeared in Moscow on Wednesday and it was not known whether they were still here. The four said they came here on their way to a neutral country where they could work against the U.S. war effort in Vietnam.

Library Books

The following popular fiction and non-fiction books were received this week at Kingston Library:

Fiction
Dayan, Y., Death Had Two Sons. A deeply moving novel by the daughter of General Moshe Dayan.

Farris, J., When Michael Calls. An unusually eerie, haunting, uniquely different thriller.

Howard, C., The Arm. A tense novel about the seething Chicago underworld today.

Lewis, R., Michel, Michel. A profoundly conceived and richly executed novel about the battle for possession of a child.

Marshall, C., Christy. A powerfully moving love triangle set in the Great Smokies.

Non-Fiction
Baker, T., Coffee, Tea or Me. The uninhibited memoirs of two airline stewardesses.

Churchill, W., Young Statesman 1901-1914. The story of Churchill's life from his election to Parliament to World War I.

Morison, S., Old Bruin. The life of Commodore Matthew Calbraith Perry 1794-1858.

Launching Popular
WEST COVINA, Calif. (AP) — The most popular sport for boys in West Covina may be rocket launching.

They sent up more than 700 rockets in nine months. Some of the missiles reached speeds of 400 to 600 miles an hour.

The young scientists, 9 to 17 years old, are members of the West Covina Model Rocket Society. Under tutelage of a high school science teacher, James Hauk, the boys launch on Saturdays at Galster Park, using a solid-propellant engine supplied by the city recreation department.

Port Paralyzed
MONTREAL (AP) — The port of Montreal lay in a virtual state of paralysis today, and no remedy could be found to breathe life back into the normally bustling waterfront.

The large harbor came to a standstill Thursday night after a two-week dispute between the International Longshoremen's Association and the Shipping Federation of Canada over interpretation of a federal inquiry report which enforced new working conditions in St. Lawrence River ports.

Dorpan Man Killed
BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — John M. Brennan, 25, whose driver's license listed his home as Schenectady, N.Y., was killed early today when his motorcycle crashed into a sign post on Airline Highway.

Police said Brennan was believed to have been living in New Orleans.

Final blessing and absolution was given at St. Mary's Cemetery by Father Brennan. Bearers were Gerard E. Murphy, Christopher J. Farrell, Eugene M. Rovegno, Gordon C. Prister, Howard J. Weise and George Muller.

Chittenango's Assemblyman Dies

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Assemblyman Harold I. Tyler, R-Chittenango, is dead at 66.

Tyler, who died Thursday in a Syracuse hospital after a brief illness, had represented Madison County since 1952. He was vice chairman of the Committee on Banks and a member of the Rules Committee.

He operated, with his brother, a furniture-appliance store, funeral home and theater in Chittenango.

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Jewel Tyler; a brother, Dunham, and a son, William I. Tyler, all of Chittenango.

Funeral services will be Sunday.

Dies After Beating

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — William Kasper, 78, who was found beaten eight days ago, died today in Emergency Hospital without regaining consciousness.

Police said they did not know who had assaulted him. He was found lying in a yard several houses from his home on the city's eastside.

Kasper lived at 77 Grey St.

Gordon Smith Dies

(AP)—Gordon Smith, 66, who served on the broadcast news staff of The Associated Press for 21 years, died Friday at his home.

He wrote the daily feature "Today in History" and the "Featurescope," a popular item for broadcasters, before his retirement from the AP 18 months ago.

A native of Madison, Wis., Smith spent 18 years on the staff of the Milwaukee Sentinel before joining the AP in New York City in 1945.

Memorial

In loving memory of our father and husband Joseph A. Joyce, who passed away one year ago, November 26, 1966. God took him home it was His will.

But in our hearts we love him still. His memory is as dear today as in the hour he passed away. We often sit and think of him. When we are all alone. For memory is the only friend That one can call its own.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, NOVEMBER 25, 1967

Macdonald DeWitt

This community has lost a sincere friend and a fine humanitarian in the death of Macdonald DeWitt, whose long illness hasn't lessened the grief his demise brings.

Mr. DeWitt, who was regarded as one of the nation's ten best trial lawyers, was a native Kingstonian, where his family lived for seven generations. He was educated in the Kingston schools and graduated at Kingston Academy in 1896. Following his graduation from New York Law School, he was admitted to the Bar in 1901. He practiced law in New York City for more than 60 years specializing in libel litigation with notable success.

A successful lawyer, he attained eminence through his knowledge of the law and strict adherence to the code of ethics. His philosophy that newspapers should vigorously defend libel suits rather than endeavor to settle them is generally accepted as the wisest course. During his career, he at various times represented many New York newspapers.

Mr. DeWitt was a humanist and people were his greatest concern. His special interest in young people was evidenced in the establishment of the DeWitt Revolving Fund, Inc. and his gifts to the Ulster County Community College.

Long before state funds became available to assist students, he established a fund for the purpose of making loans to young men of Ulster County who needed financial assistance to complete their college education. Over $75,000 was loaned.

His initial grant of $100,000 toward the capital cost, contingent upon the voters of Ulster County authorizing a Community College at a referendum, undoubtedly was instrumental in that proposal being approved by the voters. The DeWitt Memorial Library at the college campus is a monument to his philanthropy.

A gentleman of the old school, he made a host of friends during his long and imposing career. Association with him was a rich and rewarding opportunity.

Dollar-for-Dollar Tax

In the wake of the British devaluation of the pound sterling, the United States is likely to impose increased taxes and to control public expenditures in a dollar-for-dollar package of increased taxes for a commitment for an equal amount of spending cuts.

That is in essence the decision President Johnson has made and Chairman Wilbur D. Mills of the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee has indicated he would accept.

The exact amounts involved may not be known until Tuesday, when Mills calls his committee to hear the Administration's proposals made by Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler and other fiscal officials. But the general outline has been fixed.

The stalemate between the President and the Chairman had held throughout almost a year of hearings and maneuvering. It looked as if there would be no tax surcharge imposed in the current session of Congress. Then the British devaluation struck. The whole picture changed overnight.

President Johnson called an extraordinary Cabinet meeting to say that the United States is being tested to keep its own economy on a strong course, to prevent inflation and tight money from wrecking our record prosperity. "The entire world looks to America. We are the bellwether. Our economic strength and the soundness of our dollar must never be doubted," he said.

Fowler at once called Mills and offered a new cut in spending for a tax increase. Mills, who had emphasized that he had deferred the surtax until a spending cut program was offered, called a closed committee meeting.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, certain now that a formula will be worked out to increase taxes and cut expenditures substantially, was ready to hold the Congress in session long enough to deal with the package.

London's crisis had moved America to defensive action. All branches of government were ready to defend the dollar against all eventualities.

The Senate sharply cut back federal Medicaid contributions by limiting such payments to families of four with $5,100 incomes instead of the previous $6,000 maximum and by making the federal contribution 25 per cent instead of 50 per cent. The cuts were necessary because the federal government's share the first year was four times the expected $248 million.

Overnight nuclear powered merchant ships could be made competitive simply by doing away with many design and operational safety requirements as they become unnecessary, eliminating surplus crew members and operational procedures. These recommendations of experts to the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers would give the advantage to nuclear-powered vessels.

If at First You Don't Succeed---

Henry J. Taylor Says

Great Society Creates Deadbeats

It astounds me to realize this is my 1,000th consecutive column. A thousand consecutive times since I came home from Europe in 1961 I have never missed a column, not once has it ever been late at its due-by-noon deadline, in the six years, and somehow there has never been a vacation. Beyond the research I work 12 to 14 hours or 15 hours on the actual word-by-word writing in each column. Meanwhile, the information has meant traveling a quarter-million miles.

The doctors say the work hasn't hurt me. But when I read an item about affluent Texas the other day it started me thinking.

Acting Regional Director Josephine Nieves of Sargent Shriver's Office of Economic Opportunity announced that Texas has received more Federal anti-poverty funds than even the State of New York since the OEO was founded in 1965.

In just New York City, in turn, during history's biggest boom, 742,955 people are today drawing relief, some for the second and third generation. The New York State figure exceeds a million.

Now, everybody needs some kind of help of one kind or another at some time or another. But who has to be told that when a government preaches something-for-nothing long enough it's sure to create a great many loafers who wouldn't do a day's real work if you hit them over the head with a cast-iron club? Is there a single employment agency in our country, or anybody trying to hire somebody, who doesn't see this?

Moreover, where's the morality in calling on working people to pay for the incredible — and always increasing — number who simply beat the game by doing nothing?

A few are inevitable. And, heaven knows, I'm not talking about hardship cases or people who are really deprived for any reason whatever. But, making political hay, the Johnsons, Kennedys, Shivers, et al. obviously stimulate the number of deadbeats.

In voices loud enough to break the windows and blow off the roof they blame all personal failure on "lack of opportunity," "underprivileged neighborhoods," "educational handicaps," and even "national undernourishment" or any other convenient alibi. They toss all insolence, self-indulgence and everything else back onto being the fault of "society"—which dismisses the individual from responsibility and lets every able-bodied deadbeat nicely off the hook.

What burns me up is that such political haymakers are gutting out the bone-structure of the nation and then expect to be thanked for it at the polls.

The Great Society's political pitch makes money a substitute for all other deeds—for hard work, for self-discipline, for talent, for nearly everything, including character.

The result can be the same as begging. It wastes the body and the spirit. It destroys self-respect, self-faith, self-development. And there is no security, individual or national, without these.

Abraham Lincoln, of course, is the classic denial of the alleged connection between being "underprivileged" and achievement. Out of date? Far more men who have reached the highest prominence in our country, such as Herbert Hoover, an Iowa orphan, had to struggle in life than those who did not. Work produces strength. This column once mentioned that before going to West Point and while deferring his own education to provide money for his brother Edgar's education, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower worked in an Abilene creamery 12 hours a night, seven nights a week. This hurt him? He does not think so.

In business life? An outstanding feature among America's industrial leaders is that most of them touched every rung on the ladder from the bottom up. Like our pioneers, they were not waiting for the breaks of good fortune. They made them.

No man is useful who thinks he is sick when he sweats. Where is the music composer, architect or builder of any kind in our country who shirked personal responsibility and self-discipline and did not sweat?

Freedom doesn't mean: "I do not have to work." Even the Bible warns that freedom is preserved only by work. The knowledge of its significance is as old as that, a writer on the day of this 1,000th column.

Romney Won't Quit Even If Beaten in New Hampshire

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)—As he streamlined his campaign outfit for what can only be called "Operation Way Up Hill," Michigan Gov. George Romney plans to keep up his quest for the 1968 Republican presidential nomination even if he loses the inaugural March 12 New Hampshire primary.

That resolve might be altered if Richard Nixon simply crushes him in New Hampshire, or if Romney's vote total there falls behind both Nixon and a write-in tally for Gov. Ronald Reagan of California.

But if Romney were to lose to Nixon narrowly, the present intent as to treat it as a moral victory, as an impressive upsurge nearly wiping out an original estimated 2-to-1 Nixon lead in the polls.

By Dec. 1, Romney should be getting preliminary findings from a costly new poll now being taken for him in New Hampshire. Almost certainly it will underscore the immensity of the task facing him as his newly consolidated organization to be based wholly in Washington, gets going the first week in December.

(At least for a time, a few key aides and consultants like Travis Cross and Walter DeVries will stay close to the governor in Lansing.)

Even as Romney contemplates the rough odds in New Hampshire, his curious brand of underdog optimism is leading him to dispatch a key organization aide to Wisconsin soon to shore up his frail organization there.

The consensus of professional judgments up to now has been that Nixon has far and away the best of the party hierarchy laying ground for him in the April 2 Wisconsin primary. But Romney is planning a heavy infusion of eager young blood in an attempt to mount an uphill fight on the already widely praised New Hampshire organizational pattern.

There is nothing defeatist about the governor's broader planning, either. In the two days leading up to his formal announcement of candidacy, youngish Romney organizers from nearly 20 states (including Alaska) met in Detroit to offer progress reports and plot strategy. Only eight states thus far have formal Romney committees but a big set up is promised for December.

He is getting quiet advice to cut his probable losses in the May 14 Nebraska primary (an all-candidate affair like Wisconsin and Oregon) by doing as little active campaigning there as possible. Top Nebraska Republicans are saying he would run a bad third to Nixon and Reagan. The advice is being carefully weighed.

A token effort or none at all in Nebraska would automatically reduce to three the maximum total of victories Romney could muster in the four most-advertised primaries. Consideration, therefore, is being given to still others, including the District of Columbia test on May 7 and South Dakota on June 4. But decision on these possible "backups" endeavors is months off.

The Detroit parley marked the first time Romney forces from a wide area have come together and was vaguely reminiscent of a more comprehensive meeting held by Barry Goldwater's state leaders in Chicago in mid-February of 1964.

Romney's New Hampshire campaign manager, William Johnson, and another key helper of that first primary, John Deardourff, were among those who sparked the Detroit conference with advice on how to put a state effort together.

With the governor's campaign financiers confident they have in sight the $1 million to $2 million needed for New Hampshire, Wisconsin, and other early '68 undertakings, his strategists are also looking beyond to the effort he must make should he win those first two primaries.

Drew Pearson Says Gen. Westmoreland Warned LBJ He'd Need More Troops

WASHINGTON — In the privacy of President's oval office, Gen. William Westmoreland, the square-jawed Vietnam commander declared bluntly that the 525,000 troop total promised for 1968 won't be enough to regain the offensive in South Vietnam.

The President cordially explained that no more troops could be spared without calling up reserves or increasing the draft. He made it clear that he had no intention of ordering this sort of national mobilization as long as our present forces could keep the Viet Cong from overrunning South Vietnam.

Westmoreland explained that the Communists still retain the initiative in battle. Earlier this year, they compelled him to withdraw troops from the central section to reinforce the Marines in the north. Now the Viet Cong are bringing pressure, he said, upon this Central II Corps area.

Every available combat unit, he reported, has its hands full. This leaves him with no strength, he said, to mount his own offensives and take the initiative away from the Communists.

The President directed Westmoreland to continue holding his positions and to concentrate on training South Vietnamese troops to take over the combat missions. Our objective, said LBJ, should be to build up a South Vietnamese army that will be capable of taking over the defense of the country.

The general reported that 15 South Vietnamese battalions are now ready for combat and will be tested under fire alongside American troops. Meanwhile, other South Vietnam units are undergoing intensive training. They might be able to relieve a few American troops in another two years, he agreed, provided that the scale of warfare remains the same.

Different Congressional Testimony

Later, when appearing before the House Armed Services Committee, Westmoreland land did not repeat the troop demand he had given the President. He followed the President's line of cautious optimism and indicated that he was satisfied with his allotted 525,000 men. He stopped short, however, of stating that more men wouldn't be needed.

The picture that emerged from the private Johnson-Westmoreland talks was somewhat more grim. At least one thing is certain: No quick victory in Vietnam is in sight.

Not: The President also questioned Westmoreland closely about the risk of extending the bombing pause beyond the Christmas-New Year holidays. The general was opposed, as always, to any let-up in the bombing, which, he warned, would make it easier for the Communists to build up their forces in the south. He also was highly skeptical that a bombing pause would bring Hanoi to the truce table. However, the President made it clear that a bombing pause is still under consideration.

The New LBJ

A lot of people in and out of government have been wondering what induced Lyndon Johnson to do what his advisers have long urged him to do—be his natural self in press conferences.

For four years Johnson's staff have told him to talk to the public the same way he talks to Senators or close friends. When the President got up behind the lectern facing the klieg lights and the TV cameras, however, he froze.

He got the same stage-fright that comes even to actors who have never been on television. He looked glassy-eyed, a rigid, unbending politician that nobody except his wife and daughters could love.

On the other hand, an experienced actor such as Ronald Reagan, who has used TV for General Electric for years, came off as Captain Nice and Mr. Clean.

The change last week was partly because LBJ was given a neck microphone so he could move about instead of staying rooted behind the lectern. But that wasn't the only factor. In addition, the President saw his polls dropping to 26, the lowest point of any President; so, with his back to the political wall, he figured he had better put some oomph in his personal appearances.

White House Press Conferences

Chief squawk of newsmen on Johnson's press conference has been that he doesn't give sufficient notice for them to get there. The President frequently calls press conferences on the spur of the moment when only regulars covering the White House can get there. Newsmen in downtown offices either don't get notice or don't have time to make it. Some of this criticism is justified. However, LBJ has held a total of 48 live TV press conferences in 48 months, and a total of 114 news conferences. His press secretaries have held 1,050 press briefings.

At times the squawks of the networks have been completely unjustified. For instance, the networks were offered a press conference with the two top men from Vietnam — Gen. William Westmoreland and Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker. They turned the offer down.

Finally Bunker and Westmoreland were offered to "Meet the Press," which accepted them.

Reagan-Go-Round

The respected California Field poll reported that three out of four Californians had heard about the homosexuals on Gov. Ronald Reagan's staff and that 61 per cent believed he had lied in his denials. . . . The San Francisco Chronicle, gibbing the governor over his warning to Drew Pearson not to spit on the sidewalk in his state, suggested that Reagan not only had a credibility gap but a "spitting gap." . . . Among hard-nosed Democrats, Reagan is now called "Old Borax" in memory of his role in the Death Valley TV series. But in the old ladies' knitting circles, he is still Mr. Terrific.

Senate Committee Shows Discontent for Viet War

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—It's an oblique rebuke to President Johnson but it is of dubious value.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has approved and sent to the full Senate for its approval a resolution intended to curb the power of Johnson or any president after him in using the armed forces abroad. The full Senate is unlikely to act on it this year. It may never do so. The committee may not press for action. And even if the full Senate eventually approves the resolution, Johnson and all other future presidents can ignore it.

For this reason: He would have to pay attention to it if it was a joint resolution passed by both House and Senate. That would have the effect of law. But a resolution passed by House or Senate alone does not, so it can be ignored.

Then why did the committee bother with the resolution at all? It's the product of discontent among some senators self-conscious about what they did then.

After North Vietnamese torpedo boats attacked U. S. destroyers in the Gulf of Tonkin in the summer of 1964, Johnson asked Congress to approve a resolution authorizing him to use the armed forces if necessary to stop Communist aggression in Vietnam.

He didn't ask for just a resolution by House or Senate. He asked for a joint one, and he asked for prompt action. Both houses gave it to him. Gradually, American involvement in Vietnam got deeper until now it is a war.

As the war dragged on, Johnson's critics in the Senate multiplied, as they did elsewhere. Both House and Senate have a more direct way open if they want to disapprove the war. They can rescind the Gulf of Tonkin resolution.

But no one is suggesting that. That would be a total rebuke but would probably mean American withdrawal from Vietnam. So far the Foreign Relations Committee's present resolution is the only rebuke being tried.

What is the state purpose of the committee resolution? The committee has issued a report explaining what it has in mind. This report is sloppy put together but it goes like this:

Bit by bit presidents have been taking too much power to themselves in using the armed forces overseas. Congress must take back the power given it under the Constitution in the use of the armed forces.

Actually, although the Constitution says Congress alone has the power to declare war, it says the president is commander-in-chief of the armed forces and does not put any direct limits on his use of those forces.

The report says a declaration of war isn't the only means by which Congress can authorize the president to use armed forces. Congress can control such use by the method of a resolution.

The report says Congress must debate the resolution, spell out the kind of military action being authorized, and so on. All this means delay.

Authorized Johnson

But Congress did authorize Johnson to act in the Gulf of Tonkin resolution. However, the report says in approving that resolution a "delay of a week or two would have enabled Congress to records its intentions in a legislative record."

The fact that Congress agreed to Johnson's request for prompt action in the Tonkin resolution, and did so, is its own fault, because it says approving the resolution was not a matter of the greatest urgency.

An example of the report's sloppiness. In 1962 Congress in a joint resolution backed President John F. Kennedy in his showdown with the Soviet Union during the Cuban missile crisis.

But now the Foreign Relations Committee report says in one paragraph that adopting the joint resolution on Cuba was not a matter of the "greatest urgency" and two paragraphs later says "prompt action" was essential.

That's not the only thing sloppy in the report. It has some bad history in it, too.

The Pound Devaluation

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Devaluation of the British pound is just one more in a growing list of hurdles facing U. S. exports.

Take a few examples of many problems being argued about here:

When American producers ship feed grains to Western Europe, the levy the European Economic Community collects is used for subsidies to undercut American ham sales in the United States and American poultry sales in Switzerland and Greece.

Australia now uses a two-price system to undersell U. S. canned cling peaches in West Germany.

Canada has started a subsidy program for her wheat growers that will enable Ottawa to cut into American sales abroad.

Agriculture Department men admit ruefully that in country after country "new impedments to trade" are being "initiated."

These growing foreign trade restrictions cut into the income of the American farmer and manufacturer and intensify the U. S. balance of payments problem.

Devaluation of the British pound was, in effect, a subsidy to British exporters. Devaluation will make it more difficult for U. S. products to compete in Britain and with some British exports to a variety of countries. If a considerable number of major U. S. competitors follow the British example and devalue their currencies it could hurt here considerably.

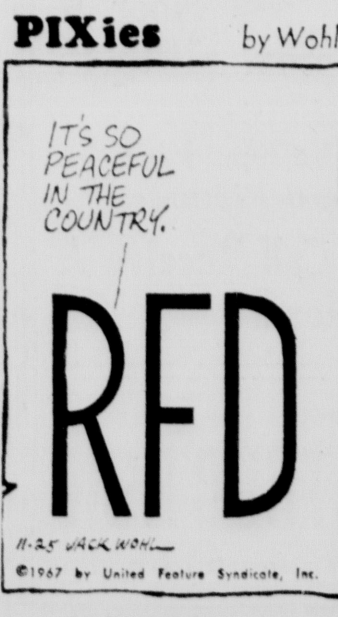

The American competitive position in markets abroad will be hurt further as farm wages and industrial costs go up. Agriculture Department men estimate "farmworkers as a group may receive a 10 per cent over-all increase in wages and earnings for the first year as a result of the new minimum wage for agriculture" which went into effect in February, 1967. Industrial wages are expected to rise 5 per cent in 1968.

The export problem, in part, is the result of a long series of mistakes extending back over two decades. American negotiators at the major trade talks during those 20 years have been too timid to insist that foreign countries make real reductions in their trade barriers.

The United States, during that period, has had some real tariff cuts to offer other countries. If the negotiators had insisted on the elimination of indirect barriers the U. S. export outlook would look much better than it does today.

Government officials now admit that the highly touted "Kennedy Round" of trade negotiations didn't get at the focus-pocus manipulative type of restrictive barriers mentioned above, which historically have caused more trouble for exporters than high tariffs.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, NOVEMBER 25, 1967

Macdonald DeWitt

This community has lost a sincere friend and a fine humanitarian in the death of Macdonald DeWitt, whose long illness hasn't lessened the grief his demise brings.

Mr. DeWitt, who was regarded as one of the nation's ten best trial lawyers, was a native Kingstonian, where his family lived for seven generations. He was educated in the Kingston schools and graduated at Kingston Academy in 1896. Following his graduation from New York Law School, he was admitted to the Bar in 1901. He practiced law in New York City for more than 60 years specializing in libel litigation with notable success.

A successful lawyer, he attained eminence through his knowledge of the law and strict adherence to the code of ethics. His philosophy that newspapers should vigorously defend libel suits rather than endeavor to settle them is generally accepted as the wisest course. During his career, he at various times represented many New York newspapers.

Mr. DeWitt was a humanist and people were his greatest concern. His special interest in young people was evidenced in the establishment of the DeWitt Revolving Fund, Inc. and his gifts to the Ulster County Community College.

Long before state funds became available to assist students, he established a fund for the purpose of making loans to young men of Ulster County who needed financial assistance to complete their college education. Over $75,000 was loaned.

His initial grant of $100,000 toward the capital cost, contingent upon the voters of Ulster County authorizing a Community College at a referendum, undoubtedly was instrumental in that proposal being approved by the voters. The DeWitt Memorial Library at the college campus is a monument to his philanthropy.

A gentleman of the old school, he made a host of friends during his long and imposing career. Association with him was a rich and rewarding opportunity.

Dollar-for-Dollar Tax

In the wake of the British devaluation of the pound sterling, the United States is likely to impose increased taxes and to control public expenditures in a dollar-for-dollar package of increased taxes for a commitment for an equal amount of spending cuts.

That is in essence the decision President Johnson has made and Chairman Wilbur D. Mills of the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee has indicated he would accept.

The exact amounts involved may not be known until Tuesday, when Mills calls his committee to hear the Administration's proposals made by Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler and other fiscal officials. But the general outline has been fixed.

The stalemate between the President and the Chairman had held throughout almost a year of hearings and maneuvering. It looked as if there would be no tax surcharge imposed in the current session of Congress. Then the British devaluation struck. The whole picture changed overnight.

President Johnson called an extraordinary Cabinet meeting to say that the United States is being tested to keep its own economy on a strong course, to prevent inflation and tight money from wrecking our record prosperity. "The entire world looks to America. We are the bellwether. Our economic strength and the soundness of our dollar must never be doubted," he said.

Fowler at once called Mills and offered a new cut in spending for a tax increase. Mills, who had emphasized that he had deferred the surtax until a spending cut program was offered, called a closed committee meeting.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, certain now that a formula will be worked out to increase taxes and cut expenditures substantially, was ready to hold the Congress in session long enough to deal with the package.

London's crisis had moved America to defensive action. All branches of government were ready to defend the dollar against all eventualities.

The Senate sharply cut back federal Medicaid contributions by limiting such payments to families of four with $5,100 incomes instead of the previous $6,000 maximum and by making the federal contribution 25 per cent instead of 50 per cent. The cuts were necessary because the federal government's share the first year was four times the expected $248 million.

Overnight nuclear powered merchant ships could be made competitive simply by doing away with many design and operational safety requirements as they become unnecessary, eliminating surplus crew members and operational procedures. These recommendations of experts to the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers would give the advantage to nuclear-powered vessels.

If at First You Don't Succeed---

Henry J. Taylor Says

Great Society Creates Deadbeats

It astounds me to realize this is my 1,000th consecutive column. A thousand consecutive times since I came home from Europe in 1961 I have never missed a column, not once has it ever been late at its due-by-noon deadline, in the six years, and somehow there has never been a vacation. Beyond the research I work 12 to 14 hours or 15 hours on the actual word-by-word writing in each column. Meanwhile, the information has meant traveling a quarter-million miles.

The doctors say the work hasn't hurt me. But when I read an item about affluent Texas the other day it started me thinking. Acting Regional Director Josephine Nieves of Sargent Shriver's Office of Economic Opportunity announced that Texas has received more Federal anti-poverty funds than even the State of New York since the OEO was founded in 1965.

In just New York City, in turn, during history's biggest boom, 742,955 people are today drawing relief, some for the second and third generation. The New York State figure exceeds a million.

Now, everybody needs some kind of help of one kind or another at some time or another. But who has to be told that when a government preaches something-for-nothing long enough it's sure to create a great many loafers who wouldn't do a day's real work if you hit them over the head with a cast-iron club? Is there a single employment agency in our country, or anybody trying to hire somebody, who doesn't see this?

Moreover, where's the morality in calling on working people to pay for the incredible — and always increasing — number who simply beat the game by doing nothing?

A few are inevitable. And, heaven knows, I'm not talking about hardship cases or people who are really deprived for any reason whatever. But, making political hay, the Johnsons, Kennedys, Shriver's, et al, obviously stimulate the number of deadbeats.

In voices loud enough to break the windows and blow off the roof they blame all personal failure on "lack of opportunity," "underprivileged neighborhoods," "educational handicaps" and even "national undernourishment" or any other convenient alibi. They toss all insolence, self-indulgence and everything else back onto being the fault of "society" — which dismisses the individual from responsibility and lets every able-bodied deadbeat nicely off the hook.

What burns me up is that such political haymakers are gutting out the bone-structure of the nation and then expect to be thanked for it at the polls.

The Great Society's political pitch makes money a substitute for all other deeds — for hard work, for self-discipline, for talent, for nearly everything, including character.

The result can be the same as begging. It wastes the body and the spirit. It destroys self-respect, self-faith, self-de- velopment. And there is no security, individual or national, without these.

Abraham Lincoln, of course, is the classic denial of the alleged connection between being "underprivileged" and achievement. Out of date? Far more men who have reached the highest prominence in our country, such as Herbert Hoover, an Iowa orphan, had to struggle in life than those who did not. Work produces strength.

This column once mentioned that before going to West Point and while deferring his own education to provide money for his brother Edgar's education, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower worked in an Abilene creamery 12 hours a night, seven night's a week. This hurt him? He does not think so.

In business life? An outstanding feature among America's industrial leaders is that most of them touched every rung on the ladder from the bottom up. Like our pioneers, they were not waiting for the breaks of good fortune. They made them.

No man is useful who thinks he is sick when he sweats. Where is the music composer, architect or builder of any kind in our country who shirked personal responsibility and self-discipline and did not sweat?

Freedom doesn't mean: "I do not have to work." Even the Bible warns that freedom is preserved only by work. The knowledge of its significance is as old as that, a writer on the day of this 1,000th column.

Drew Pearson Says
Gen. Westmoreland Warned
LBJ He'd Need More Troops

WASHINGTON — In the privacy of President's oval office, Gen. William Westmoreland, the square-jawed Vietnam commander, declared bluntly that the 525,000 troop total promised for 1968 won't be enough to regain the offensive in South Vietnam.

The President cordially explained that no more troops could be spared without calling up reserves or increasing the draft. He made it clear that he had no intention of ordering this sort of national mobilization as long as our present forces could keep the Viet Cong from overrunning South Vietnam.

Westmoreland explained that the Communists still retain the initiative in battle. Earlier this year, they compelled him to withdraw troops from the central section to reinforce the Marines in the north. Now the Viet Cong are bringing pressure, he said, upon this Central II Corps area.

Every available combat unit, he reported, has its hands full. This leaves him with no strength, he said, to mount his own offensives and take the initiative away from the Communists.

The President directed Westmoreland to continue holding his positions and to concentrate on training South Vietnamese troops to take over the combat missions. Our objective, said LBJ, should be to build up a South Vietnamese army that will be capable of taking over the defense of the country.

The general reported that 15 South Vietnamese battalions are now ready for combat and will be tested under fire alongside American troops. Meanwhile, other South Vietnam units are undergoing intensive training. They might be able to relieve a few American troops in another two years, he agreed, provided that the scale of warfare remains the same.

Different Congressional Testimony

Later, when appearing before the House Armed Services Committee, Westmoreland did not repeat the troop demand he had given the President. He followed the President's line of cautious optimism and indicated that he was satisfied with his allotted 525,000 men. He stopped short, however, of stating that more men wouldn't be needed.

The picture that emerged from the private Johnson-Westmoreland talks was somewhat more grim. At least one thing is certain: No quick victory in Vietnam is in sight.

Note: The President also questioned Westmoreland closely about the risk of extending the bombing pause beyond the Christmas-New Year holidays. The general was opposed, as always, to any let-up in the bombing, which, he warned, would make it easier for the Communists to build up their forces in the south. He also was highly skeptical that a bombing pause would bring Hanoi to the truce table. However, the President made it clear that a bombing pause is still under consideration.

The New LBJ

A lot of people in and out of government have been wondering what induced Lyndon Johnson to do what his advisers have long urged him to do—be his natural self in press conferences.

For four years Johnson's staff have told him to talk to the public the same way he talks to Senators or close friends. When the President got up behind the lectern facing the light lights and the TV cameras, however, he froze.

He got the same stage-fright that comes even to actors who have never been on television. He looked glassy-eyed, a rigid, unbending politician that nobody except his wife and daughters could love.

On the other hand, an experienced actor, such as Ronald Reagan, who has used TV for General Electric for years, came off as Captain Nice and Mr. Clean.

The change last week was partly because LBJ was given a neck microphone so he could move about instead of staying rooted behind the lectern. But that wasn't the only factor. In addition, the President saw his polls dropping to 26, the lowest point of any President; so, with his back to the political wall, he figured he had better put some oomph in his personal appearances.

White House Press Conferences

Chief squawk of newsmen on Johnson's press conference has been that he doesn't give sufficient notice for them to get there. The President frequently calls press conferences on the spur of the moment when only regulars covering the White House can get there. Newsmen in downtown offices either don't get notice or don't have time to make it. Some of this criticism is justified. However, LBJ has held a total of 48 live TV press conferences in 48 months, and a total of 114 news conferences. His press secretaries have held 1,030 press briefings.

At times the squawks of the networks have been completely unjustified. For instance, the networks were offered a press conference with the two top men from Vietnam — Gen. William Westmoreland and Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker. They turned the offer down.

Finally Bunker and Westmoreland were offered to "Meet the Press," which accepted them.

Reagan-Go-Round

The respected California Field poll reported that three out of four Californians had heard about the homosexuals on Gov. Ronald Reagan's staff and that 61 per cent believed he had lied in his denials. . . . The San Francisco Chronicle, ribbing the governor over his warning to Drew Pearson not to spit on the sidewalk in his state, suggested that Reagan not only had a credibility gap but a "spitting gap." Among hard-nosed Democrats, Reagan is now called "Old Bore" in memory of his role in the Death Valley TV series. But in the old ladies' knitting circles, he is still Mr. Terrible.

Senate Committee Shows Discontent for Viet War

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—It's an oblique rebuke to President Johnson but it is of dubious value.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has approved and sent to the full Senate for its approval a resolution intended to curb the power of Johnson or any president after him in using the armed forces abroad.

The full Senate is unlikely to act on it this year. It may never do so. The committee may not press for action. And even if the full Senate eventually approves the resolution, Johnson and all other future presidents can ignore it.

For this reason: He would have to pay attention to it if it was a joint resolution passed by both House and Senate. That would have the effect of law. But a resolution passed by House or Senate alone does not, so it can be ignored.

Then why did the committee bother with the resolution at all? It's the product of discontent among some senators self-conscious about what they did then.

After North Vietnamese torpedo boats attacked U. S. destroyers in the Gulf of Tonkin in the summer of 1964, Johnson asked Congress to approve a resolution authorizing him to use the armed forces if necessary to stop Communist aggression in Vietnam.

He didn't ask for just a resolution by House or Senate. He asked for a joint one, and he asked for prompt action. Both houses gave it to him. Gradually, American involvement in Vietnam got deeper until now it is a war.

As the war dragged on, Johnson's critics in the Senate multiplied, as they did elsewhere. Both House and Senate have a more direct way open if they want to disapprove the war. They can rescind the Gulf of Tonkin resolution.

But no one is suggesting that. That would be a total rebuke but would probably mean American withdrawal from Vietnam. So far the Foreign Relations Committee's present resolution is the only rebuke being tried.

What is the state purpose of the committee resolution? The committee has issued a report explaining what it has in mind. This report is sloppily put together but it goes like this:

Bit by bit presidents have been taking too much power to themselves in using the armed forces overseas. Congress must take back the power given it under the Constitution in the use of the armed forces.

Actually, although the Constitution says Congress alone has the power to declare war, it says the president is commander-in-chief of the armed forces and does not put any direct limits on his use of those forces.

The report says a declaration of war isn't the only means by which Congress can authorize the president to use armed forces. Congress can control such use by the method of a resolution.

The report says Congress must debate the resolution, spell out the kind of military action being authorized, and so on. All this means delay.

Authorized Johnson

But Congress did authorize Johnson to act in the Gulf of Tonkin resolution. However, the report says in approving that resolution a "delay of a week or two would have enabled Congress to records its intentions in a legislative record."

The fact that Congress agreed to Johnson's request for prompt action in the Tonkin resolution, and did so, is its own fault, because it says approving the resolution was not a matter of the greatest urgency.

An example of the report's sloppiness. In 1962 Congress in a joint resolution backed President John F. Kennedy in his showdown with the Soviet Union during the Cuban missile crisis.

But now the Foreign Relations Committee report says in one paragraph that adopting the joint resolution on Cuba was not a matter of the "greatest urgency" and two paragraphs later says "prompt action" was essential.

That's not the only thing sloppy in the report. It has some bad history in it, too.

The Pound Devaluation

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Devaluation of the British pound is just one more in a growing list of hurdles facing U. S. exports.

Take a few examples of many problems being argued about here: When American producers ship feed grains to Western Europe, the levy the European Economic Community collects is used for subsidies to undercut American ham sales in the United States and American poultry sales in Switzerland and Greece.

Australia now uses a two-price system to undersell U. S. canned cling peaches in West Germany.

Canada has started a subsidy program for her wheat growers that will enable Ottawa to cut into American sales abroad.

Agriculture Department men admit ruefully that in country after country "new impediments to trade" are being "initiated."

These growing foreign trade restrictions cut into the income of the American farmer and manufacturer and intensify the U. S. balance of payments problem.

Devaluation of the British pound was, in effect, a subsidy to British exporters. Devaluation will make it more difficult for U. S. products to compete in Britain and with some British exports in a variety of countries. If a considerable number of major U. S. competitors follow the British example and devalue their currencies it could hurt here considerably.

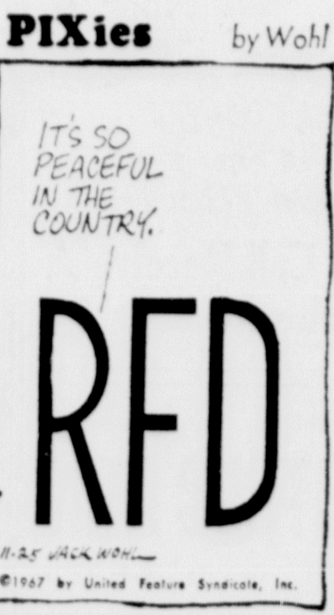

The American competitive position in markets abroad will be hurt further as farm wages and industrial costs go up. Agriculture Department men estimate "farmworkers as a group may receive a 10 per cent over-all increase in wages and earnings for the first year as a result of the new minimum wage for agriculture" which went into effect in February, 1967. Industrial wages are expected to rise 5 per cent in 1968.

The export problem, in part, is the result of a long series of mistakes extending back over two decades. American negotiators at the major trade talks during those 20 years have been too timid to insist that foreign countries make real reductions in their trade barriers.

The United States, during that period, has had some real tariff cuts to offer other countries. If the negotiators had insisted on the elimination of indirect barriers the U. S. export outlook would look much better than it does today.

Government officials now admit that the highly touted "Kennedy Round" of trade negotiations didn't get at the hocus-focus manipulative type of restrictive barriers mentioned above, which historically have caused more trouble for exporters than high tariffs.

The Rental Blacklist

Detroit Screen on Undesirables

DETROIT (AP) — Names of 2,000 persons are on a rental blacklist which began circulating in the Detroit area shortly after the July riot.

A man who helped prepare it says its purpose is to "protect the rights, privacy and security of both tenants and landlords." Officials of the Builders Association of Metropolitan Detroit, which prepared the list, said it was issued to landlords as a way to screen undesirable tenants applying for apartments. The list resulted from a growing concern among landlords about tenants "who constantly disturb their neighbors, vandalize their apartments and victimize their landlords" and was suggested last April, said Irvin Yackness, executive director of the association.

Yackness, who assisted in preparation of the list which he termed a service, said Wednesday reaction has varied from wariness to outright opposition from another major builders association.

No formal complaints have been lodged.

"I suppose if somebody wanted to exercise prejudice, they could pervert the reason for our service," he said. "It's not a device for service prejudice. It's to assist the screening of possible tenants. We only cite facts."

But Burton Gordin of the Michigan Civil Rights Commission asked, "Why can't we continue to use the old referral and reference way?"

"What we need are new laws to protect the tenant," added Gordin.

"Present laws give the landlord all the protection." A spokesman for the West Central Organization, a civil rights group in Detroit concerned with urban housing problems, said its members were bitterly opposed to the list.

Reveal Another Vietnam 'Mistake' by Army As California Parents Receive Wrong Body

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Even as a Tennessee soldier was reunited with his mother who had thought him killed in action in Vietnam, a California couple reported another Army mixup in bodies returned from Vietnam.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Adams of Chico, Calif., said they were told their son was killed in action and prepared for his funeral. Then they were told Thursday he had been relisted as missing in action.

A casket which the couple believed carried the body of their son, Spec, 5 John R. Adams, 21, arrived at the Oakland Army Terminal earlier this week. But the Army told Adams it was another soldier's.

In Washington, the Pentagon said that young Adams, crew chief on a helicopter which was shot down by the enemy, was reported missing Nov. 9.

Subsequently, the Pentagon said, the remains of another soldier named Adams were mistakenly identified as those of John R. Adams and the Chico couple were told on Nov. 17 that their son had been killed.

An Army officer visited them to make arrangements to bring the body back to Chico and the parents planned the funeral for next week.

When the body was positively identified and proved not to be John R. Adams, his name was removed from the killed in action list and was relisted as missing in action, the Pentagon said.

The other soldier's family then was notified of his death.

"We're not even sure now it was our son that was shot down," Adams said in Chico. "It's like we've been through this twice ... We don't know whether to get our hopes up or not."

Pfc. John W. Quinn, 23, whose family had thought him dead and buried, was reunited Friday with his mother, Blanche Quinn, at the Tri-City Airport near his hometown of Elizabethton, Tenn.

"God bless you! God bless you! Oh, God bless you!" she said, over and over, as her son embraced her, then Mrs. Quinn fainted. Six younger brothers and sisters watched the reunion.

Mrs. Quinn's heartbreak—borne for two weeks—has been that of Mrs. Samuel H. Tichenor of Louisville, Ky. It was her son, Pfc. Quinn W. Tichenor, 23, also serving in Vietnam, who was buried in Guinn's grave in the East Tennessee hills Tuesday along with a wristwatch intended for Guinn's Christmas.

Nagging doubts as to Guinn's death caused an uncle to seek a doublecheck. Then the Army Wednesday confirmed through fingerprints that Guinn, indeed, was alive and Tichenor had been buried in his place.

Viet Service Medal

Kerhonkson Man Honored

Two Army officers who are members of the Bowdoin College ROTC staff have been cited for their services while stationed in Vietnam.

In a ceremony in the ROTC office, Lt. Col. Richard S. Fleming, head of the Bowdoin ROTC, read the citation for the Vietnam Staff Service Medal awarded Capt. Michael B. Osterhoudt, and the citation for the seven oak leaf clusters to the Air Medal won by Capt. John M. Sutton Jr.

Captain Osterhoudt, whose permanent home is in Kerhonkson, served as an advisor with the Vietnam Command during his year's tour of duty there. He entered the Army in 1962, the year following his graduation from the Pennsylvania State University School of Forestry.

In the citation Captain Osterhoudt was praised by his Vietnamese counterparts for his talents concerned with logistics and maintenance of mechanized vehicles and for his assistance in organizing armored units. It further stated that Captain Osterhoudt was successful in acquiring replacement vehicles for armored units and assisted operational units with the same capability.

Captain's Sutton's oak leaf clusters were "for distinguishing himself by meritorious achievement while participating in sustained aerial flight in support of combat ground forces of the Republic of Vietnam." The citation said he "actively participated in more than 25 aerial missions over hostile territory in support of counterinsurgency."

A permanent resident of Arlington, Mass., Captain Sutton served as an infantry battalion and infantry brigade fire support coordinator in Vietnam. He is a 1961 graduate of Boston College and entered the Army that year.

Captain Osterhoudt also holds the Bronze Star Medal, National Defense Service Medal, Vietnam Service Medal, Vietnam Campaign Medal, and the Vietnam Armor Badge. Captain Sutton has won three Bronze Star Medals and the Army Commendation Medal for Heroism.

Col. Personeus, 26-Year Veteran, Retires From AF

Colonel Lester Personeus Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Personeus of 124 Hawick Street, Kingston, has retired from the U.S. Air Force at Eglin AFB, Fla., after more than 26 years service.

Colonel Personeus served as director of operations at the Tactical Air Warfare Center at Eglin prior to his retirement.

The colonel received his commission in 1942 through the aviation cadet program. During World War II, Colonel Personeus was a member of the first B-17 crew to fly 25 missions in the European Theater of Operations without being shot down, losing a crew member or an airplane, or aborting a combat mission.

After the European assignment, he trained a B-29 crew and joined the 19th Bomb Group at Guam in the Pacific. The colonel flew the initial B-29 fire raids on Tokyo and later made lone night pathfinder raids over targets in Japan dropping initial fire bombs for follow-on bombers to use as aiming points.

The command pilot holds three Distinguished Flying Crosses, eight Air Medals and two Air Force Commendation Medals.

Colonel Personeus, a 1937 graduate of Suffern High School, attended Bergen Junior College, Teaneck, N. J., and received his BS degree in 1963 from the University of Maryland.

BOCES Starts Speaker Plan To Aid Schools

The Ulster County Board of Cooperative Educational Services is initiating a program of Community Resource Specialist Service.

In this program, teachers will be supplied with the names of individuals and community agencies willing to send speakers and consultants for classes at all grade levels. Teachers, in turn, will submit requests for a specific speaker.

Areas of interest include art, music, mathematics, science, history, local government and other topics related to the elementary and secondary school program. Presentations will generally take the form of demonstrations, slide-lectures, discussion or other appropriate format.

An appeal is being made to those who might contribute services. An effort will be made to maintain a file of individuals who will represent various resources.

Joan Cullen, resource coordinator, may be contacted at the New Paltz office of BOCES, 175 Route 32 North.

Detroit Screen on Undesirables

DETROIT (AP) — Names of 2,000 persons are on a rental blacklist which began circulating in the Detroit area shortly after the July riot.

A man who helped prepare it says its purpose is to "protect the rights, privacy and security of both tenants and landlords."

Officials of the Builders Association of Metropolitan Detroit, which prepared the list, said it was issued to landlords as a way to screen undesirable tenants applying for apartments.

The list resulted from a growing concern among landlords about tenants "who constantly disturb their neighbors, vandalize their apartments and victimize their landlords," said Irvin Yackness, executive director of the association.

reaction has varied from Michigan Civil Rights Commission wariness to outright opposition from another major builders association.

No formal complaints have been lodged.

"I suppose if somebody wanted to exercise prejudice, they could pervert the reason for our service," he said. "It's not a device for service prejudice. It's to assist the screening of possible tenants. We only cite facts."

What we need are new laws to protect the tenant," added Gordin. "Present laws give the landlord all the protection."

A spokesman for the West Central Organization, a civil rights group in Detroit concerned with urban housing problems, said its members were bitterly opposed to the list.

Reveal Another Vietnam 'Mistake' by Army As California Parents Receive Wrong Body

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Even as a Tennessee soldier was reunited with his mother, who had thought him killed in action in Vietnam, a California couple reported another Army mixup in bodies returned from Vietnam.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Adams of Chico, Calif., said they were told their son was killed in action and prepared for his funeral. Then they were told Thursday he had been listed as missing in action.

A casket which the couple believed carried the body of their son, Spec. 5 John R. Adams, 21, arrived at the Oakland Army Terminal earlier this week. But the Army told Adams it was another soldier.

In Washington, the Pentagon said that young Adams, crew chief on a helicopter which was shot down by the enemy, was reported missing Nov. 9.

Subsequently, the Pentagon said, the remains of another soldier named Adams were mistakenly identified as those of John R. Adams and the Chico couple were told on Nov. 17 that their son had been killed.

An Army officer visited them to make arrangements to bring the body back to Chico and the parents planned the funeral for next week.

When the body was positively identified and proved not to be John R. Adams, his name was removed from the killed in action list and was relisted as missing in action, the Pentagon said.

The other soldier's family then was notified of his death. "We're not even sure now it was our son that was shot down," Adams said in Chico.

"It's like we've been through this twice... We don't know whether to get our hopes up or not."

Pfc. John W. Guinn, 23, whose family had thought him dead and buried, was reunited Friday with his mother, Blanche Guinn, at the Tri-City Airport near his hometown of Elizabethton, Tenn.

"God bless you! God bless you! Oh, God bless you!" she said, over and over, as her son embraced her, then Mrs. Guinn fainted. Six younger brothers and sisters watched the reunion.

Mrs. Guinn's heartbreak-borne for two weeks—has been come that of Mrs. Samuel H. Tichenor of Louisville, Ky. It was her son, Pfc. Quinn W. Tichenor, 23, also serving in Vietnam, who was buried in Guinn's grave in the East Tennessee hills Tuesday along with a wristwatch intended for Guinn's Christmas.

Nagging doubts as to Guinn's death caused an uncle to seek a doublecheck. Then the Army Wednesday confirmed through fingerprints that Guinn, indeed, was alive and Tichenor had been buried in his place.

Viet Service Medal

Kerhonkson Man Honored

Two Army officers who are Vietnam Staff Service Medal members of the Bowdoin College ROTC staff have been cited for their services while stationed in Vietnam.

In a ceremony in the ROTC office, Lt. Col. Richard S. Fleming, head of the Bowdoin ROTC, read the citation for the

the Vietnam Command during his year's tour of duty there. He entered the Army in 1962, the year following his graduation from the Pennsylvania State University School of Forestry.

In the citation Captain Osterhoudt was praised by his Vietnamese counterparts for his talents concerned with logistics and maintenance of mechanized vehicles and for his assistance in organizing armored units. It further stated that Captain Osterhoudt was successful in acquiring replacement vehicles for armored units and assisted operational units with the same capability.

Captain's Sutton's oak leaf clusters were "for distinguishing himself by meritorious achievement while participating in sustained aerial flight in support of combat ground forces of the Republic of Vietnam."

The citation said he "actively participated in more than 25 aerial missions over hostile territory in support of counterinsurgency."

A permanent resident of Arlington, Mass., Captain Sutton served as an infantry battalion and infantry brigade fire support coordinator in Vietnam. He is a 1961 graduate of Boston College and entered the Army that year.

Col. Personeus, 26-Year Veteran, Retires From AF

Colonel Lester Personeus Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Personeus of 124 Hawick Street, Kingston, has retired from the U.S. Air Force at Eglin AFB, Fla., after more than 26 years service.

Colonel Personeus served as director of operations at the Tactical Air Warfare Center at Eglin prior to his retirement. The colonel received his commission in 1942 through the aviation cadet program. During World War II, Colonel Personeus was a member of the first B-17 crew to fly 25 missions in the European Theater of Operations without being shot down, losing a crew member or an airplane, or aborting a combat mission.

After the European assignment, he trained a B-29 aircrew and joined the 19th Bomb Group at Guam in the Pacific. The colonel flew the initial B-29 fire raids on Tokyo and later made lone night pathfinder raids over targets in Japan dropping initial fire bombs for follow-on bombers to use as aiming points.

The command pilot holds three Distinguished Flying Crosses, eight Air Medals and two Air Force Commendation Medals.

Colonel Personeus, a 1937 graduate of Suffern High School, attended Bergen Junior College, Teaneck, N. J., and received his BS degree in 1963 from the University of Maryland.

The colonel and his wife, the former Eleanor Nagle and children will reside in St. Louis, where he will be employed by the Emerson Electric Co.

Smithsonian Art Exhibit at Paltz

Motion quality is a characteristic of 23 contemporary paintings, sculptures, and constructions to be exhibited at State University College Art Gallery, New Paltz, November 29 to December 15 under the auspices of the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service.

John Goodyear, Lebanon, N. J., a pioneer in optical art, creates constructions with movable grids for the coming New Paltz show, and Reginald Neal, also of Lebanon, prints his designs on two surfaces which appear to be in motion as the viewer moves past them.

All the artists represented in the display live and work in the Delaware River Valley, and the exhibit was organized and first seen at Lafayette College, Easton, Pa. It is circulating throughout the U. S. and Canada.

Other artists shown are Richard Anuszkiewicz, Frenchtown, N. J., whose use of color to create subtle after-images gives the impression of motion; Clarence Carter, Milford, N. J., whose paintings, by use of an almost violent perspective, appear to pull the spectator toward the canvas; and Edward Higgins, Easton, who juxtaposes smooth white epoxy and rough-textured welded steel to create new forms.

Gallery hours are 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. weekdays and 9 a. m. to 3 p. m. Saturdays.

RVCS Singers In State Choir

Three students of Rondout Valley Central High School have received the signal honor of being selected to participate in the 1967 All-State Choir, Dec. 4-6 at the Concord Hotel, Lake Kamesha. All members of the junior class, they are Nancy Boss, first alto, Suzanne Friedman, second alto, and Dale Mayberry, first tenor. The All-State Choir will be directed by Luther Goodhart and the All-State Band, choir and Orchestra concert is slated Wednesday evening, Dec. 6.

The trio was selected by audition during one of the 24 sessions held throughout the state. Other local singers selected in the stiff competition were: Emily York, R. C. Ketcham High School, Wappingers Falls; Pamela Gray, Liberty Central School; Angelo Garcia, Delaware Valley Central School; James Raab and John Thorn, Poughkeepsie High School; Fred Pirog, Pine Bush Central School; and Edward McSweeney, New Paltz Central School.

The 'Now Generation' Cries: 'Make Love, Not War'

In this last of a series, a highly respected writer-reporter discusses today's "Fun Morality."

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

"Make love, not war."

It's a small, tin lapel button, and a troubled number of America's youth wear it pinned over their hearts like a badge of honor. Crazy kids. Long hair and love. Gone wild, the whole lot of them. No morals.

The little tin button, however, raises an embarrassing question:

Which is, in truth, the more immoral—requited passion, or recruited killing?

Don't answer that, Dad. The kid may have the upper hand here. He can get out the bible, if need be, and show passages. You've got three centuries of Puritan mores on your side, but he'll claim Jesus Christ would say the making of love is right, and the making of war is wrong. Want to argue?

It's not easy for an adult, for a member of the so-called establishment, to cast aside a lifetime of whispering about sex and of accepting war as a patriotic necessity—to throw in the Puritanical sponge and suddenly concede that his rebellious young ones may have a point.

So adults tend to grope along blindly, and with some anger ("Damn, I didn't start the Viet Nam war, why do they keep throwing it up to me?") to find what's going wrong.

Why is a still relatively small, but growing and noisy, segment of the "Now Generation" openly advocating sexual freedom, psychedelic experiences and marijuana—while "putting down" such revered concepts as matrimony, Sunday school and materialism? When a teenager says he'd rather live on rice and pot (marijuana) than be President of either General Motors or the United States, he's sick. Right?

Or perhaps it's just growing pains he's suffering from; he's busy outgrowing a moral ethic that is three centuries old, and searching for new values. "Kids are getting tired of being told they should be 'adjusted,'" says Wit-Philosopher Sam Levenson. "Adjusted to what—war? To corruption? Maybe it's better to be maladjusted in today's society."

And psychiatric studies have claimed to prove that the unruly rebels among America's youth, typified by the "Hippies" movement, have higher I.Q.'s than the little conformists.

Amid the uncomfortable, all-out revolution against the Puritan ethic, thoughtful people are asking: Is morality dying? Is it dead?

"By most people's standards, war is immoral," said a Protestant minister who will be anonymous. "Youth has made the morality of Vietnam an issue now, and we are forced to see that as long as governments are morally lawless, the people inside cannot be expected to obey moral laws."

"I happen to feel that a moral act is not obedience to any specific law, divine or man made, but rather the fulfilling of one's real self. Young people today see love as their self-fulfillment. With love as their moral ethic, they can only look upon the old sexual taboos as absurd. With this generation, then, the barriers against a certain sexual freedom must be lowered."

The clergyman pointed out that self-fulfillment can only come through self-discipline. And he hopes that these "children, many of whom are fired with the spirit of liberty without the basic education to precede it, can learn to discipline themselves."

They will have to learn self-discipline before self-indulgence the hard way. Through experience. As a psychologist pointed out, "these are the graduates of the school of permissiveness in the home. They were not taught how to handle a fire before they played with it. Some of them will get burned."

On the way to the conflagration, what is happening? More and more college students are living together, openly, without the bonds of matrimony. They think this is an honest, natural way to live, especially since an ever-increasing number of youth look upon the institution of marriage as a questionable road to permanent enjoyment of life.

A recently interviewed pretty Magna Cum Laude graduate of Smith College, who confessed she was "engaged"—but she didn't know exactly what she was engaged in doing:

"Many of us are concerned as to whether marriage is the most favorable atmosphere for bringing up children," she said seriously. "So often married couples are not happy together, and that passes on to the children and never leaves them. We're studying the communal living idea where children are brought up by the entire group instead of only by the parents. We believe it would be a more loving environment for the young than a marriage situation."

Writes Rev. Earl H. Brill, chaplain at American University: "Talking with today's youth one gets the impression that they are willing to consider marriage, but that they are going to require real persuasion. If this trend continues, we may see far fewer marriages. As marriage declines in number, and there are more single people, they can be expected to make their own demands upon the social order. The result may be that singleness will be regarded as being just as normal and as desirable as marriage."

Reverend Brill finds this idea healthy. "When marriage becomes a matter of genuine choice—when people no longer feel that they really ought to get married because they are 25, gainfully employed, and probably should settle down—then they may begin to get married for only one reason: they really want to. Just think!

People getting married because they want to... many of our problem marriages will not get started."

While youth (not to mention educators, sociologists, jergymen and philosophers) consider the future of marriage, physical togetherness goes on with business as usual.

The greatest change in sexual morality, as America has known it for centuries, is taking place among young women. Discovery of "the pill" for birth control probably stepped up the sexual freedom revolution more than any other single factor... although many adult authorities also point to the fact that it is the older generation itself that has helped push their young females into relationships with young males.

"Our young people are not sex-obsessed," wrote Prof. Lester Kirkendall of Oregon State University. "The culture is. We use sex to sell products, as a come-on. By the time they are in their teens, our youth are moving very close to a full physical relationship. The girl particularly is being pushed into marriage. This is one of the immoral things our culture does for girls. A girl feels extremely pressured to demonstrate she has the kind of attractiveness that is going to satisfy a boy."

And a boy is not considered normal unless he responds. Of course, some of our youth are too young to get "the pill" from a doctor. For these children, the sexual freedom of the new '60s ethic has certain complications. The Connecticut State Department of Health has estimated that one 13-year-old girl out of every six in that state will become pregnant, out of wedlock, before she is 20.

There are "sex clubs" in high schools scattered about the land. In California, a survey of junior and senior high school girls revealed that 121 out of 12,136 of them were pregnant, proudly pregnant. Pregnancy, said a doctor, "is a status symbol in the culture of fun morality. It proves you are wanted."

"The fun morality." It has replaced "the Puritan morality." That is what's happening.

The pursuit of happiness, wherever it lies—in sex, in drugs, in ancient pre-Christian religions, in loud and shrill music, in abandoned dance, in speed, in the rejection of all that is stodgy and hypocritical, in freedom, freedom, freedom. Sometimes it is a heartbreaking and futile pursuit; the suicide rate among youth has never been higher in the nation's history. It is certainly a family-breaking search; the old generation and the new have never been so widely, excruciatingly split on ideas and ideals.

Did today's youth kill morality—as many adults believe, as they shake their heads at the behavior and attitudes of the young rebels?

Or did the Puritan code come to a violent death because it was hypocritical, dishonest and unhealthy—as the young rebels claim?

And will a new code of ethics gradually be formed to pull America out of the moral muddle in which she now flounders?

Faced with agonizing questions like this, citizens of the old mores were quick to reply, "God only knows."

But today—when even some members of the clergy preach that God is dead—the answers are as elusive as morality itself.

Dear Heloise: I liked the hint you printed awhile ago about sucking up mosquitoes with the hose of a tank vacuum cleaner.

I also use it for another purpose. When I'm vacuuming the floor, I look up and around. If I see a cobweb, or a spider web, I hold the end of the vacuum wand near it and... whoosh! it vanishes up the hose.

This way I don't have to wash, rub or pick the cobwebs off the broom, stick or whatever I used to wipe them down with.

You are right! Just be careful if you suck up LIVE bugs or insects.

One man wrote that he was a genius in the eyes of his wife when he sucked a horde of insects off the porch screen with the vacuum hose. He went on to say that the color of his wife's eyes changed later that night after he had placed the vacuum in the house and had forgotten to cover the opening of the hose or empty the vacuum bag.

You probably guessed it right. The insects were not killed when sucked up the hose, and during the night they found their way out of the hose and filled the house with their buzzing and crawling. And his wasn't a letter of laughter, either...

Smithsonian Art Exhibit at Paltz

Motion quality is a characteristic of 23 contemporary paintings, sculptures, and constructions to be exhibited at State University College Art Gallery, New Paltz, November 29 to December 15 under the auspices of the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service.

John Goodyear, Lebanon, N. J., a pioneer in optical art, creates constructions with movable grids for the coming New Paltz show, and Reginald Neal, also of Lebanon, prints his designs on two surfaces which appear to be in motion as the viewer moves past them.

All the artists represented in the display live and work in the Delaware River Valley, and the exhibit was organized and first seen at Lafayette College, Easton, Pa. It is circulating throughout the U. S. and Canada.

Other artists shown are Richard Anuszkiewicz, Frenchtown, N. J., whose use of color to create subtle after-images gives the impression of motion; Clarence Carter, Milford, N. J., whose paintings, by use of an almost violent perspective, appear to pull the spectator toward the canvas; and Edward Higgins, Easton, who juxtaposes smooth white epoxy and rough textured welded steel to create new forms.

Gallery hours are 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. weekdays and 9 a. m. to 3 p. m. Saturdays.

RVCS Singers In State Choir

Three students of Rondout Valley Central High School have received the signal honor of being selected to participate in the 1967 All-State Choir, Dec. 4-6 at the Concord Hotel, Lake Klamath. All members of the junior class, they are Nancy Boss, first alto, Suzanne Friedman, second alto, and Dale Mayberry, first tenor.

The All-State Choir will be directed by Luther Goodhart and the All-State Band, choir and Orchestra concert is slated Wednesday evening, Dec. 6.

The trio was selected by audition during one of the 24 such sessions held throughout the state. Other local singers selected in the stiff competition were: Emily York, R. C. Ketcham High School, Wappingers Falls; Pamela Gray, Liberty Central School; Angelo Garcia, Delaware Valley Central School; James Raab and John Thorn, Poughkeepsie High School; Fred Pirog, Pine Bush Central School; and Edward McSweeney, New Paltz Central School.

The 'Now Generation' Cries: 'Make Love, Not War'

In this last of a series, a highly respected writer-reporter discusses today's "Fun Morality."

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

"Make love, not war."

It's a small, tin lapel button, and a troubled number of America's youth wear it pinned over their hearts like a badge of honor. Crazy kids. Long hair and love. Gone wild, the whole lot of them. No morals.

The little tin button, however, raises an embarrassing question:

Which is, in truth, the more immoral—required passion, or recruited killing?

Don't answer that, Dad. The kid may have the upper hand here. He can get out the bible, if need be, and show passages. You've got three centuries of Puritan mores on your side, but he'll claim Jesus Christ would say the making of love is right, and the making of war is wrong. Want to argue?

It's not easy for an adult, for a member of the so-called establishment, to cast aside a lifetime of whispering about sex and of accepting war as a patriotic necessity—to throw in the Puritanical sponge and suddenly concede that his rebellious young ones may have a point.

So adults tend to grope along blindly, and with some anger ("Damn, I didn't start the Viet Nam war, why do they keep throwing it up to me?") to find what's going wrong.

Why is a still relatively small, but growing and noisy, segment of the "Now Generation" openly advocating sexual freedom, psychedelic experiences and marijuana—while "putting down" such revered concepts as matrimony, Sunday school and materialism? When a teenager says he'd rather live on rice and not (marijuana) than be President of either General Motors or the United States, he's sick. Right?

Or perhaps it's just growing pains he's suffering from; he's busy outgrowing a moral ethic that is three centuries old, and searching for new values. "Kids are getting tired of being told they should be 'adjusted,'" says Wit-Philosopher Sam Levenson. "Adjusted to what— to war? To corruption? Maybe it's better to be maladjusted in today's society."

And psychiatric studies have claimed to prove that the unruly rebels among America's youth, typified by the "Hippies" movement, have higher IQ's than the little conformists.

Amid the uncomfortable, all-out revolution against the Puritan ethic, thoughtful people are asking: Is morality dying? Is it dead?

"By most people's standards, war is immoral," said a Protestant minister who will be anonymous. "Youth has made the morality of Vietnam an issue now, and we are forced to see that as long as governments are morally lawless, the people inside cannot be expected to obey moral laws."

"I happen to feel that a moral act is not obedience to any specific law, divine or man made, but rather the fulfilling of one's real self. Young people today see love as their self-fulfillment. With love as their moral ethic, they can only look upon the old sexual taboos as absurd. With this generation, then, the barriers against a certain sexual freedom must be lowered."

The clergyman pointed out that self-fulfillment can only come through self-discipline. And he hopes that these "children, many of whom are fired with the spirit of liberty without the basic education to precede it, can learn to discipline themselves."

They will have to learn self-discipline before self-indulgence the hard way. Through experience. As a psychologist pointed out, "these are the graduates of the school of permissiveness in the home. They were not taught how to handle a fire before they played with it. Some of them will get burned."

On the way to the conflagration, what is happening? More and more college students are living together, openly, without the bonds of matrimony. They think this is an honest, natural way to live, especially since an ever-increasing number of youth look upon the institution of marriage as a questionable road to permanent enjoyment of life.

I recently interviewed a pretty Magna Cum Laude graduate of Smith College, who confessed she was "engaged"—but she didn't know exactly what she was engaged in doing.

"Many of us are concerned as to whether marriage is the most favorable atmosphere for bringing up children," she said seriously. "So often married couples are not happy together, and that passes on to the children and never leaves them. We're studying the communal living idea where children are brought up by the entire group instead of only by the parents. We believe it would be a more loving environment for the young than a marriage situation."

Writes Rev. Earl H. Brill, chaplain at American University:

"Talking with today's youth one gets the impression that they are willing to consider marriage, but that they are going to require real persuasion. If this trend continues, we may see far fewer marriages. As marriages decline in number, and there are more single people, they can be expected to make their own demands upon the social order. The result may be that singleness will be regarded as being just as normal and as desirable as marriage."

Reverend Brill finds this idea healthy. "When marriage becomes a matter of genuine choice—when people no longer feel that they really ought to get married because they are 25, gainfully employed, and probably should settle down—then they may begin to get married for only one reason: they really want to. Just think!

People getting married because they want to... many of our problem marriages will not get started."

While youth (not to mention educators, sociologists, clergymen and philosophers) consider the future of marriage, physical togetherness goes on with business as usual.

The greatest change in sexual morality, as America has known it for centuries, is taking place among young women. Discovery of "the pill" for birth control probably stepped up the sexual freedom revolution more than any other single factor... although many adult authorities also point to the fact that it is the older generation itself that has helped push their young females into relationships with young males.

"Our young people are not sex-obsessed," wrote Prof. Lester Kirkendall of Oregon State University. "The culture is. We use sex to sell products, as a come-on. By the time they are in their teens, our youth are moving very close to a full physical relationship. The girl particularly is being pushed into marriage. This is one of the immoral things our culture does for girls. A girl feels extremely pressured to demonstrate she has the kind of attractiveness that is going to satisfy a boy."

And a boy is not considered normal unless he responds.

Of course, some of our youth are too young to get "the pill" from a doctor. For these children, the sexual freedom of the new '60s ethic has certain complications. The Connecticut State Department of Health has estimated that one 13-year-old girl out of every six in that state will become pregnant, out of wedlock, before she is 20. There are "sex clubs" in high schools scattered about the land. In California, a survey of junior and senior high school girls revealed that 121 out of 12,136 of them were pregnant, proudly pregnant. Pregnancy, said a doctor, "is a status symbol in the culture of fun morality. It proves you are wanted."

"The fun morality." It has replaced "the Puritan morality." That is what's happening.

The pursuit of happiness, wherever it lies—in sex, in drugs, in ancient pre-Christian religions, in loud and shrill music, in abandoned dance, in speed, in the rejection of all that is stodgy and hypocritical, in freedom, freedom, freedom. Sometimes it is a heartbreaking and futile pursuit; the suicide rate among youth has never been higher in the nation's history. It is certainly a family-breaking search; the old generation and the new have never been so widely, excruciatingly split on ideas and ideals.

Did today's youth kill morality—as many adults believe, as they shake their heads at the behavior and attitudes of the young rebels?

Or did the Puritan code come to a violent death because it was hypocritical, dishonest and unhealthy—as the young rebels claim?

And will a new code of ethics gradually be formed to pull America out of the moral muddle in which she now flounders?

Faced with agonizing questions like this, citizens of the old mores were quick to reply, "God only knows."

But today—when even some members of the clergy preach that God is dead—the answers are as elusive as morality itself.

Three Kingston area residents are among 830 freshmen and transfer students enrolled at State University College at Potsdam. They are: Frances Embree, 144-A, RD 3, Kingston, liberal arts; Kathy Ann Robertson, 5 Melissa Road, Kingston, liberal arts with a major in mathematics; and Mary Art Swenson, 13 Accord, liberal arts with a major in English.

On Tuesday evening, November 28th, at 8 p. m. in the nurses' residence, the Kingston Hospital Auxiliary will meet for a social evening.

At this time the Kingston Hospital will recognize the many hours of service rendered by the volunteers with the presentation of awards. All interested persons are invited to attend.

John P. Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Thompson, 44 Hoffman Street, Kingston, is enrolled as a sophomore at Biscayne College, Miami, Fla., where he is majoring in the field of humanities.

Biscayne College, a four year liberal arts college for men conducted by the Augustinian Fathers, was established in Bachelor of Arts degree in humanities with majors in English and history; science with majors in chemistry and mathematics; and business with majors in accounting and business administration.

The student body at Biscayne now numbers 357 with a faculty of 31. It is the second youngest college in the nation to have a Woodrow Wilson recipient, as well as one of the youngest, private colleges for men.

There will be a meeting of the Ulster County Democratic Women's Club Tuesday at 8 p. m. in the YWCA, 209 Clinton Avenue, Kingston. All members are urged to attend as plans will be made for the annual Christmas party.

Colonial Rebekah Lodge No. 48 will hold a card party Monday evening at 8 o'clock at the corner of Broadway and Brewster Street. The public is invited.

The Ladies Society of Santa Maria will hold a meeting Tuesday at 8 p. m. at St. Mary's Hall. All members are urged to attend. Final plans for the Christmas Party, scheduled for December 2, will be discussed.

Hints From Heloise

Dear Heloise: I liked the hint you printed awhile ago about sucking up mosquitoes with the hose of a tank vacuum cleaner.

I also use it for another purpose. When I'm vacuuming the floor, I look up and around. If I see a cobweb, or a spider web, I hold the end of the vacuum wand near it and... whoosh! it vanishes up the hose.

This way I don't have to wash, rub or pick the cobwebs off the broom, stick or whatever I used to wipe them down with.

You are right! Just be careful if you suck up LIVE bugs or insects.

One man wrote that he was a genius in the eyes of his wife when he sucked a horde of insects off the porch screen with the vacuum hose. He went on to say that the color of his wife's eyes changed later that night after he had placed the vacuum in the house and had forgotten to cover the opening of the hose or empty the vacuum bag.

You probably guessed it right. The insects were not killed when sucked up the hose, and during the night they found their way out of the hose and filled the house with their buzzing and crawling. And his wasn't a letter of laughter, either...

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Beth Richards, a 17-year-old blonde from Dansville, leads 24 other hopefuls into tonight's finals of the 1968 New York State Junior Miss contest.

Miss Richards won the first-place trophies for party-planning and youth fitness in Friday's preliminary competition. Gail P. Bemerski, 17, of Syracuse, was named winner of the creative and performing arts category and Nancy Burr of Le Roy won the poise and appearance title.

Tonight's winner will earn the right to compete in the National Junior Miss contest next March in Mobile, Ala.

Pollution Exhibit To Open on Monday
An exhibit highlighting problems of environmental pollution and some possible cures will open in the Dutchess Hall gallery at Dutchess Community College Monday.

"One of the most acute problems to threaten our present and future environment is pollution," commented Albert Feldman, assistant professor in the DCC biology dept.

"It may be caused by natural forces, such as ragweed pollen and silt in our rivers, or it may be man-made, such as automobile exhausts in the air and untreated sewage in our waterways," he explained.

The Dutchess exhibit will consider water and air pollution, pesticides, research, and monitoring.

Urge Expansion Of West Point Facilities

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—A 15-man board of visitors recommended Friday that funds be allocated for expansion of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y.

The funds should include money for a new academic building, a cadet union and cadet barracks, the board said.

The board, made up of nine members of Senate and House, two generals, two university presidents, an industrialist and a labor union president, made the recommendations in a report released by President Johnson.

The board also suggested that: —The Army seek the most qualified and dedicated uniformed officers for the faculty and emphasize that a career as a faculty member is a highly desirable assignment.

—The number of permanent associate professors be increased from 15 to 40 to 50.

—Faculty tenure, composition, prestige, rank and pay be submitted to a comprehensive review.

The board gave the academy good grades in morale, discipline, training and "carrying out its missions in an outstanding manner."

Clinton County Cites Medicaid In County Tax

PLATTSBURGH, N.Y. (AP) — The Clinton County Board of Supervisors, citing heavy costs imposed by the Medicaid program has voted to levy a 3 per cent sales tax in the county.

The tax would aid in balancing a proposed budget of $4,256,000—80 per cent larger than the current fiscal program.

The board, in taking the action Friday night, noted that the county's Medicaid costs were double the $1.5 million appropriated for that purpose in the current fiscal year.

The plan calls for one per cent of the sales tax to become effective next March 1 and the other 2 per cent by March 1, 1969, or sooner if the county works out an agreement with the City of Plattsburgh, Plattsburgh already levies a 2 per cent city sales tax.

Court Rebuffs Council 50 Try On CSEA Edict

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The New York State Employees Council 50 was rebuffed Friday in an attempt to obtain a court order restraining Gov. Rockefeller's administration from bargaining with the Civil Service Employees Association.

The decision of Supreme Court Justice John H. Pennock, in refusing to grant an order, apparently cleared the way for state-CSEA negotiations to begin next Monday, as scheduled.

Council 50, part of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO, had sought to be designated the bargaining agent for 124,000 state employees.

The union moved for court action after Rockefeller had selected the CSEA as the bargaining agent. The governor acted under a new law authorizing the state to bargain collectively with a group representing state workers.

Council 50 appealed to Pennock, arguing that the governor's decision was not based on evidence and that Rockefeller did not follow the purpose of the law on government-employee relations when he recognized the CSEA.

Pennock responded, however, that the governor had "done exactly what the statute has authorized him to do." That is, by basing his decision on the number of deductions for state employees for CSEA membership and other evidence, he was operating within the law.

Pennock said in his decision: "If the Legislature desired that he be bound by a more stringent regulation such as designation from each employee, then it could have simply stated so in the law."

"It would seem that to grant a stay of the executive process at this point would be an abortive attempt by the court to disrupt the orderly process as designed by legislative process and to inject itself into an administrative proceeding still pending with basis in fact or law."

Rockefeller's designation of the CSEA does not cover members of the State Police or professional employees of the State University.

Council 50 also has asked the Public Employment Relations Board for recognition and reversal of the governor's designation.

Priest Struck, Is Robbed of Bingo Money
BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Two young men who knocked a Roman Catholic priest to the sidewalk and took $1,000 in bingo prize money he was carrying were sought by city police today.

Investigators said the Rev. William G. Warthing, 31, had withdrawn the money from a nearby bank Friday and placed it in a brown paper bag. He was struck from behind about 25 yards from the rectory of St. Nicholas Church, where he lived. He was not injured seriously, police said.

The money, in small bills and coins, was to have been distributed to winners at a church bingo party Friday night.

The church is at 18 Welker St. on Buffalo's near East Side.

Dog Killing In Saugerties Going to Court

On Sunday morning, Nov. 12, in the Churchland area north of Saks Mushroom Plant near Saugerties, Buster, 10 and Goldie, 5, two black and tan beagles, were felled by blasts from a shotgun while hunting with their master, Arthur G. Sperl, 1 North Street, Saugerties.

An autopsy revealed that one of the dogs died instantly and the other had been shot twice.

Outraged and indignant, Sperl offered a $50 reward to anyone supplying law enforcement officers with information leading to positive identification of the person or persons involved in the killing of the dogs. Monday night the matter goes before a local Saugerties justice.

Mrs. Sperl confided this morning that responses to the reward advertisement had been encouraging. Although she wouldn't elaborate, Mrs. Sperl disclosed that the matter would come to a head Monday before a local judge.

Dog is still man's best friend, apparently.

More Murders In New York During '67

NEW YORK (AP) — Police statistics show that 617 persons were murdered in New York City during the first 10 months of 1967, an increase of 82, or 13 per cent over the comparable period last year.

Figures for other crimes of violence, compiled for a nine-month period, also show an increase. Felonious assaults jumped more than 15 per cent over 1966. Robberies during a nine-month period were up more than 30 per cent.

The statistics showed 20,713 persons were seriously injured in attacks or assaulted with dangerous weapons from Jan. 1 through September of this year, compared with 17,236 for the first nine months of 1966.

Robbery victims totaled 25,633, compared with 15,208 a year ago.

A police spokesman said there was no immediate explanation for the increase in crime but that a study would be made when figures for the entire year became available.

Police Commissioner Howard Leary noted earlier this week in a news conference that there is a general increase in crime throughout the world. He said people today are less self-disciplined, they use weapons instead of words.

Area Resident Exhibits Photos At Trade Show

An exhibit of commercial industrial photos by a Dutchess Community College staff member will be one of the features of the Chemical Engineering Trade Show that will open for a week at the Coliseum in New York City Monday.

Fred Sass, who teaches photography at DCC, will have his work featured in the exhibit sponsored by the Rotron Manufacturing Corp., Woodstock.

Sass, who lives in Red Hook, took the product and plant photo over a period of nearly three years.

Measles' Problems Cited, Vaccine Importance Stated

In stressing the importance of measles vaccine Edward Crosby, former president of the Ulster County Chapter, New York State Association for Retarded Children, noted that it was not the innocent childhood disease many people believe it to be.

"About 4,000 of the several million children who contract measles during a normal year will develop encephalitis, an inflammation of the brain which can lead to emotional problems and mental retardation. On behalf of the Ulster County Association for Retarded Children, I urge all parents to have their children receive immunization from measles. The vaccine is readily available. Your family doctor or the health clinic can make sure that your child does not run the risk of brain damage due to measles."

The following statement was made by Mrs. Guy William Fisher during National Retarded Children's Week:

"My daughter, Kim, was a beautiful baby. She was very bright and quick to do things. She was sitting up when she was only five months old and said 'Mommy' when she was 10 months old. By the time she had her first birthday she was saying complete sentences, she was walking and even toilet-trained."

"When Kim was two she had the measles. If we thought at all about it, I suppose my husband and I were glad to get it over with so soon. . . . after all, every child gets measles. . . . it's nothing to worry about. . . . But for us it turned out there was plenty to worry about. Kim ran a high fever and was a very sick little girl. Then the doctor told us she had measles encephalitis and explained that it was inflammation of the brain. After that, she just wasn't the Kim we had known. . . . and she never will be. Even though she is making wonderful progress at the special school for retarded she will always be different. . . .

"The measles vaccine came too late for Kim. But now measles can be prevented. . . . and our four younger children have had their vaccinations. Because I can see. . . . every day. . . . the terrible lasting effects that measles can have I want to do everything I can to spare others. . . . I know that every mother has so many things to do in a day and not enough hours to do them. But taking your child to the doctor for a measles vaccination can spare you years of grief, I know."

Dansville Lass Leads State Junior Misses

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Beth Richards, a 17-year-old blonde from Dansville, leads 24 other hopefuls into tonight's finals of the 1968 New York State Junior Miss contest.

Miss Richards won the first-place trophies for party-planning and youth fitness in Friday's preliminary competition. Gail P. Bemerski, 17, of Syracuse, was named winner of the creative and performing arts category and Nancy Burr of Le Roy won the poise and appearance title.

Tonight's winner will earn the right to compete in the National Junior Miss contest next March in Mobile, Ala.

Pollution Exhibit To Open on Monday

An exhibit highlighting problems of environmental pollution and some possible cures will open in the Dutchess Hall gallery at Dutchess Community College Monday.

"One of the most acute problems to threaten our present and future environment is pollution," commented Albert Feldman, assistant professor in the DCC biology dept.

"It may be caused by natural forces, such as ragweed pollen and silt in our rivers, or it may be man-made, such as automobile exhausts in the air and untreated sewage in our waterways," he explained.

The Dutchess exhibit will consider water and air pollution, pesticides, research, and monitoring.

Urge Expansion Of West Point Facilities

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A 15-man board of visitors recommended Friday that funds be allocated for expansion of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y.

The funds should include money for a new academic building, a cadet union and cadet barracks, the board said.

The board, made up of nine members of Sen. and House, two generals, two university presidents, an industrialist and a labor union president, made the recommendations in a report released by President Johnson.

The board also suggested that the Army seek the most qualified and dedicated uniformed officers for the faculty and emphasize that a career as a faculty member is a highly desirable assignment.

The number of permanent associate professors be increased from 15 to 40 to 50.

Faculty tenure, composition, prestige, rank and pay be submitted to a comprehensive review.

The board gave the academy good grades in morale, discipline, training and "carrying out its missions in an outstanding manner."

Clinton County Cites Medicaid In County Tax

PLATTSBURGH, N.Y. (AP) — The Clinton County Board of Supervisors, citing heavy costs imposed by the Medicaid program, has voted to levy a 3 percent sales tax in the county.

The tax would add in balancing a proposed budget of $4,256,000—80 per cent larger than the current fiscal year.

The board, in taking the action Friday night, noted that the county's Medicaid costs were double the $1.5 million appropriated for that purpose in the current fiscal year.

The plan calls for one per cent of the sales tax to become effective next March 1 and the other 2 per cent by March 1, 1969, or sooner if the county works out an agreement with the City of Plattsburgh, Plattsburgh already levies a 2 per cent city sales tax.

Nov. 25, 1947—A 120-foot, 11-ton steel smoke stack crashed through the roof of the Fort Packing Company. There were no injuries.

A special meeting of the Common Council was set to determine if the city should keep all parking meters as originally installed.

Nov. 25, 1957—Hen turkeys were selling at the Gov. Clinton Market for 49 cents a pound. The local Grand Union store was selling turkeys for 45 cents a pound.

A 20-year old hunter from Hicksville, L.I. was accidentally shot to death by his brother near Fleischmanns. The man was hit in the head with a bullet from a 30.06 rifle.

Court Rebuffs Council 50 Try On CSEA Edict

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The New York State Employees Council 50 was rebuffed Friday in an attempt to obtain a court order restraining Gov. Rockefeller's administration from bargaining with the Civil Service Employees Association.

The decision of Supreme Court Justice John H. Pennock, in refusing to grant an order, apparently cleared the way for state-CSEA negotiations to begin next Monday, as scheduled.

Council 50, part of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO, had sought to be designated the bargaining agent for 124,000 state employees.

The union moved for court action after Rockefeller selected the CSEA as the bargaining agent. The governor acted under a new law authorizing the state to bargain collectively with a group representing state workers.

Council 50 appealed to Pennock, arguing that the governor's decision was not based on evidence and that Rockefeller did not follow the purpose of the law on government-employee relations when he recognized the CSEA.

Pennock responded, however, that the governor had "done exactly what the statute has authorized him to do." That is, by basing his decision on the number of dues-deductors for state employees for CSEA membership and other evidence, he was operating within the law.

Pennock said in his decision: "If the Legislature desired that he be bound by a more stringent regulation such as designation from each employee, then it could have simply stated so in the law."

"It would seem that to grant a stay of the executive process at this point would be an abortive attempt by the court to disrupt the orderly process as designed by legislative process and to inject itself into an administrative proceeding still pending with basis in fact or law."

Rockefeller's designation of the CSEA does not cover members of the State Police or professional employees of the State University.

Council 50 also has asked the Public Employment Relations Board for recognition and reversal of the governor's designation.

Priest Struck, Is Robbed of Bingo Money

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Two young men who knocked a Roman Catholic priest to the sidewalk and took $1,000 in bingo prize money he was carrying were sought by city police today.

Investigators said the Rev. William G. Warthling, 31, had withdrawn the money from a nearby bank Friday and placed it in a brown paper bag. He was struck from behind, about 25 yards from the rectory of St. Nicholas Church, where he lived. He was not injured seriously, police said.

The money, in small bills and coins, was to have been distributed to winners at a church bingo party Friday night.

Measles' Problems Cited, Vaccine Importance Stated

In stressing the importance of measles vaccine Edward Crosby, former president of the Ulster County Chapter, New York State Association for Retarded Children, noted that it was not the innocent childhood disease many people believe it to be.

"About 4,000 of the several million children who contract measles during a normal year will develop encephalitis, an inflammation of the brain which can lead to emotional problems and mental retardation. On behalf of the Ulster County Association for Retarded Children, I urge all parents to have their children receive immunization from measles. The vaccine is readily available. Your family doctor or the health clinic can make sure that your child does not run the risk of brain damage due to measles."

The following statement was made by Mrs. Guy William Fisher during National Retarded Children's Week:

"My daughter, Kim, was a beautiful baby. She was very bright and quick to do things. She was sitting up when she was only five months old and said 'Mommy' when she was 10 months old. By the time she had her first birthday she was saying complete sentences, she was walking and even toilet-trained.

"When Kim was two she had the measles. If we thought at all about it, I suppose my husband and I were glad to get it over with so soon. After all, every child gets measles. But for us it turned out there was plenty to worry about. Kim ran a high fever and was a very sick little girl. Then the doctor told us she had measles encephalitis and explained that it was inflammation of the brain. After that, she just wasn't the Kim we had known. . . and she never will be. Even though she is making wonderful progress at the special school for retarded she will always be different.

"The measles vaccine came too late for Kim. But now measles can be prevented. . . and our four younger children have had their vaccinations. Because I can see every day the terrible lasting effects that measles can have I want to do everything I can to spare others.

"I know that every mother has so many things to do in a day and not enough hours to do them. But taking your child to the doctor for a measles vaccination can spare you years of grief. I know."

Harlem Globetrotters Win Before Record Crowd

Beat Nationals 102-86 Before More Than 2,500

The Harlem Globetrotters, those world renowned magicians of the basketball court, returned to Kingston last night and were greeted by the largest crowd ever to witness an indoor sports event in the history of the city.

Everything else was predictable—the Trotters won, defeating the New York Nationals, 102-86 with a last quarter surge, but the huge SRO through was the real story at the field house.

More than 2,500 spectators packed every nook and cranny in the huge field house and several hundred were turned away when officials of the Kingston Fire Department ordered the sale of tickets halted.

Not since the Original Renaissance forced firemen to close the doors of the municipal auditorium for a game with the Kingston Colonials more than 30 years ago has the city seen such a huge outpouring of spectators for a sports contest.

Follow the Format

The game was filled with thrills and fun superlative basketball, legerdemain, high quality vaudeville acts, the incomparable dribbling of Leon Hillard, the peerless buffoonery of Bob (Showboat) Hall, J. C. Gipson and Hubie Ausbie. In short, it was a night that those who attended are not likely to forget.

Adding the hilarity and fun was Referee Joe Celiccano of Hartford, a short, rotund, rolypoly arbiter who meshes into the Trotters' comic routine with great skill and thespian finesse. The timing of some of the Trotters' capers is fantastic and one dare not blink his eyes for fear he will miss something.

The warmup show with the Trotters' trademark tune Sweet Georgia Brown set the tempo for the memorable night of fun, frolic and basketball.

Stage Late Surge

For those puritans who care about statistics when the Trotters play, let record show that the Trotters turned on the steam when the Nationals crept to within 74-70 in the third period.

The Trotters went ahead 38-24 in the first period and led 59-46 at halftime. They poured in 28-16 in the fourth quarter when everybody got into the act to preserve the team's unbeaten record—now extending over a six-year period.

Leon Robertson, a newcomer to the Trotter array, led with 18 points. Bob (Showboat) Hall scored 16 points, some on "baskets" that would get another player arrested. The Nationals were a solid, hard-driving team but anytime they got too frisky the Trotters moved into their blinding pass routines and assumed the offensive.

The Trotters' vaudeville offerings—before the game and between halves—was strictly of Old Palace calibre. There were two jugglers, a contortionist, and a trampoline act that could play any theatre in the world.

It was a memorable sports night in Kingston sports history. The YMCA, sponsors of the contest, were also the big winners.

There was an added touch of class to the proceedings when Peg Leg Bates, famed dancer and former Globetrotter performer threw up the first ball to get the game under way.

Bates now owns a night club at Kerhorickson. The score:

Harlem Globetrotters (102)

Pick Colts Over 49ers For 11th Straight Time

Associated Press Sports Writer

Johnny Unitas is going great, the season is more than two-thirds gone, and Baltimore is unbeaten. But the Colts still fighting for their lives in the National Football League's Coastal Division.

The Colts, 8-0-2, have only a one-half game lead over Los Angeles, which kept the pressure on the Colts with a 31-7 rout of Detroit on Thanksgiving Day. That boosted the defensively-tough Rams' record to 8-1-2 and put the Colts in a position of needing a victory or a tie against San Francisco Sunday to stay ahead.

The Colts, who beat the 49ers 41-7 at Baltimore earlier this season, are heavily favored to do it again in San Francisco. The Colts now have a string of 10 straight victories against the 49ers.

In the other NFL games on a trimmed-down Sunday schedule, Green Bay, 7-2-1, is at Chicago, 5-5; Washington, 4-4-2, is at Cleveland, 6-4; Philadelphia, 5-5, is at New York, 5-5; Minnesota, 2-6-2, is at Pittsburgh 2-7-1, and Atlanta, 1-8-1, is at New Orleans, 1-9.

Only two games are scheduled in the American Football League, Boston, 3-7-1, at Houston, 5-3-1, and Buffalo, 3-7, at Miami, 1-8.

Seek Unbeaten Season
Unitas, the Colts' all-around quarterback, shares the League's No. 1 passer rating with Washington's Sonny Jurgensen, and is leading Baltimore in its quest of becoming the first unbeaten team in the league in 25 years. Willie Richardson of the Colts is the league's leading receiver.

The game is part of a television (CBS-TV) doubleheader to most of the country.

The Packers, with sub running backs Ben Wilson and Donny Anderson still filling in for injured Jim Grabowski and Elijah Pitts, could clinch the Central Division title with a victory at Chicago. The Bears, 2½ games back, must win to keep alive their chances. The Packers won the first meeting this year 13-10, but Jack Conamon passed for 336 yards and three touchdowns in the Bears' last outing.

The Redskins will match their passing game of Jurgensen to Jerry Smith, Bobby Mitchell and Charley Taylor against Cleveland's ground game of Leroy Kelly and Ernie Green. The Redskins still have a chance in the Capitol Division while the Browns lead the Century by one game.

The Philadelphia-New York affair also is a big game for each, with the Giants sharing the No. 2 spot in the Century and the Eagles needing a victory to stay alive in the Capitol. Each is bothered with injuries.

Negro Athletes Divided Over Boycott Threat

LOS ANGELES (AP)—America's Negro athletes were divided in their reaction today to plans of one group, hoping to illustrate racial discontent, to boycott the 1968 Olympic Games.

A spokesman for the amateur sports classic expressed dismay at such a possibility but said he thought the Negroes who refuse to compete with lose most.

Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, said the United States can find enough talented white athletes if necessary to represent it in the October games in Mexico City.

In the 1964 games at Tokyo, 22 of the 126 medals won by Americans went to Negroes.

After hearing of the decision announced by a Negro youth conference in Los Angeles, Brundage said in nearby Santa Barbara:

"These misguided young men are being badly advised. If these boys are serious, they're making a very bad mistake."

Several Negro athletic stars, including Rafer Johnson and Ralph Boston, echoed Brundage's comment that those who refuse to compete would "only be depriving themselves of an opportunity that comes once in a lifetime."

Notre Dame Pressed To Nip Miami, 24-22

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Breaking with Terry Hanratty getting 49 up a two-point Miami conversion pass with three minutes to go, Notre Dame squeezed by the Hurricanes 24-22 Friday night in a game that left the biggest football crowd in Florida history in a state of nervous exhaustion.

"It was a helluva ballgame," said Notre Dame coach Ara Parseghian after Bob Olson broke up Bill Miller's pass and kept the Irish among the nation's top ten football teams.

Miami hit Notre Dame with a 16-point barrage in the second period, dropped behind 24-16 in the fourth, then fell just short in a last ditch drive for a tie.

If Miller's conversion pass after the last Miami touchdown had connected, the teams would have deadlocked for the second time in a row.

They battled to a scoreless standoff in their last meeting in 1965.

At the half, with Notre Dame trailing by six points, Parseghian said he told the team: "This is the fourth year we have been in the top ten. You've got to go out there and stay in the top ten."

The sixth-ranked Irish responded by forging ahead on a one-yard run by sophomore fullback Fred Zimmerman and clinching the victory with a 10-yard gallop by Bob Gladieux.

The victory before 77,265 fans, snapped a six-game winning streak by the Hurricanes.

Trailing 3-0 entering the second period, Miami shocked the Irish by scoring twice in two minutes.

David Olivo passed nine yards to Doug McGee for the first touchdown after a 49-yard punt return by Jimmy Dye. On the next kickoff, Phil Tracy recovered Dan Harshman's fumble on the Notre Dame 12 and Olivo scored from the one.

Notre Dame struck 62 yards for a touchdown in four plays.

Uhl and Chando Lead UCC Stats

Ulster hit of 40 shots in 95 tries for 42.1 per cent. Post was 34-93 for 36.6 per cent.

Rebounds—Hanna 11, Uhl and Quill, 10; Boines 8, Roselli 8, Zilliox 6, Horn 4, Chando 2.

Assists—Uhl 7, Chando 5, Hannah, Zilliox, Roselli, Quill, 1 each.

UCC converted 27 of 39 free throw attempts for 69.2 per cent; Post was 13-25 for 52 per cent.

Courtney Tops In Puerto Open

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)—Unless his game collapses completely in the last two rounds Chuck Courtney seems well on his way to victory in the Puerto Rico Open golf tournament, the second stop on the Caribbean tour.

The pro from La Jolla, Calif., continued to set a blistering pace Friday in the competition over the Dorado Hilton and Country Club links. He opened up a five-stroke lead with a second round 4-under-par 68 for a 36-hole total of 135.

Art Wall, of Honesdale, Pa., shot a 69 and moved into second place with a 140. David Jimenez of Puerto Rico also carded a 69 for third place at 141.

The Pentagon brass which appears to have trouble enough in other areas these days says the Army football team cannot accept a post-season bowl invitation.

We move the question, Mr. Chairman, why not?

Because, says the Pentagon:

"It was concluded that accepting an invitation to play in a post-season bowl game would tend to emphasize football to an extent not consistent with the basic mission of the Academy, which is to produce career Army officers . . ."

Come on, sirs, you must be putting us on. Or have you forgotten the fact that the military academy fielded football teams during the war years, World War II, we mean. And you wouldn't compare the nation's involvement in World War II with the Vietnam struggle, would you?

WE SUBMIT, SIRS, that if it is not consistent with Army's basic mission to accept a bowl invitation, the mission was equally compromised during the regular 10-game schedule of the 1967 season. The "international situation" you speak about will be as acute on Jan. 1, 1968, as it has been since the first Army football game was played last September.

How stuffy and hypocritical can we get gentlemen? We doubt that the acceptance of a bowl bid by Army would cause a ripple of protest across the country. If it's wrong to play in a bowl game, as you have pre-judged, it was equally wrong to play 10 football games during the 1967 season.

The nation survived professional football, baseball, basketball, yes, even Army football in World War II which involved 35 million soldiers around the world. We must assume the country still would be here on Jan. 2, 1968, if Army played a bowl game on New Year's Day.

Wasn't it General MacArthur who wrote those memorable lines about the seeds sown on the athletic fields of combat might be paying off on other battlefields on other days? Aren't these words as true today as they were when Army was playing football during World War II, gentlemen? Or do you now wish to disown them?

Here's what San Diego defensive back Les Duncan says went on in his mind:

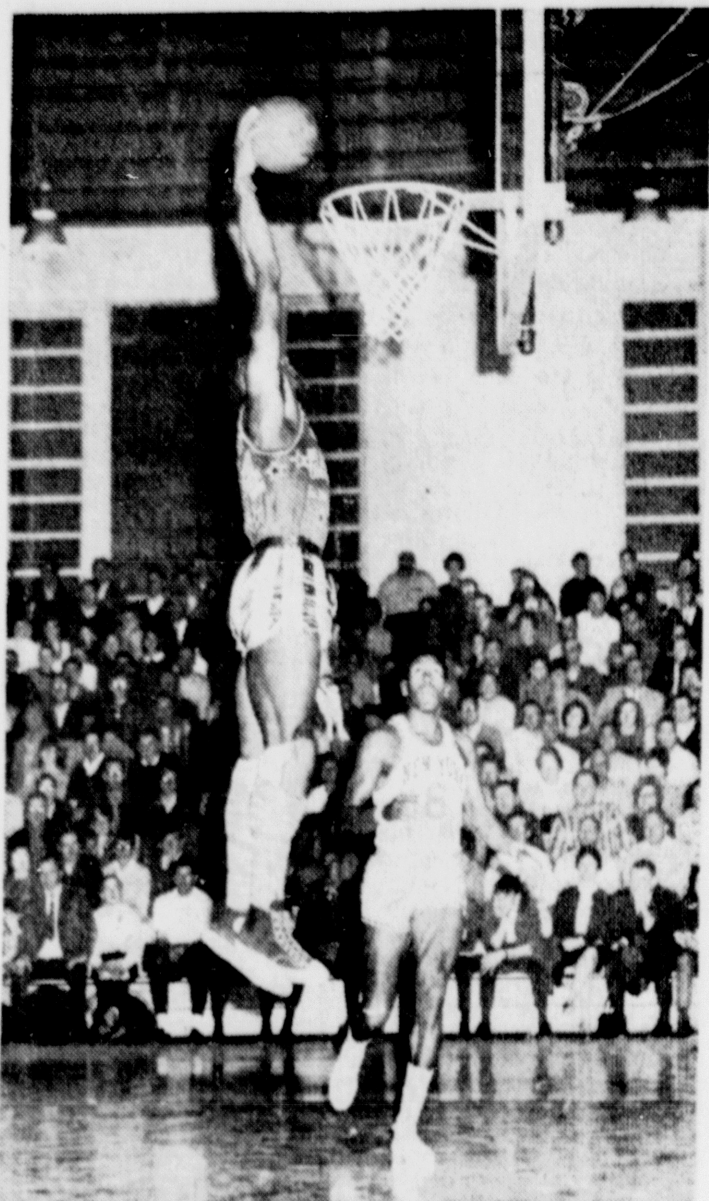

"I prayed to the Lord he should miss. But I told the Lord that he should miss only if we were the better team. The better team should always win."

P.S.—Stenerud's field goal attempt failed.

A FEW SHORT TAKES: Jim Tyrell's Fan Club clamored for the hard hitting newscaster to get out and hold KHS against NFA Turkey Day. Big Jim wasn't buying. It was too cozy in the broadcasting booth, the amateur. Tia Juana brass and off-key trumpets, notwithstanding . . . John Demenkov of New Paltz won a varsity football letter at Bowdoin College . . . A tip to the KHS Key Club—next year when you publish the Turkey Day program, please use bigger type for the squad rosters . . . All-America Eugene Ventriglia led Kingston Sport Club scerers with 13 goals in the first half of the German-American Association's League Division. Runerup was Elliott Obbie-Asare, the Ghanaian ace, with nine and Jim (please not, Tony) Reinhardt had six. Ten players in all figured in the scoring for the Kickers. Goalie Timo Liekoski, an articulate, handsome young lad, racked up three shutouts in the 10-game schedule . . . For the third consecutive year, New York lists more ski centers than any other state, according to a new directory issued by the State Department of Commerce. State facilities now available include 335 slopes, 473 trails, 354 lifts and 47 snow-making installations . . . The totals reflect an increase of 19 new trails and six new chair lifts since the 1966-67 season.

WOULD YOU BELIEVE IT: The Nevele Country Club at Ellenville is throwing its biggest cocktail party of the year on Dec. 12. The guest? A horse, Nevele Pride, winner of $250,000 this year—a record amount for any 2-year-old trotter. Any nag that can bring that kind of money home deserves something better than oats, wouldn't you say?

The victory before 77,265 fans, snapped a six-game winning streak by the Hurricanes.

Trailing 3-0 entering the second period, Miami shocked the Irish by scoring twice in two minutes.

David Oliver passed nine yards over the Dorado Hilton and to Doug McGee for the first Century Club links. He opened touchdown after a 49-yard punt up a five-stroke lead with a return by Jimmy Dye. On the end round 4-under-par 68 for a next kickoff, Phil Tracy recovered Dan Harshman's fumble.

Art Wall, of Honesdale, Pa., on the Notre Dame 12 and Oliver shot a 69 and moved into second scored from the one.

Notre Dame struck 62 yards of Puerto Rico also carded a 69 for a touchdown in four plays, for third place at 141.

Uhl and Chando Lead UCC Stats

Assists—Uhl 7, Chando 5, Hanna, Zilliox, Roselli, Quill, 1 each.

UCC converted 27 of 39 free throw attempts for 69.2 per cent; Post was 13-25 for 52 per cent.

Courtney Tops In Puerto Open

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)—Unless his game collapses completely in the last two rounds Chuck Courtney seems well on his way to victory in the Puerto Rico Open golf tournament, the second stop on the Caribbean tour.

The pro from La Jolla, Calif., continued to set a blistering pace Friday in the competition over the Dorado Hilton and to Doug McGee for the first Century Club links. He opened

The Pentagon brass which appears to have trouble enough in other areas these days says the Army football team cannot accept a post-season bowl invitation.

We move the question, Mr. Chairman, why not?

Because, says the Pentagon:

Come on, sirs, you must be putting us on. Or have you forgotten the fact that the military academy fielded football teams during the war years, World War II, we mean. And you wouldn't compare the nation's involvement in World War II with the Vietnam struggle, would you?

WE SUBMIT, SIRS, that if it is not consistent with Army's basic mission to accept a bowl invitation, the mission was equally compromised during the regular 10-game schedule of the 1967 season. The "international situation" you speak about will be as acute on Jan. 1, 1968, as it has been since the first Army football game was played last September.

How stuffy and hypocritical can we get gentlemen? We doubt that the acceptance of a bowl bid by Army would cause a ripple of protest across the country. If it's wrong to play in a bowl game, as you have pre-judged, it was equally wrong to play 10 football games during the 1967 season.

The nation survived professional football, baseball, basketball, yes, even Army football in World War II which involved 35 million soldiers around the world. We must assume the country still would be here on Jan. 2, 1968, if Army played a bowl game on New Year's Day.

Wasn't it General MacArthur who wrote those memorable lines about the seeds sown on the athletic fields of combat might be paying off on other battlefields on other days? Aren't these words as true today as they were when Army was playing football during World War II, gentlemen? Or do you now wish to disown them?

Here's what San Diego defensive back Les Duncan says went on in his mind:

"I prayed to the Lord he should miss. But I told the Lord that he should miss only if we were the better team. The better team should always win."

P.S.—Stenerud's field goal attempt failed.

A FEW SHORT TAKES: Jim Tyrell's Fan Club clamored for the hard hitting newscaster to get out and hold KHS against NEA Turkey Day. Big Jim wasn't buying. It was too cozy in the broadcasting booth, the amateur Tia Juana brass and off-key trumpets, notwithstanding... John Demenokoff of New Paltz won a varsity football letter at Bowdoin College... A tip to the KHS Key Club—next year when you publish the Turkey Day program, please use bigger type for the squad rosters... All-America Eugene Ventriglia led Kingston Sport Club scorers with 13 goals in the first half of the German-American Association's League Division. Runerup was Elliott Obbie-Asare, the Ghanaian ace, with nine and Jim (please not, Tony) Reinhardt had six. Ten players in all figured in the scoring for the Kickers. Goalie Timo Lickoski, an articulate, handsome young lad, racked up three shutouts in the 10-game schedule... For the third consecutive year, New York lists more ski centers than any other state, according to a new directory issued by the State Department of Commerce. State facilities now available include 335 slopes, 473 trails, 354 lifts and 47 snow-making installations... The totals reflect an increase of 19 new trails and six new chair lifts since the 1966-67 season.

WOULD YOU BELIEVE IT? The Nevele Country Club at Ellenville is throwing its biggest cocktail party of the year on Dec. 12. The guest? A horse. Nevele Pride, winner of $250,000 this year—a record amount for any 2-year-old trotter. Any nag that can bring that kind of money home deserves something better than oats, wouldn't you say?

Ulster CCC Cagers Open Season With 107-81 Rout of Post Junior

Uhl Pops 33, Chando 19 In Easy Win

It was billed as a preliminary to the famed Harlem Globetrotters, but Ulster Community College cagers responded with a major league performance in their 1967-68 basketball opener Friday night at the Kate Walton field house.

With Joe Uhl and Rod Chando combining for a brilliant effort, the Senators overcame a halting start to crush Post Junior College of Connecticut, 107-81.

Uhl revealed as the "whole ball player" scored 33 points and Chando added 19, as Coach Mike Perry's squad hit 42.1 per cent (40-95) from the field and converted free throws at a 69.2 per cent clip on 27 for 38. Post hit 36 per cent at the foul line.

Uhl and Chando combined on a series of beautiful hand-offs, bounce passes and offensive maneuvers that must have warmed the heart of Coach Perry. With solid support from the rest of the Senators cast, the Uhl-Chando duo could make this the biggest season ever for the Senators.

When they came out of the huddle, a change of defense from man to man to a 1-2-2 zone did not help matters. Post came no closer than 15 in the remainder of the game.

The fine playing of Ty Quill in the second half and the consistent drive of Leon Hanna were invaluable to the Senators. Coach Mike Perry announced just before the game that Rod Chando and Joe Uhl had been elected co-captains.

Fourth Place Makes Foyt Tops

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP)—All A.J. Foyt has to do Sunday is finish among the top four drivers in the Rex Mays 300 road race at Riverside International Raceway. If he does, he will win the United States Auto Club championship.

Foyt was second Friday in the first day of qualifying for the Riverside race, the first race in 30 years of Indianapolis-type cars in Southern California.

Topping Friday's qualifiers was Jimmy Clark of Duns, Scotland, who piloted his Bryant Special to a course record one minute, 20.8 seconds over the 2.6-mile road course.

The time bettered George Follmer's set early this year in a Lola Chevrolet sports car—1:24.3. Clark's time equals 115.84 miles an hour; Follmer's record was 111.03 m.p.h.

Foyt, driving a Sheraton Thompson Special, blazed home in 1:21.6 for a speed of 114.705 m.p.h.

The top 10 qualifiers all drove rear-engine Fords.

Foyt has scored 3,280 points on the 19-race USAC circuit. His nearest competitor, Mario Andretti, has 2,940 points and can only win the driving championship if he wins and Foyt finishes lower than fourth.

Manley Leads Perry Como Golf

FORT PIERCE, Fla. (AP)—Despite a double bogey six on the 18th hole Friday, Hobart Manley of Savannah, Ga., was two strokes up at the start of the third round of the Perry Como Amateur Golf Tournament today.

Manley finished with a one-under par 71 to go with a 67 for a 138 total.

In the women's division, 26-year-old Debbie Austin of Oneida, N.Y., breezed to an easy first place with a two-under par 70, four strokes better than second place Dorsey Johnson of Michigan City, Ind. Miss Austin is holder of the course record, a 66 she fired two years ago in winning the Florida high school championship. She is a sophomore at Rollins College in Winter Park.

The 107 women wind up their 36-hole tournament today on the long 7,010-yard, par 72 course. Friday, they played on the 6,547 yard, par-72 course while the 301 men competing teed off on the longer course.

North Carolina's basketball team has four starters returning for the 1967-68 campaign. They are Larry Miller, Rusty Clark, Dick Grubar and Bill Bunting.

LAUREL, Md. (AP)—Chuck Baltazar rode four winners at the Laurel Race Course Friday.

Change Coach But Not Luck For Colonels

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Kentucky Colonels of the American Basketball Association got a new coach this week.

The change made no difference in the club's losing way, at least in the first game under 40-year-old Gene Rhodes.

Rhodes, former assistant coach at Western Kentucky who replaced Johnny Givens after the Colonels had lost 12 of their first 17 games, got a rude initiation by the New Orleans Buccaneers at Louisville Friday night.

The Buccaneers, Western Division leaders, hit a sizzling 51 per cent from the field and chalked up an easy 126-99 victory. Doug Moe, with 30 points; Austin Robbins, with 26; and Jack Moreland, with 25, led the winners. Louie Dampier topped Kentucky with 24.

New Jersey made it three in a row by whipping Dallas 102-93, Pittsburgh routed Houston 124-84 and Oakland downed Denver 113-90 in the other scheduled ABA games.

Bob Verga, former Duke star, scored 33 points for Dallas in his Americans at Teaneck, N.J., first appearance as a pro in his home state, but the Chaparrals Jackson led New Jersey with 20 fell behind early against the points.

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)—Ramon Sota, the defending champion from Spain now playing out of Pikesville, Md., withdrew from the Puerto Rico Open Golf Tournament Friday because of an injured wrist. He suffered the injury on his drive off the tee on the 17th hole in the first round Thursday.

MEXICO CITY, (AP)—Invitations to attend the 1968 Olympic Games as distinguished guests are in the mail to Olympic greats of the past, Mexico's organizing committee announced today.

Jesse Owens, Johnny Weissmuller, Robert Mathias and Patricia McCormick of the United States are among those invited as "athletes who in past Olympics have established new marks in the field of human achievement."

Chamberlain on Attack As 76ers Trounce Bulls

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Big Wilt Chamberlain, who would like to win the rebounding and assist titles in the National Basketball Association this year, still can score plenty of baskets in the clutch.

The 7-foot-1 Chamberlain, who holds the NBA single game scoring record of 100 points, threw in 34 to lead the champion Philadelphia 76ers over the Chicago Bulls 122-104 Friday night.

A record Chicago turnout of 10,103 saw Chamberlain click on seven of nine shots for 14 points in the final period to help keep the Bulls at bay after the 76ers had erased a 59-54 Chicago halftime lead. Wally Jones, with 24, and Chet Walker, with 21, were next high for the 76ers. Flynn Robinson topped the Bulls with 19.

Record Beats Sonics

The Seattle SuperSonics, who had scored an astounding 133-106 upset over the Boston Celtics at Philadelphia Thursday, scored 133 points again at Cleveland against Cincinnati.

They lost this time, however, as the Royals threw in 153 points to equal their club record for a single game.

It was billed as a preliminary to the famed Harlem Globetrotters, but Ulster Community College cagers responded with a major league performance in their 1967-68 basketball opener Friday night at the Kate Walton field house.

With Joe Uhl and Rod Chando combining for a brilliant effort, the Senators overcame a halting start to crush Post Junior College of Connecticut, 107-81.

Uhl revealed as the "whole ball player" scored 33 points and Chando added 19, as Coach Mike Perry's squad hit 42.1 per cent (40-95) from the field and converted free throws at a 69.2 per cent clip on 27 for 39. Post hit 36 per cent from the field and 52 per cent at the foul line.

Uhl and Chando combined on a series of beautiful hand-offs, bounce passes and offensive maneuvers that must have warmed the heart of Coach Perry. With solid support from the rest of the Senators cast, the Uhl-Chando duo could make this the biggest season ever for the Senators.

Hanna Leads Assistants

Leon Hanna made his varsity debut with 14 points and 11 rebounds to lead the team. Also in double figures were Frank Roselli (12), Bill Zilliox (11) and Ty Quill (10).

The Senators made their move when Post Junior, trailing 58-48 at the half, crept to within 4 points, 67-63, at the 14:04 mark of the second half.

Zilliox had a free throw and Uhl (13 for 31 from the floor) drilled two successive, a driving layup off a pass from Chando and one of his pet pop shots. He added two more free throws.

Roselli hit on a pass from Chando and Hanna converted a free throw for a 9-point UCC burst that zoomed UCC to a 77-63 lead. Gillis put in a free throw at 10:52 to snap the surge and make it 77-64.

Roselli retaliated with a UCC free throw at 10:35 and Chando hit from the floor to bring the Senators to the 80 mark.

Obar rimmed one for Post at 10:07. Uhl then connected with three-point play to make it 83-66.

Chamberlain on Attack As 76ers Tounce Bulls

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Big Wilt Chamberlain would like to win the rebounding and assist titles in the National Basketball Association this year, still can score plenty of baskets in the clutch.

The 7-foot-1 Chamberlain, who holds the NBA single game scoring record of 100 points, threw in 34 to lead the champion Philadelphia 76ers over the Chicago Bulls 122-104 Friday night.

A record Chicago turnout of 10,103 saw Chamberlain click on seven of nine shots for 14 points in the final period to help keep the Bulls at bay after the 76ers had erased a 59-54 Chicago half-time lead. Wally Jones, with 24, and Chet Walker, with 21, were next high for the 76ers. Flynn Robinson topped the Bulls with 19.

Record Beats Sonics

The Seattle SuperSonics, who had scored an astounding 133-106 upset over the Boston Celtics at Philadelphia Thursday, scored 133 points again at Cleveland against Cincinnati. They lost this time, however, as the Royals threw in 153 points to equal their club record for a single game.

Detroit, playing at home, beat San Diego 120-122 and San Francisco edged Los Angeles 122-121.

Tenpin Parade

Hagblom Rolls 669 For Woodstock High

Vidar Hagblom rolled games of 224, 235 and 240 to set a new individual record of 669 in the Woodstock Major league. The score was five pins higher than Rich Hilton's previous high of 664.

Berry's Insurance established a new team single mark of 1019 in the same league, bettering DeWitt Cadillac's 1007 by 12 pins.

Runnerup to Hagblom in the area was Matt Passante with 663 off lines of 223, 247, 193 in the 5-Star Classic at New Paltz.

Phil Versace decked 226-233 in the 5-Star and Tim Bilyeu (248-211) had 650 and Stan Hamman (209-249) 643 in the same league.

Art Gribbins posted 629 in the Woodstock Major. Other 600 sets included: Tony Potenza 626, George Finch 622, Al Passano 618, Len Sicker Jr. 614, Don Koepfen 608, Mike Stock 608, Hank Yochman 602.

Change Coach But Not Luck For Colonels

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Kentucky Colonels of the American Basketball Association got a new coach this week.

The change made no difference in the club's losing way, at least in the first game under 40-year-old Gene Rhodes.

Rhodes, former assistant coach at Western Kentucky who replaced Johnny Givens after the Colonels had lost 12 of their first 17 games, got a rude initiation by the New Orleans Buccaneers at Louisville Friday night.

The Buccaneers, Western Division leaders, hit a sizzling 51 per cent from the field and just before the game that Rod Chando and Joe Uhl had been elected co-captains.

The Senators play their second game next Wednesday at Albany against Albany Pharmacy.

Ulster CCC (107)	FG	FP	T

Downs Murdock

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A stretch drive carried Overcall to a victory over Murdock Hanover in the $15,000 pacing feature at Yonkers Raceway Friday night.

Overcall was timed in 2:02 1-5 and won by a head.

Peerswood finished third.

Overcall returned $5.

In other feature races at New York State harness tracks: Batavia Downs—Single Creed won the $2,500 preferred trot by 1 1/4 lengths over Miss Hanson. Proud Yankee won third, Single Creed was timed in 2:08 1-5 and paid $3.60.

Saratoga Raceway — Bomer Pat won the $1,000 pace in 2:21 over a heavy track. Blaze Boy was second and Ozzie Adios was third. Bomer Pat won by 2 1/4 lengths and returned $6.80. Saratoga's season ends tonight.

Fourth Place Makes Foyt Tops

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP)—All A.J. Foyt has to do Sunday is finish among the top four drivers in the Rex Mays 300 road race at Riverside International Raceway. If he does, he will win the United States Auto Club championship.

Foyt was second Friday in the first day of qualifying for the Riverside race, the first race in 30 years of Indianapolis-type cars in Southern California.

Topping Friday's qualifiers was Jimmy Clark of Duns, Scotland, who piloted his Bryant Special to a course record one minute, 20.8 seconds over the 2.6-mile road course.

The time bettered George Follmer's set early this year in a Lola Chevrolet sports car—1:24.3. Clark's time equals 115.84 miles an hour; Follmer's record was 111.032 m.p.h.

Foyt, driving a Sheraton Thompson Special, blazed home in 1:21.6 for a speed of 114.705 m.p.h.

The top 10 qualifiers all drove rear-engine Fords.

Foyt has scored 3,280 points on the 19-race USAC circuit. His nearest competitor, Mario Andretti, has 2,940 points and can only win the driving championship if he wins and Foyt finishes lower than fourth.

Manley Leads Perry Como Golf

PORT PIERCE, Fla. (AP)—Despite a double bogey six on the 18th hole Friday, Hobart Manley of Savannah, Ga., was two strokes up at the start of the third round of the Perry Como Amateur Golf Tournament today.

Manley finished with a one-under par 71 to go with a 67 for a 138 total.

In the women's division, 20-year-old Debbie Austin of Oneida, N.Y., breezed to an easy first place with a two-under par 70, four strokes better than second place Dorcas Johnson of Michigan City, Ind. Miss Austin is holder of the course record, a 66 she fired two years ago in winning the Florida high school championship. She is a sophomore at Rollins College in Winter Park.

The 107 women wind up their 36-hole tournament today on the long 7,016-yard, par 72 course. Friday, they played on the 6,347 yard, par-72 course while the 301 men competing teed off on the longer course.

North Carolina's basketball team has four starters returning for the 1967-68 campaign. They are Larry Mille, Rusty Clark, Dick Grubar and Bill Bunting.

scored 33 points for Dallas in his Americans at Teaneck, N.J., first appearance as a pro in his and never caught up. Tony home state, but the Chaparrals Jackson led New Jersey with 20 tell behind early against the points.

Antique Auto

Club Again

Philip Shooski has been elected to his second term as president of the Saugerties Mid-Hudson Antique Auto Club.

Others named to the slate at a recent meeting were: Robert Knaust, vice-president; Carol
Boice, Salt Point secretary;
Charles Davy, treasurer.

Gus Levy of Kingston was elected director for five years;
Wayne Schubert, also of Kingston, will serve as tour director, and Frank Overbaugh of Catskill is in charge of publicity.

The club recently held its annual banquet at the Flamingo Restaurant, followed by dancing and singing.

The next meeting will be held
Jan. 18.

Three Nursery

School Openings

There are three openings in the Community Day Nursery School held five days a week at the Dutch Arms Chapel, John Street, Saugerties.

School holidays correspond with those of the Saugerties School system, according to the Rev. Orville Hine, who may be contacted for further information.

Transportation arrangements and some scholarship money are available, according to the Rev. Mr. Hine.

A spaghetti dinner to benefit the school is planned for Friday,
Dec. 1 from 5 to 7 p. m. in the Saugerties Reformed Church hall.

Charles Fous or Eddie's Delicatessen.

New Members

A number of new members were admitted to the Sauger-ties Jaycees at the first membership rally held recently at the Flamingo Restaurant.

Among those seeking membership were Stephen Chase, Clifford Harris, Arnold Tammer and Carl Ferrero.

More involvement in the community on the part of the Jaycee organization was the subject of the program with the following persons addressing the group: Mayor Cornelius Cox, state membership chairman, Carl Mills, state treasurer, John Jankowiak and Saugerties president Larry Sasser.

Matthew Duer served as master of ceremonies and chairman of the event.

SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP) — Shirley Temple Black, whose political debut Nov. 14 at a special congressional election ended in her defeat, says she wants no part in a move by two of her supporters to get her on the Dec. 12 runoff ballot as a write-in candidate.

"My campaign is completed," the 39-year-old former child film star said on hearing of the move.

"My five headquarters have closed. I am not involved in any write-in campaign and I have not authorized any in my behalf. Furthermore, I'm going away on a vacation with my husband."

Psychiatry Topic For Forum Radio

"Psychiatry" will be the topic for the Physicians' Forum Radio Program on WGHQ AM Sunday at 1:15 p.m.

The program is one in a series presented by the Medical Society of the County of Ulster in cooperation with WGHQ.

Participating in Sunday's forum will be Dr. Emeline P. Hayward, director of Ulster County Mental Health Center; Dr. Mark A. Vandenberg, neuro-psychiatrist and Dr. Edward F. Shea whose interest in the field of mental health has been continuous since 18 years ago when he became the first chairman of the original Mental Health Sub-committee of the Ulster County TB and Health Association. That committee later grew into the Mental Health Association and was largely responsible for enlisting the public support leading to the establishment of the present Mental Health Center.

Bridge Results

The Glenrie Bridge Club held its regular fractional point game at the Elk's Club, Fair Street, and played 26 boards in a Mitchell movement.

On the North-South side Dr. and Mrs. John Olivet of Kingston took first place. On the East-West side Mr. and Mrs. C. Russell Edwards of Kingston took top spot.

On the North-South side second place went to Joseph Mautner and Nathan Katatsky of Kingston; Third spot was taken by Ted Kraut and Bud Schaefer of Kingston; Fourth place went to Miss Dorothy Maroon and Milton Tomkins of Kingston; Fifth spot went to Herbert Gertner and Dr. Victor Randel of Kingston.

On the East-West side second place went to Michael Abrams and Jim Corley of Saugerties; Third place was taken by Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Le Fevre of Hurley; Fourth spot went to Milton Dubin and Stanley Kaplan of Kingston; Fifth place was taken by Mrs. Chris Wheatcroft and Roy Wulff of Kingston.

Of Lions Club

Films of World War I combat planes in action and a narration by Rhinebeck Aerodrome owner, David Fox, were shown members of Saugerties Lions Club at a recent meeting in the Flamingo Restaurant. Fox, whose aerodrome features simulated airplane battles between World War I vintage airplanes each Sunday between June and October, presented a history of the development of the airplane.

Arrangements for the program were made by Paul Pavlovich.

During the business meeting, at which president Kenneth Harder, presided, the resignation of secretary Robert Anderson, who has moved from the area, was received. Pavlovich was appointed in his place and moves up from his position as tail twister. George Turner was named to fill out Pavlovich's term.

William Brinnier reported that he attended the first meeting of "Dollars for Scholars" steering committee. The project, which many organizations in the community are anticipating supporting, is being sponsored by the Jaycees.

Folk, Ballad
Music Subject Of Monday Club

Ballad and folk music was the subject of the program for the Monday Club of Saugerties.

Mrs. John Lowther, in whose home at Fish Creek, the meeting was held, used records of folk vocals to illustrate her talk.

She showed that history, economics and social attitudes influence the music of a people. Beginning with "Barbara Allen," a ballad brought from Scotland, and "Shenandoah," Mrs. Lowther presented to the present social comment of Simon and Garfunkel and the protest of Pete Seeger and Bob Dylan.

During the business meeting, holiday plans were discussed and the group agreed to cooperate in the village store decoration project and continue contributions to CARE.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Gordon Keeley and Mrs. George Kaufmann will present the topic, Our American Heritage.

LEGAL NOTICES
NOTICE OF ELECTION
The Mount Marston Fire District will conduct an election on Tuesday, Dec. 5, 1967 from 7 p. m. to 10 p. m. at the Fire House for the purpose of selecting a Commissioner for a term of five (5) years.

By Order of the Board of Fire Commissioners:
IRVING S. ATWOOD, Sec.

SAWILL FIRE DISTRICT
Notice is hereby given that the annual election of the Sawkill Fire District will be held at the Fire House on the 11th day of December 1967 to elect one fire commissioner for a term of five (5) years, one secretary for a term of one (1) year to fill a vacancy. The polls will be open from 7 p. m. to 10 p. m. of said day for the receipt of ballots.

Every elector of the Sawkill Fire District who shall have resided in the Sawkill Fire District for a period of 30 days next preceding any election of Fire District officers shall be qualified to vote for such officers.

All officers of the Fire District must be the owners of real property within the District and must be assessed upon the latest Assessment of the Town of Kingston.

Commissioners of Sawkill Fire District:
By PAUL W. BURTON, Secretary

During the business meeting, holiday plans were discussed and the group agreed to cooperate in the village store decoration project and continue contributions to CARE.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Gordon Keeley and Mrs. George Kaufmann will present the topic, Our American Heritage.

NEW MEMBERS
A number of new members were admitted to the Saugerties Jaycees at the first membership rally held recently at the Flamingo Restaurant. Among those seeking membership were Stephen Chase, Clifford Harris, Arnold Tammer and Carl Ferrone.

More involvement in the community on the part of the Jaycee organization was the subject of the program with the following persons addressing the group: Mayor Cornelius Cox, state membership chairman, Carl Mills; state treasurer, John Jankowiak and Saugerties president Larry Sasser.

Matthew Duer served as master of ceremonies and chairman of the event.

Three Nurseries School Openings

There are three openings in the Community Day Nursery School held five days a week at the Dutch Arms Chapel, John Street, Saugerties.

School holidays correspond with those of the Saugerties School system, according to the Rev. Orville Hine, who may be contacted for further information.

Transportation arrangements and some scholarship money are available, according to the Rev. Mr. Hine.

A spaghetti dinner to benefit the school is planned for Friday, Dec. 1 from 5 to 7 p. m. in the Saugerties Reformed Church hall.

Tickets may be secured from Charles Fous or Eddie's Delicatessen.

Shooski Heads
Antique Auto
Club Again

Philip Shooski has been elected to his second term as president of the Saugerties Mid-Hudson Antique Auto Club.

Others named to the slate at a recent meeting were: Robert Knaust, vice-president; Carol Boice, Salt Point, secretary; Charles Daley, treasurer.

Gus Levy of Kingston was elected director for five years; Wayne Schubert, also of Kingston, will serve as tour director, and Frank Overbaugh of Catskill is in charge of publicity.

The club recently held its annual banquet at the Flamingo Restaurant, followed by dancing and singing.

The next meeting will be held Jan. 18.

Dear Abby

Your Move Is Right One

© 1967 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband (Arnie) and I both work. Arnie drives 35 miles round trip to work every day, and I drive 30, in the opposite direction. Well, Arnie got one too many moving violations and he had his driver's license suspended for a year, so now I have to drive him to work and back every day. It keeps me on the run because we have children at home, but I am not complaining. Here's the problem: Arnie has come up with the idea of staying with one of the guys he works with. This co-worker (I'll call him Sammy) is divorced and swings pretty good, and there are always these cute single girls hanging around Sammy's apartment. I know my husband, and he wouldn't just sit around and twiddle his thumbs. Arnie says he doesn't want me to get worn out driving him, but if I'm not complaining, why should he? Should I stick to my decision or not? ARNIE'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Stick to your decision. Tell Arnie you have had enough of his moving violations, without asking for other kinds. And if anyone is gonna get worn out, it will be you. Driving!

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem which comes up so often it isn't even funny, and almost everyone I know is guilty of it. This happens at my house, or when I'm at someone else's house.

When my kids start acting up and doing things they know they shouldn't and I correct them, the friend (or relative) will butt in and say, "O, leave them alone. They aren't hurting anything. They're only kids. Relax and quit picking on them!" They say this right in front of the children and then what am I supposed to do?

ROPE'S END

DEAR END: First I'll tell you what NOT to do. Don't tell your children escape punishment they have coming just because friends or relatives are present. Tell those who attempt to interfere that your children NEED discipline, whether company is there or not, and their cooperation would be very much appreciated.

If you ever get into an argument with your partner as to who went wrong in the bidding, make it a point to bet that his bidding was wrong and not that your bidding was correct.

West opened the king of hearts against the doubled three no-trump contract. South took dummy's ace and played the queen of clubs which West allowed to hold. A diamond finesse lost to West's king and West shifted to the jack of spades. South struggled along.

but the best he could do was to hold his loss to three tricks.

North was bitter about South's opening bid. He wanted to know how anyone could play with a partner who opened a 10 point hand and continued to bid as if he had a sound opening. South wanted to know if North had ever heard of a misfit and suggested that North should have quit at three clubs.

It is a pretty good rule that when a partnership goes down three tricks at a voluntary game bid that both partners contributed something to the debacle, and this hand is no exception.

As a starter, we don't like the opening club bid. Ten point openings are not all bad, but South's strength was all in the minors, his suit was a broken one, and three of his points were represented by a queen and a jack while only four of his points were in his own suit.

As for North, we don't like his two-spade rebid. When West made his delayed take-out double, North should have redoubled. East would run out to two diamonds. North would go back to three clubs and North would be able to pass. Three clubs would probably be one down, but one down undoubled is a reasonable loss.

Horoscope By SYDNEY OMARR

It's In The Stars—

("The wise man controls his destiny . . . astrology points the way.")

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1967

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): If you have been working, playing too hard, today recuperate. Pressure shown in work, health areas. Relax. Gain spiritual insight. Be quiet within. Answers are forthcoming.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): Pressure on chart area dealing with children, creative endeavors. Not wise to get involved today with opposite sex. Could prove costly, emotionally, financially.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Shake up due close to home base. Your versatility comes into play. Cope with situation by utilizing alternative methods. Don't be bogged down with past patterns.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Confusion may appear to be order of the day. Obtain hint from Gemini message. Argumentative relative, neighbor may appear on scene. Keep cool. Take care in traffic.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Keep close watch on possessions. Guard assets, financial reputation. Some would like you to trip up where budget is concerned. Be self-reliant. Follow inner feelings.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): See picture as it exists. Tendency to accept distorted view. Some new contacts appear accented. Wait for conditions to settle. Cycle is high—but associates may be unstable.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): No day to keep secrets. Details tend to slip away. People pick up hints, piece together complete story. Best to be open, frank. Cooperate with club, group, organization.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Today don't rely too much on advice proffered by friends. Many have problems of their own. Do plenty of reading. Analyze information. Steer clear of quarrels.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be diplomatic in dealing with those in authority. You gain by offering compliment. Obstacles can be overcome if you are subtle rather than direct.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Check long-distance communications. You tend to misinterpret messages. Key is to clarify misunderstandings. Take time to gain clarity. Then what appears a crisis evaporates.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Disturbance occurs concerning money agreements. Legal checks, actions may be involved. Financial decision necessary. Be confident.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Some people oppose you for no apparent reason. Key is to realize one phase of activity is finished. Get ready for new start. Throw off burden not rightly your own.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have executive ability. You recently made home adjustment which could have involved change of location. Could be smooth sailing now.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for VIRGO, LIBRA, SCORPIO. Special word: LIBRA. SCORPIO: mate, partner, requires special attention.

Forecast for MONDAY, November 27, 1967

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): You may feel somewhat restricted. Key is to handle responsibility in mature, dignified manner. Today is not time to throw caution to winds. The weight of added duty is apparent.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): You may feel secluded. Clandestine meeting could be necessary. Be discreet, mature. Don't tell all you know. Someone behind-the-scenes has you in mind. Result proves interesting.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): How to adjust to changing conditions is featured today. Some taunt you. Others encourage. Key is what you think, how you react. Be an individual in true sense.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): What shake-ups occur are likely to work to your advantage. Your intuitive intellect is on course. You perceive. You are aware. You already know.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your desire to be understood is highlighted. Some understand—others resent. Today pick the best. Don't make concessions to those who lack worth. Strive for quality, mature approach.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Don't send good money after bad. Know when to call a halt. Today you could learn difference between idealism and foolishness. Be practical. Be aware of facts without giving up convictions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Take action despite objections from the establishment. What you do today must be based on individual conviction. Others tend to confuse basic issues. You may have to go it alone.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Work quietly to attain objectives. One who is serious has your best interest at heart. But don't expect the sensational. Sober judgment wins major point. Act accordingly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Some of your friends experience problems, delays. You could become involved. Key is independence minus arrogance. Be sympathetic, but keep eye on budget.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Handle yourself with dignity. People with power to aid your cause are observant. Conduct yourself in manner which inspires confidence. You're being considered for important assignment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Find the why of situation. Be analytical. Piece together bits of information. Key is to have nose for news. Discovery made today could be profitable. Wait for all the facts.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Slow down spending. Step up long-range savings program. Outline new policy. Stick to it. You gain prestige but require more solid financial base. Consult expert if necessary.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you attract people with problems, dilemmas of others. Key is to apply this touch to yourself. Prospects for immediate future are bright if prepared to accept added responsibility. If single, marriage could be in horizon.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: International figures may do an about-face with regard to Dove-Hawk positions.

The Versatile Steve Allen

Chicago Daily News Service
 CHICAGO—Whoever said you can't keep a good man down must have had Steve Allen in mind. With the exception of Peter Ustinov, who is a genius, is there a more versatile man in arts and amusements than Allen?

In the last few weeks, the ubiquitous Allen has popped up five times in different hats.

Early Years in Chicago
 Allen the author came to Chicago to plug his latest book, "Bigger than a breadbox," and during the same period, Allen the personality narrated "I Remember Illinois," a one-hour salute to the state's 150th birthday to be broadcast by NBC on Feb. 15.

Allen, the composer who spent some of his early years in Chicago, also wrote an original score for the show.

Allen the actor appeared on the Bob Hope special and Allen the comedian and variety show host has learned that CBS will not hire him to do a late night show next year. You lose one, you win four.

Allen says he is more comfortable as a composer than as a comedian. "The thing I do best," he said, "is compose music. I'm a damned good songwriter and it furnishes $50,000 of my income each year."

He kids us not, Allen has written about 2,000 songs, including "This Could Be the Start of Something Big," "South Rampart Street Parade," "Sophie," and the title numbers for the movies "Picnic," "Houseboat," and "Bell, Book and Candle."

The Gift Important
 "Songwriting is easy, if you've got a gift," said the man who has been grinding out about three melodies a week, since he was 12. "This Could Be the Start of Something Big" came to him in a dream, he said. Since he always has pen and paper beside the bed, he just scribbled it down. Easy.

Allen also considers himself a serious writer, but "not a great novelist or poet. I'd like to put out a book of verse under another name and see how it sells."

"Bigger than a breadbox," a compilation of humorous stories, articles, comedy sketches and light verse, is his 11th book. The others include a serious account of farm-labor poverty in California, "The Ground Is Our Table," a political work, "Letter to a Conservative"; an autobiography, "Mark It and Strike It"; a volume of poetry, "Wry on the Rocks," and an analysis of TV humor, "The Funny Men."

But it is a humorist that the mass public knows Allen best. He was the first host of the Tonight Show, in 1954, and the new sketches Johnny Carson is doing now are the old ones Allen did.

Prefers Weekly Variety

Allen prefers the kind of weekly variety show he did last summer on CBS. When it ended, he was on stand-by as a candidate for a late-night show at midseason, but with "no great enthusiasm. I'm not sure it would be good to put on one more late show," CBS agreed.

While Allen is regarded as a satirist, he is more aware than most that satire died, not on the stage in Philadelphia as is commonly supposed, but on the home TV screen in Duluth. He said he paints his humor in much broader strokes for TV.

"There's never been a great deal of modern humor on TV," he says, although one of the memorable sketches on his summer show was a satire of fundraising telethons.

"Television will never be avant garde, because the really creative humorist will inevitably offend someone. That's the classic purpose—pointing out our foibles. But you can't do it and sell canned beans."

Allen can laugh at himself on screen, often at an outlandish costume or an ad lib. "You have a sense of somebody else doing something funny,"

Think Winters Funniest
 He says he and Sid Caesar, Groucho Marx, Jack Benny and Milton Berle laugh at each other but he cited Phil Silvers, Joey Bishop and Danny Thomas as comics who seldom laugh off-camera.

Allen agreed, as have many other comedians, that Jonathan Winters is probably the funniest man alive. "But," adds Allen, "he does best when he has someone like Paar or me with him. You have to have a representative of the human race with him."

WORLD ALMANAC

FACTS

The word ballot, says The World Almanac, is derived through the French from Italian "ballotta" which literally means "little ball."

The ancient Greeks voted by tossing pieces of shell (ostrakons), potsherds or pebbles into an urn. The Italian "ballotta" was applied to round objects or little balls used in elections and hence we have ballot in the sense of a ticket or vote.

The Versatile Steve Allen

Chicago Daily News Service
 CHICAGO—Whoever said you can't keep a good man down must have had Steve Allen in mind. With the exception of Peter Ustinov, who is a genius, is there a more versatile man in arts and amusements than Allen?

In the last few weeks, the ubiquitous Allen has popped up five times in different hats.

Early Years in Chicago

Allen the author came to Chicago to plug his latest book, "Bigger than a breadbox," and, during the same period, Allen the personality narrated "I Remember Illinois," a one-hour salute to the state's 150th birthday to be broadcast by NBC on Feb. 15.

Allen, the composer who spent some of his early years in Chicago, also wrote an original score for the show.

Allen the actor appeared on the Bob Hope special and Allen the comedian and variety show host has learned that CBS will not hire him to do a late night show next year. You lose one, you win four.

Allen says he is more comfortable as a composer than as a comedian. "The thing I do best," he said, "is compose music. I'm a damned good songwriter and it furnishes $50,000 of my income each year."

'Near Panic' Buy Orders Noted by London Dealers

LONDON (AP) — London gold dealers report buying orders are arriving in "near panic" proportions from all over the world in the challenge to the U.S. dollar touched off by Britain's devaluation of the pound. But Washington says the dollar is safe.

British financial writers cast French President Charles de Gaulle as the villain whipping on speculators in hopes of ruining the dollar and making gold the No. 1 international currency.

Neither the U.S. Treasury nor financial experts elsewhere joined in the finger pointing, however. In Paris Albin Chalandon, an influential Gaullist deputy in the National Assembly, said the gold run was "not the fault of the French government" but could be traced simply to private buyers who mistrust the present world financial setup.

Chalandon said, "The French government in no way wishes the fall of the dollar and never wanted the fall of the pound.

"It simply notes that the international monetary system comprises grave risks because of the American balance of payments deficit. France wants as a consequence that diverse countries take measures in time to avoid an international monetary crisis in which all countries, including France, would be the victims," he added.

France did help to spur the bullion flurry, however, by announcing it again would demand U.S. gold for its dollar earnings.

Reports channelled from Europe to Franz Pick, a New York expert on world finance, indicated that 370 tons of gold were sold on European markets from Wednesday through Friday's market close. Pick said $415 million was involved in that trading and estimated the U.S.

gold loss at $600 million since the pound's devaluation one week ago. Other sources said this figure was too high.

Normal turnover on the London Exchange, which handles the bulk of European gold business, is about 6 tons a day, although the exact figures are kept secret. More than 100 tons of the metal were sold Friday and record sales also were chalked up in Paris and Zurich.

Scenes of "near pandemonium" were reported in bidding on gold mine issues on the Johannesburg stock exchange. Brokers said Friday was the most hectic day of trading anyone could remember. Gold share prices soared in the morning but declined somewhat in the afternoon.

Gold opened on Hong Kong's free market today with dealers a bit more bullish than usual but only a mild flurry of activity. There was a lack of pressure for gold from Chinese buyers, indicating faith in the Hong Kong dollar is still strong.

New President of State Teachers Labels Involvement Her Key Word

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — "Involvement" will be the key word in the administration of the New York State Teachers Association, if the new president has her way.

"The commitment to equal educational opportunity is not enough," Mrs. Catharine O'Connor Barrett said Friday. "The time has come for us as a profession, and as individuals, to prove our commitment by actual, personal involvement."

Mrs. Barrett demonstrated involvement two years ago when she transferred voluntarily from the all-white school where she had taught most of her life to per present post at Croton, Elementary School, a predominantly Negro school in Syracuse's inner city.

11 Years on Board

Mrs. Barrett, an instructional specialist and a teacher for 43 years, has served for 11 years as a member of the board of directors of the State Teachers Association, as a state director of the National Education Association, and in numerous other education posts.

She once was mentioned prominently for the superintendency of Syracuse schools. Last year, she was named by the NEA to conduct an investigation of the school system in Columbus, Miss.

Earlier this week, Mrs. Barrett obtained the presidency of the State Teachers Association after a fight on the floor of the association's convention in Rochester. It was the first time in the history of the 100,000-member association that a candidate recommended by the nominating committee was rejected.

The Weather

SATURDAY, NOV. 25, 1967
Sun rises at 6:56 a. m.; sun sets at 4:29 p. m. EST.

Weather: Clearing, breezy.

The Temperature

The lowest temperature recorded on The Freeman thermometer during the night was 37 degrees. The highest figure recorded up to noon today was 45 degrees.

Weather Forecast

Clearing, breezy. Lower Hudson Valley.

Rain ending this morning. Clearing and breezy this afternoon. High in the 40s. Generally fair and a little colder tonight.

Low 25 to 32 Sunday, mostly sunny with seasonal temperatures. High in 40s. Winds, becoming southwest to west, 10 to 20 mph and gusty this afternoon, diminishing tonight and westerly, 5 to 15 mph Sunday.

Further outlook: Increasing cloudiness Sunday night with a chance of some rain or snow on Monday.

For Period Ending 7 A. M. EST Sunday

Today snow and snow flurries are forecast for the Northern Plains through the North and Central Plateau regions. Fair to partly cloudy skies will prevail elsewhere in the nation. Colder weather is in store for much of the Southeast, the Northwest, and portions of the Central Plains. Little change expected elsewhere. Minimum temperature forecasts include: Atlanta 40; Boston 38; Chicago 35; Cleveland 29; Denver 16; Duluth 22; Ft. Worth 50; Jacksonville 58; Little Rock 40; Los Angeles 52; Miami 65; New York 38; Phoenix 40; San Francisco 40; Seattle 32; St. Louis 35; and Washington 35.

She promised teachers that top priority would be devoted to improving the quality of education in the so-called inner-city schools, to revamping certification standards and to implementing the Taylor Law, which gives teachers the right to bargain collectively with their boards of education.

Calls Test Crucial

"Success is vital," she said. "The test is crucial. We cannot fail."

The first step is the establishing of a curriculum "that will provide multiracial experience for students and involve teachers who never had the experience to seek assignments to the inner-city schools," Mrs. Barrett said.

"I think that the profession as a whole has not faced up to the fact that hard-and-fast curricula for inner-school areas is just not possible," she said. "It has to be developed to meet the needs of schools."

Mrs. Barrett called for the formation of equal educational opportunity committees of certified teachers "to set a meaningful program really into motion."

She also is committed to the creation of a state certification board composed of teachers elected by teachers and with a chairman appointed by the governor.

One of her pet peeves is some of those antiquated college curriculum courses that teachers are required to take for purposes of certification.

"It would be a long step forward if we could come up with courses at the college level that would bear a definite relation to the work of teachers in their particular subject fields." Mrs. Barrett said "the most important single ingredient in a school system is a teaching staff that is properly trained, competent and fully certified."

"No school district can build and maintain such a staff with substandard salaries," she said.

The Artist Who Came to Dinner

Like "The Man Who Came to Dinner" and stayed on and on at the dining room table until he had parlayed a meal into a long run stage hit, Woodstock artist Doris Lee has done much the same with the traditional Thanksgiving repast.

Her painting, "Thanksgiving Dinner," has become a national favorite over the years and is recognized by critics and public alike as a masterpiece. Miss Lee will come for refreshments and conversation — if not for dinner — when she appears for a "Meet the Artist" program from 3 to 6 p. m. this Sunday, Nov. 26, at Ulster County Community College, Stone Ridge.

An exhibition of her paintings will be on display in Gallery Hall at the John Burroughs Science Building at the college from Nov. 26 to Dec. 15.

Miss Lee's climb to fame started with the winning of the coveted Logan Gold Medal of the Art Institute of Chicago for the painting, "Thanksgiving Dinner." This work has now become almost as symbolic of the Thanksgiving holiday as Whistler's portrait is symbolic of Mother's Day.

The Visual Arts Program of UCCC is presenting this exhibition of paintings, prints and gouaches by Miss Lee, who has lived in Woodstock since the late 1930's. Her husband is the renowned artist, Arnold Blanch.

Poster Prints Offered

An original silk screen poster for the exhibition was designed by Miss Lee and executed by another Woodstock artist, Bernard Steffen. A limited number of these poster screen prints will be available free to those attending the preview of exhibition and the reception Nov. 26. Refreshments will also be served.

Miss Lee has exhibited widely in national exhibitions in this country and Europe. Her paintings are in permanent collections of many museums including the Metropolitan Museum of New York, Chicago Art Institute, Albright Museum in Buffalo, Lowe Museum of Miami, Phillips Museum in Washington, D. C., the School of Design in Providence and in many college and university museum collections.

The talented artist has won major awards at the Chicago Art Institute, Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, Carnegie Institute, Lowe Museum and many others. She has been commissioned by Life Magazine, Fortune, Vogue, and Seventeen to travel and paint her impressions for their publications.

Competent Illustrator

She has done numerous murals and is active in printmaking, etching, lithography and silk screens. Some of the books illustrated by her include: Rogers and Hart "Song Book," Thurber's "Great Quillow" and "Touch Blue."

Miss Lee has taught painting at the University of Honolulu and the University of Michigan and has received honorary doctorate degrees from Rockford College, Russel Sage and Philadelphia Academy of Art.

The exhibition at UCCC was organized and designed by: Miss Ruth Muroff, A.I.D., coordinator of art at UCCC.

Modern Living

My Son, the Commander-in-Chief

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

He parades incessantly across my living room floor—just as if every day was Veteran's Day; salutes stiffly from time to time and says in a crisp military manner, "Reporting for duty!"

He has jarred me out of a twilight reverie by suddenly and succinctly ordering me in no uncertain terms to "Take the jeep and get some metal."

If I am pondering the weekly menu and find it difficult to make a decision between pork chops and corned beef for Monday's dinner, he will look me in the eye with utter disdain and his powerful lungs roar, "Take command!"

The weather evidently influences his life not one whit. No matter what the season, he is consumed by the necessity to sternly and frequently issue the command, "Check your swimming gear!"

Occasionally, in the middle of the night, I am awakened by his voice from the bedroom next to mine. "Reporting for duty," he says yet another time (as thou though he never tires of this) even though it is 2 a. m. and no one is abroad except for him and my small son who has just been awakened from slumber by a dream or the raccoons outside at my garbage pails.

Instrument of Torture

If he is off somewhere polishing his medals, peeling potatoes, shining his boots or setting his barracks in order, he leaves behind an automatic M16 rifle, which is life-size and far too big for him to handle. But in the hands of his older and taller commander-in-chief, this instrument of mother torture brings blazing, staccato gunfire into my living room which ricochets off the Degas' drawings on the walls with the same deadly sound effects it would invoke if fired in the deep recesses of some Asiatic jungle.

He is a talking GI Joe doll and, together with my six-year-old son and the M16, he is slowly but surely driving me into total alienation against toys in general. If he is joined by a buddy-in-arms this Christmas (my son has already made it known that he would have it so), there is reason to believe I might seriously entertain thoughts of a private march of my own on the Pentagon.

Joining the G.I. Joe Club last year was bad enough. One was constantly tripping over his foot locker or stepping upon the "live" grenades he left in such unlikely places as the kitchen and bathroom floors. Each time the toe of a slipper came into contact with one of these, the commander-in-chief would dive for his foxhole under the couch, and yell plaintively, "You've blown up the house!"

Once, I was ostracized by the entire family for days on end when, by accident, I allowed Joe's machine gun to take a trip through the washing machine and dryer because I had not known it was in the commander's jacket pocket. Presumably, had it been Joe himself in his frogman suit, there would have been no repercussions.

Joe Was Stoic

See Them Wave

An exhibit of flags, designed and executed by students at Dutchess Community College, is currently on display in the college's Dutchess Hall gallery.

The show is free and open to the general public.

"Throughout history, flags and pennants have been very important in communicating information about significant events," said Lewis Krevolin, assistant professor in the Department of Visual Art Technologies.

"By using color, line, and texture, flags are able to communicate ideas without the use of words," he noted.

allows him to talk. Last year my problems revolved around repairs to his helmet and binoculars straps, which were always breaking, and to finding his misplaced shovel and pistol belt. This year my main worry is trying to find a method of shutting off his endless flow of tongue twisters.

Before he waged his wars quietly with only an occasional assist from the commander-in-chief, whose childish voice often said little more than "bang, bang, you're dead" are "Take that . . . and that . . . and that." Now he runs off at the mouth constantly as he fights the Germans. And make no mistake about it, he fights only Germans. Never the Viet Cong, the Russians, the North Koreans or the Japanese. The German army is the enemy and the only enemy—and when I ask my son why this is so, he does not seem to have a ready answer. Privately, I lean toward the theory that this arrangement comes from the influence of television and comic books.

Would that I could return again to those days when life posed no more stringent poses than replacing the batteries in G.I. Joe's water sled, replacements made necessary by all that deep diving into the bathtub.

My fate, however, is to suffer his verbal commands and suggestions and my only hope is that he will some day be struck mute by accident. I have toyed with the idea of disposing of his string—but this somehow seems lacking in valor on my part.

Life With Barbie

I now remember with fondness those long lost days when the commander-in-chief's sisters filled the house with Barbie dolls, along with Midge, Ken, their clothing, convertible coupe, separate cardboard homes, beach gear, skiing gear and, later, Barbie's little sister and her pets. I loathed them one and all but, in retrospect, I now see they went about the business of dressing for the prom and motoring off for a Coge with the proper quietness and decorum.

They never ordered me about in the daytime or awakened me at night to tell me their private troubles. Joe, that hero who can assume all the positions of a real soldier, does . . . and if there was not such a cowardly streak in me and I did not fear the Puritan moralities of my neighbors, I would begin talking my son into retiring Joe to civilian life and to perhaps take up playing instead with Little Brother, Little Brother, or Petit Frere, for all his obvious masculinity, and non-neuter appearance, has never even learned to say "dada" and his needs are simple, consisting only of a diaper—a far cry from more than 300 pieces of military equipment, even the fondest or most horrified mother would have to admit.

Block Printing at Young People's Studio

The Studio, located in Woodstock, offers its Fall program to 9-12-year-olds. During the first unit, the children learned about — and completed paintings in — oil, acrylics and tempera. The next unit, which has just begun, will bring several new projects in block print-

A unit of instruction consists of three specified class days. When an opening in a group occurs, a child registered at the start of a new unit is at no disadvantage since the group begins and completes an entirely new project each week.

All classes are under the guidance and instruction of artist and Art Students League instructor Bruce Dorfman. Mr.

Dorfman is assisted by his wife Jeanne, who was a student of painting, drawing and ceramics at the Brooklyn Museum Art School.

For further information, interested parents should call Mr. Dorfman in Woodstock.

If I am pondering the weekly menu and find it difficult to make a decision between pork chops and corned beef for Monday's dinner, he will look me in the eye with utter disdain and his powerful lungs roar, "Take command!"

The weather evidently influences his life not one whit. No matter what the season, he is consumed by the necessity to sternly and frequently issue the command, "Check your swimming gear!"

Occasionally, in the middle of the night, I am awakened by his voice from the bedroom next to mine. "Reporting for duty," he says yet another time (as though he never tires of this) even though it is 2 a. m. and no one is abroad except for him and my small son who has just been awakened from slumber by a dream or the raccoons outside at my garbage pails.

Instrument of Torture

If he is off somewhere polishing his medals, peeling potatoes, shining his boots or setting his barracks in order, he leaves behind an automatic M16 rifle, which is life-size and far too big for him to handle. But in the hands of his older and taller commander-in-chief, this instrument of mother torture brings blazing, staccato gunfire into my living room which ricochets off the Degas' drawings on the walls with the same deadly sound effects it would invoke if fired in the deep recesses of some Asiatic jungle.

He is a talking GI Joe doll and, together with my six-year-old son and the M16, he is slowly but surely driving me into total alienation against toys in general. If he is joined by a buddy-in-arms this Christmas (my son has already made it known that he would have it so), there is reason to believe I might seriously entertain thoughts of a private march of my own on the Pentagon.

Joining the G.I. Joe Club last year was bad enough. One was constantly tripping over his foot locker or stepping upon the "live" grenades he left in such unlikely places as the kitchen and bathroom floors. Each time the toe of a slipper came into contact with one of these, the commander-in-chief would dive for his foxhole under the couch, and yell plaintively, "You've blown up the house!"

Once, I was ostracized by the entire family for days on end when, by accident, I allowed Joe's machine gun to take a trip through the washing machine and dryer because I had not known it was in the commander's jacket pocket. Presumably, had it been Joe himself in his frogman suit, there would have been no repercussions.

Joe Was Stoic

See Them Wave

An exhibit of flags, designed and executed by students at Dutchess Community College, is currently on display in the college's Dutchess Hall gallery.

The show is free and open to the general public.

"Throughout history, flags and pennants have been very important in communicating information about significant events," said Lewis Krevolin, assistant professor in the Department of Visual Art Technologies.

"By using color, line, and texture, flags are able to communicate ideas without the use of words," he noted.

About a dozen banners are on view in the Dutchess exhibition.

allows him to talk. Last year my problems revolved around repairs to his helmet and binocular straps, which were always breaking, and to finding his misplaced shovel and pistol belt. This year my main worry is trying to find a method of shutting off his endless flow of tongue twisters.

Before he waged his wars quietly with only an occasional assist from the commander-in-chief, whose childish voice often said little more than "bang, bang, you're dead" are "Take that . . . and that . . . and that." Now he runs off at the mouth constantly as he fights the Germans. And make no mistake about it, he fights only Germans. Never the Viet Cong, the Russians, the North Koreans or the Japanese. The German army is the enemy and the only enemy—and when I ask my son why this is so, he does not seem to have a ready answer. Privately, I lean toward the theory that this arrangement comes from the influence of television and comic books.

Would that I could return again to those days when life posed no more stringent poser than replacing the batteries in G.I. Joe's water sled, replacements made necessary by all that deep diving into the bathtub.

My fate, however, is to suffer his verbal commands and suggestions and my only hope is that he will some day be struck mute by accident. I have toyed with the idea of disposing of his string—but this somehow seems lacking in valor on my part.

Life With Barbie

I now remember with fondness those long lost days when the commander-in-chief's sisters filled the house with Barbie dolls, along with Midge, Ken, their clothing, convertible coupe, separate cardboard homes, beach gear, skiing gear and, later, Barbie's little sister and her pets. I loathed them one and all but, in retrospect, I now see they went about the business of dressing for the prom and motoring off for a Coge with the proper quietness and decorum.

They never ordered me about in the daytime or awakened me at night to tell me their private troubles. Joe, that hero who can assume all the positions of a real soldier, does . . . and if there was not such a cowardly streak in me and I did not fear the Puritan moralities of my neighbors, I would begin talking my son into retiring Joe to civilian life and to perhaps take up playing instead with Little Brother, Little Brother, or Petit Frere, for all his obvious masculinity, and non-neuter appearance, has never even learned to say "dada" and his needs are simple, consisting only of a diaper—a far cry from more than 300 pieces of military equipment, even the fondest or most horrified mother would have to admit.

Block Printing at Young People's Studio

The Studio, located in Woodstock, offers its Fall program to 9-12-year-olds. During the first unit, the children learned about — and completed paintings in — oil, acrylics and tempera. The next unit, which has just begun, will bring several new projects in block printing and painting. Future projects will be in painting, drawing, sculpture and crafts.

A unit of instruction consists of three specified class days. When an opening in a group occurs, a child registered at the start of a new unit is at no disadvantage since the group begins and completes an entirely new project each week.

All classes are under the guidance and instruction of artist and Art Students League instructor Bruce Dorfman. Mr.

Dorfman is assisted by his wife Jeanne, who was a student of painting, drawing and ceramics at the Brooklyn Museum Art School.

—The Old and Undefinable— Of Etrog Holders and Pewter Bowls

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

For the first time, as far as we can remember, we were persuaded by the promise of our own prose to make an unscheduled and unplanned trip into Fun City.

For two weeks running in the pages of TEMPO, we had drawn upon our reserve of adjectives and had allowed them to fall where they would in describing the upcoming National Arts and Antiques Show in Manhattan. So attractive had the whole thing become in our mind, we decided it was something even we shouldn't miss . . . and pulled up stakes for New York on a spur-of-the-moment decision over the weekend.

It was solace indeed to find that the trip had been well worth the effort. Although the Madison Square Garden environs in which the show was held have become dingy with the years (and we can hardly blame the powers that be for building a new one which will open next month), the show itself was bright, colorful, unique, and a rare combination of things old and precious and things new and futuristic.

It is no exaggeration to say that we saw more art, artifacts and antiques — many of them unbelievable, if not totally undefinable — than we had ever seen in any one place before. In our country boots and Hudson Bay blanket jacket, we began to feel somewhat like a bull in a china closet. There seemed to be an endless array of delicate glass objects everywhere and, since the aforementioned jacket serves to double our girth, we were forced to adopt a wary tread as we navigated the space between booths.

Indeed, a bona fide bull would have had a field day.

he slightest movement on his part would have brought Staffordshire inkwells, Tiffany lamps, terra cotta sculpture, Baccarat chandeliers, ceramic mugs and pitchers, geometric crystal pieces, delicate bobeches, stained glass mobiles, hurricane lights, Japanese netsukes, and dainty necklaces and clocks crashing floorward in a symphonic crescendo.

And this list does not even include the various types of candelabra, Czechoslovakian drinking cups, queen's ware, stoneware, milk glass, ship models, Canton china, Wedgwood, Lowestoft and daguerreotypes. Or the mirrors, snuff bottles, perfume containers, wine flacons and candlesticks. There was even colored glass, cut glass, blown glass, and pressed glass.

We paused by one booth, distinguished by a sterling silver object that looked for all the world like an egg that had been pecked to pieces by an irate mother hen. Anxious to earn our working press pass, we asked the proprietor what it was. "An etrog holder," he said, in a tone which clearly indicated his amusement at our stupidity.

"Where's it from?" we parried.

He sighed heavily and explained further in the same resigned tones we have used with our own children: "It comes from the America-Israel Cultural Foundation and it's a very fine Israeli artifact. See, it's handmade by Menachem Berman and it has a Hebrew letter on the bottom part of a special prayer said on Succot." "But how's it used and what's it for?" we persisted.

He waved us on with an "I'm busy now," and we went—taking care not to ask him how in heck we should know about etrog holders when we grew up under American-Welsh, Southern Baptist influences.

Next we studied a handsome urkana head in a collection of about 100 unusual African carvings. This was at least self-explanatory since it was definitely a man's head, had been crafted in Africa and bore a plaque which noted it was brought from Fioranti Art Gallery of Kenya.

Feeling more chipper by now and beginning to get over our initial rebuff, we approached a tall gentleman in elegant attire, pointed to what looked like a small bathtub with scalloped edges, and asked, "What's that? It looks heavy."

"Not so heavy," he said. "It's empty."

"Touche," we replied in tribute to his one-upmanship.

Either this softened him or he was simply not as busy as the first fellow we had encountered, for he proceeded to describe the article in dulcet tones.

"This handsome pewter bowl," he said, "is from the nationally renowned pewter collection of Harry Hirsch of New York and Spring Valley, who is exhibiting his rarest items at this festival. Circa 18th century, South Germany. As you undoubtedly know, pewter is highly desirable at this time."

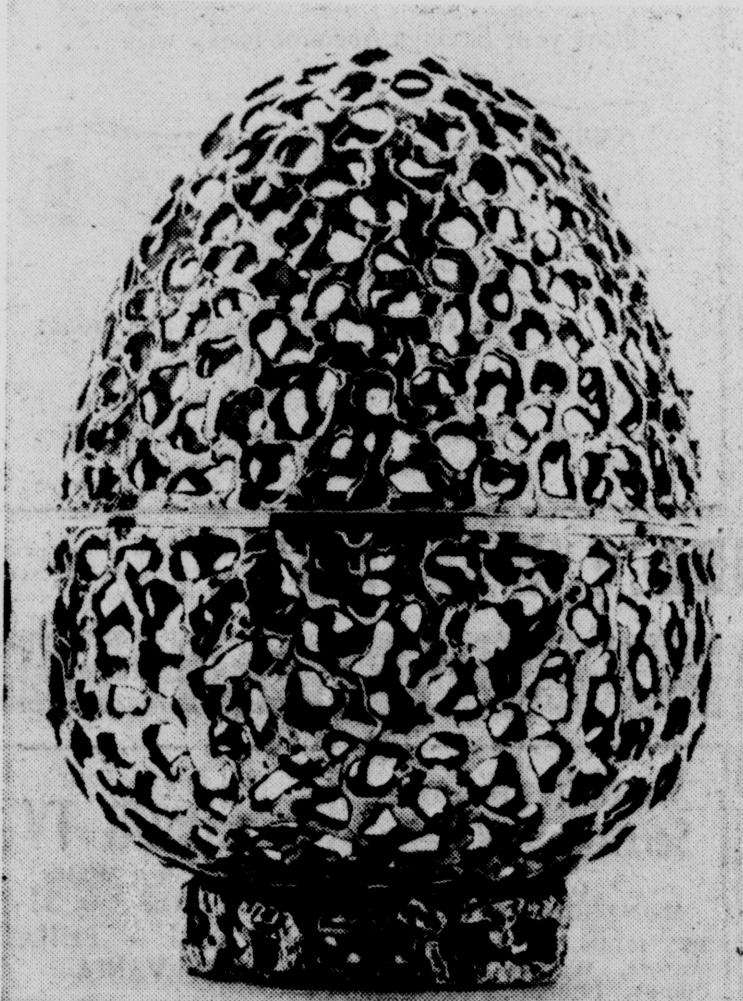

We hadn't known but we were not about to admit it — so we shuffled along to a display of heirloom jewelry. One rather ponderous watch, encrusted with pearls, also boasted what to us seemed a fantastic, hand-painted scene. A lady in an elaborate hairdo and wearing a dress which managed to barely hang from her shoulders, seemed to be enveloping a full grown youth and a tiny infant on her lap as she juggled a book and read to them, also managing to use the forefinger of her right hand as a pointer. We felt better when we made a closer study of the faces painted on the tiny timepiece. Clearly, this baby was a thumbsucker and its eyes looked droopy. This would, of course, have made him far easier to handle lapwise. Our twins used their thumbs for gouging me and each other and not for sucking, and they were anything but droopy, being on the rambunctious-precocious side.

The full grown youth on the mother's lap looked lackadaisical and slightly senile, which would also help to account for her feat on the timepiece.

We were able to learn from the catalogue that many of the watches in that particular booth had been designed by great

What's Happening on Television

The rare treat in store for home viewers this week is Shaw's "Saint Joan" in a Hallmark home screen special.

A talented young actress — French-Canadian Genevieve Bujold — is making her American debut in one of the theater's most-sought-after roles. And, for good measure, she's surrounded by eight outstanding actors: Theodore Bikel, James Daly, James Donald, Maurice Evans, Leo Genn, Raymond Massey, Roddy McDowall and George Rose.

Add color, award-winning producer-director George Schaefer, and a special on a distinguished playwright's most popular drama . . . and you've got George Bernard Shaw's "Saint Joan" for two hours, Monday Dec. 4, 9-11 p. m. on NBC's showcase Hallmark Hall of Fame.

Since the Maid of Orleans was only 19 when she was burned at the stake, the teenaged Miss Bujold was chosen to recreate the brief but successful military career of the peasant girl who hears heavenly voices and is ultimately condemned to death at the stake. Maurice Evans is one of the judges at her trial and Raymond Massey the inquisitor. Bikel is cast as a nobleman who befriends Joan and Daly is the gallant French general.

The Bell Telephone Hour offered a two-pronged treat for music lovers last night, Friday, Nov. 24, when it concentrated on segments in the life of famed violinist Joseph Fuchs, in a program entitled "The Virtuoso Teacher." It deserved four stars for showing a great developer of talent at work and for that musical moment when Fuchs and fellow artist Yehudi Menuhin brilliantly performed Bach's Double Concerto.

And if you missed this week's American Profile presentation of "The National Gallery of Art," you missed the most valuable hour you could have ever spent in an art gallery. This one was all art and another four starrer, TEMPO also feels impelled to shower kudos on NET Playhouse's adaptation of "An Enemy of the People," starring James Daly, which was seen during the past week and was a fine protest against political chicnery and demagoguery.

TONIGHT (Saturday, Nov. 25) as you munch cold turkey sandwiches, eat turkey tetrazzini, or hold your "turkey wake," you may want to tune in to CBS at 7:30 for the Jackie Gleason Show with guests Bing Crosby and Liberace . . . and follow through with Saturday Night at the Movies on NBC at 9 for Doris Day and James Garner in "The Thrill of It All," about a thrifty housewife who finds herself a highly paid TV spokeswoman for a soap company.

If you're a NET Playhouse fan, watch this week for the excellent dramatic confrontation of might vs. right titled "A Choice of Kings," all about the two years prior to the Battle of Hastings. We've been told it's BUT GREAT!

SUNDAY, Nov. 26, brings a "Diary of Anne Frank" unlike any done before or possibly even conceived. Like "Saint Joan," it has a newcomer in youthful Diane Davila, who reads Anne not as a poignant little girl locked in her prison attic to live out the months dreaming of the past and future and fearing the present . . . but as full of vigor, life and enthusiasm. Others in the cast of this ABC program at 9 p. m. are Max von Sydow as the father Lilli Palmer, Viveca Lindfors, Theodore Bikel and Donald Pleasance.

Earlier Sunday, followers of politics will want to see Sen. Robert Kennedy "Face the Nation" in an interview from Washington on CBS at 12:30 . . . and Vice President Hubert Humphrey "Meet the Press" after his trip to the Far East on NBC at 1 p. m.

For the younger generation, there's a fairly new movie, The Monkey's Uncle, with Annette Funicello on Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color at 7:30 on NBC . . . and there's The Beatles with their new look on the Ed Sullivan Show at 8 o'clock on CBS. Jimmy Durante pays a visit to the Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour at 9 p. m. on CBS.

NET programs begin telecasts this week of a candid Conversation with Ingrid Bergman, highlighting her talent as a fascinating conversationalist — watch for it.

CAN YOU HEAR ME? is the program to watch Monday, Nov. 27 on ABC at 9:30 p. m. It's an excellent documentary on Mary Beth Hull, a 2½ year old girl who lives with her par-

Story concentrates on the efforts of her family to give her a normal life, how she is learning to use her voice, and how she is helped by the John Tracy Clinic.

Monday also offers Red Buttons on the Danny Thomas Hour on NBC at 9 p. m. in a drama of the violent world of loan sharks, and guest Don Adams on The Carol Burnett Show at 10 on CBS.

Tired of too much TV football? Watch NBC's All-Star Celebrity Baseball Game on TUESDAY, Nov. 28, at 8 p. m. Former major league umpire Art Passarella is back at his old stand and players include James Garner, Don Adams, Dick Shawn, Peter Falk, Willie Mays, Maury Wills and Don Drysdale. Leg Durocher manages the Celebs.

Tuesday Night at the Movies presents a 1964 release, "McHale's Navy" with Ernest Borgnine on NBC at 9 p. m., and CBS has Who, What, When, Why at 10 o'clock with former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and General of the Army Omar N. Bradley in a discussion of the war in Vietnam.

WEDNESDAY, Nov. 29, brings a Bob Hope Comedy Special to NBC at 9; and a movie, Wives and Lovers, with Janet Leigh and Van Johnson to ABC at the same time.

THURSDAY, Nov. 30, goes gala with a Perry Como Holiday Special on NBC at 7:30 p. m., featuring Bobbie Gentry, Rowan and Martin and the Jefferson Airplane. ABC's Thursday Night Movie at 9 o'clock is "The Money Trap," a 1965 flick with Glenn Ford, Rita Hayworth, Elke Sommer and Joseph Cotton.

Dean Martin "does his thing" on NBC at 10 p. m. with Lena Horne and the Andrews Sisters.

Ending up the week on FRIDAY, Dec. 1, we find Ethel Merman on Tarzan at 7:30 on NBC; "The Horizontal Lieutenant," a movie with Paula Prentiss and Jim Hutton on CBS at 9 o'clock; and Same Mud, Same Blood, Frank McGee's examination of the role the Negro soldier is playing in Vietnam, produced in the field under combat conditions, on NBC at 10 p. m.

About the Cover

The cover photo for TEMPO this week was taken by an unidentified professor in the Department of English at Cornell University. Picture was snapped at Ohayo Mountain-top "sculpture palace" of artist Clarence Schmidt, who has been working on his "House of Mirrors" for three decades or more.

The cover shot shows Schmidt's conception of what he calls his "monument to George Washington." The artist, a bearded, long-haired patriarch of avant-garde disciples, has also completed a monument to President John F. Kennedy as part of his so-called "environmental abode." His six-or-more stories above-and-below-ground house and grounds at Glenford have been featured in many national magazines and art publications. It is visited annually by hundreds of tourists from across the country and around the world, and Schmidt's fan mail continue to flow in the father Lilli Palmer, Viveca Lindfors, Theodore Bikel and Donald Pleasance.

Earlier Sunday, followers of politics will want to see Sen. Robert Kennedy "Face the Nation" in an interview from Washington on CBS at 12:30 . . . and Vice President Hubert Humphrey "Meet the Press" after his trip to the Far East on NBC at 1 p. m.

For the younger generation, there's a fairly new movie, The Monkey's Uncle, with Annette Funicello on Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color at 7:30 on NBC . . . and there's The Beatles with their new look on the Ed Sullivan Show at 8 o'clock on CBS. Jimmy Durante pays a visit to the Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour at 9 p. m. on CBS.

NET programs begin telecasts this week of a candid Conversation with Ingrid Bergman, highlighting her talent as a fascinating conversationalist — watch for it.

CAN YOU HEAR ME? is the program to watch Monday, Nov. 27 on ABC at 9:30 p. m. It's an excellent documentary on Mary Beth Hull, a 2½ year old girl who lives with her par-

About the Cover

The cover photo for TEMPO this week was taken by an unidentified professor in the Department of English at Cornell University. Picture was snapped at Ohayo Mountain-top "sculpture palace" of artist Clarence Schmidt, who has been working on his "House of Mirrors" for three decades or more.

The cover shot shows Schmidt's conception of what he calls his "monument to George Washington." The artist, a bearded, long-haired patriarch of avant-garde disciples, has also completed a monument to President John F. Kennedy as part of his so-called "environmental abode." His six-or-more stories above-and-below-ground house and grounds at Glenford have been featured in many national magazines and art publications. It is visited annually by hundreds of tourists from across the country and around the world, and Schmidt's fan mail continue to flow in ents and two brothers in San Gabriel, Calif. Mary Beth is a typical attractive youngster, active and determined, but different from most children in a very important way: Mary Beth is deaf. Story concentrates on the efforts of her family to give her a normal life, how she is learning to use her voice, and how she is helped by the John Tracy Clinic.

Monday also offers Red Buttons on the Danny Thomas Hour on NBC at 9 p. m. in a drama of the violent world of loan sharks, and guest Don Adams on The Carol Burnett Show at 10 on CBS.

Tired of too much TV football? Watch NBC's All-Star Celebrity Baseball Game on TUESDAY, Nov. 28, at 8 p. m. Former major league umpire Art Passarella is back at his old stand and players include James Garner, Don Adams, Dick Shawn, Peter Falk, Willie Mays, Maury Wills and Don Drysdale. Leo Durocher manages the Celebs.

Tuesday Night at the Movies presents a 1964 release, "McHale's Navy" with Ernest Borgnine on NBC at 9 p. m., and CBS has Who, What, When, Why at 10 o'clock with former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and General of the Army Omar N. Bradley in a discussion of the war in Vietnam.

WEDNESDAY, Nov. 29, brings a Bob Hope Comedy Special to NBC at 9; and a movie, Wives and Lovers, with Janet Leigh and Van Johnson to ABC at the same time.

THURSDAY, Nov. 30, goes gala with a Perry Como Holiday Special on NBC at 7:30 p. m., featuring Bobbie Gentry, Rowan and Martin and the Jefferson Airplane. ABC's Thursday Night Movie at 9 o'clock is "The Money Trap," a 1965 flick with Glenn Ford, Rita Hayworth, Elke Sommer and Joseph Cotton.

Dean Martin "does his thing" on NBC at 10 p. m. with Lena Horne and the Andrews Sisters.

Ending up the week on FRIDAY, Dec. 1, we find Ethel Merman on Tarzan at 7:30 on NBC; "The Horizontal Lieutenant," a movie with Paula Prentiss and Jim Hutton on CBS at 9 o'clock; and Same Mud, Same Blood, Frank McGee's examination of the role the Negro soldier is playing in Vietnam, produced in the field under combat conditions, on NBC at 10 p. m.

Ballet Masterpiece for Holidays

In Their Faces

The Regional Company has often been credited with broadening the interest in the arts and culture through its free programs in schools and colleges of the area . . . and one needs only to look at the faces of its audiences to see total enthrallment as boys and girls learn the history of ballet and see what makes a dancer.

For "Match Girl," the company has drawn upon 16th century Christmas music, colorful costumes and scenery, and the beauty and excitement of artistic expression. Disciplined dancers such as Bonnie Robinson as the Match Girl, Debbie Sedore as a nightingale, Margo Scalzi as an angel, and Larry Yando as a clown will bring their own "cultural explosion" to the Saugerties stage.

This is a unique program to treat yourself or your children to as a Christmas gift, and tickets are now available from any member of the Saugerties Jaycees, at P. C. Smith's Hardware store and Offermann's Music Shop in Saugerties, and at Abrams Music Store in Kingston. The list of patrons for the ballet is growing in length each week — but more patrons are being solicited and patron tickets may also be obtained through any Jaycees member.

WHO WILL BUY MY MATCHES?

Wrapped in rags, bare-headed and barefoot in the snow, the poor little girl desperately held out a packet of matches, hoping to find a buyer among the horde of holiday shoppers hurrying past her. But no one paused to buy the wares of the cold, hungry child and no one noticed her thin clothing and tattered shawl.

To warm her hands against the biting winter winds, she lights a match and holds it close to her icy fingers . . . A vision of a rosilily glowing stove appears and fades. Again she strikes a match . . . and another . . . and another . . . and in the light of the flames she sees a sumptuous holiday dinner, a Christmas tree of unbelievable beauty . . . And then as a lighted star falls from the tree, there is no more cold, hunger or pain for the poor little girl.

Every child knows the ending of this story when dawn breaks on the scene of the little match girl's frozen death. And so does every parent who has ever read this saddest of all fairy tales to a son or daughter and, afterwards, wiped their tears away.

"The Little Match Girl" and an assortment of Christmas dolls, toy soldiers, clowns, angels and other cast members will come pirouetting in from the wings of the Saugerties High School auditorium for a Christmas ballet at 3 p. m. on Dec. 10. Dancers of the Mid-Hudson Regional Ballet Company will bring the fairy tale presentation to Saugerties, repeating an appearance there in 1965 when they performed an "Invitational Ballet" in mid-winter.

The Christmas ballet is being sponsored by the Saugerties Jaycees, the service organization which has been praised for its overwhelming success in bringing cultural affairs of this type to Sawyer's Town.

Since the Mid-Hudson troupe first appeared there two years ago, the Jaycees have also sponsored the Dutchess County Ballet Company in "The Nutcracker."

Through the efforts of the Jaycees and the visiting ballet companies, area youngsters and adults have enjoyed and appreciated the art of ballet and seen such varied fare as El Victorio Luis Alonso, the matador; the cafe society of Gaite Parisienne; studies of a ballet class with dance demonstrations by ballerinas; and, of course, the novelty of The Nutcracker. Cervantes' Book By Paltz Author

"Love, Marriage and Honor in Cervantes' Works," is the subject of a book in Spanish written by Dr. Robert V. Piluso, associate professor of Romance languages at State University College, New Paltz, and published last week by Las Americas Publishing Company, New York City.

The study, prepared for students and scholars of Spanish language literature, examines the complexities of early 17th century Spanish attitudes toward courtship, clandestine and arranged marriages, and ideas of man and wife relationships as shown in the Spanish author's numerous stories.

Vassar Lecture On Ice Age Man

Hartwick College Associate Professor of Anthropology, Dr. Bruce E. Raemsch, lectured this week before the Anthropology Club of Vassar College at Poughkeepsie.

He was on the Vassar campus Monday, Nov. 20. The title of his lecture was "Evidence indicating the presence of man in New York State 35,000 years ago."

The period of time generally accepted by most geologists and archaeologists in dating the first traces of a culture in New York State is between 7,000 and 10,000 B.C. Dr. Raemsch's discoveries indicate a much earlier occupation, one that would place man's presence in the State as far back as the middle of the last ice age.

Dr. Raemsch has been a member of the Hartwick faculty at Oneonta since 1965. His Ph.D. and undergraduate degree were earned at Syracuse University. His M. A. is from the University of Oregon.

Wrapped in rags, bare-headed and barefoot in the snow, the poor little girl desperately held out a packet of matches, hoping to find a buyer among the horde of holiday shoppers hurrying past her. But no one paused to buy the wares of the cold, hungry child and no one noticed her thin clothing and tattered shawl.

To warm her hands against the biting winter winds, she lights a match and holds it close to her icy fingers. . . . A vision of a rosy glowing stove appears and fades. Again she strikes a match. . . . and another. . . . and another. . . . and in the light of the flames she sees a sumptuous holiday dinner, a Christmas tree of unbelievable beauty. . . . And then as a lighted star falls from the tree, there is no more cold, hunger or pain for the poor little girl.

Every child knows the ending of this story when dawn breaks on the scene of the little match girl's frozen death. And so does every parent who has ever read this saddest of all fairy tales to a son or daughter and, afterwards, wiped their tears away.

"The Little Match Girl" and an assortment of Christmas dolls, toy soldiers, clowns, angels and other cast members will come pirouetting in from the wings of the Saugerties High School auditorium for a Christmas ballet at 3 p. m. on Dec. 10. Dancers of the Mid-Hudson Regional Ballet Company will bring the fairy tale presentation to Saugerties, repeating an appearance there in 1965 when they performed an "Invitational Ballet" in mid-winter.

phonso, who took their corps de ballet to Expo 67 this year, will do much to enrich the holiday season with "The Little Match Girl."

In Their Faces

The Regional Company has often been credited with broadening the interest in the arts and culture through its free programs in schools and colleges of the area. . . . and one needs only to look at the faces of its audiences to see total enthrallment as boys and girls learn the history of ballet and see what makes a dancer.

For "Match Girl," the company has drawn upon 16th century Christmas music, colorful costumes and scenery, and the beauty and excitement of artistic expression. Disciplined dancers such as Bonnie Robinson as the Match Girl, Debbie Sedore as a nightingale, Margo Scalzi as an angel, and Larry Yando as a clown will bring their own "cultural explosion" to the Saugerties stage.

This is a unique program to treat yourself or your children to as a Christmas gift, and tickets are now available from any member of the Saugerties Jaycees, at P. C. Smith's Hardware store and Offermann's Music Shop in Saugerties, and at Abrams Music Store in Kingston. The list of patrons for the ballet is growing in length each week — but more patrons are being solicited and patron tickets may also be obtained through any Jaycees member.

The Christmas ballet is being sponsored by the Saugerties Jaycees, the service organization which has been praised for its overwhelming success in bringing cultural affairs of this type to Sawyer's Town.

Local Boy Makes Good in Marching Band

Playing in a modern college marching band can be as strenuous as playing football — take it from Richard Peller, a Kingston student now attending Rutgers University. The youth, whose home address is 50 Janet Street here, plays trombone with the Rutgers University Marching One Hundred and, like his fellow musicians, is a hard drilled performer.

The band is directed by Scott Whitener, 27 year-old musician now in his second year at the New Jersey State University.

Peller has seen Whitener enlarge the band from 48 to 104 members and bring its reputation up to what is regarded as one of the leading college marching bands in the East. It is now considered on a par with the famed Big Ten in both size and quality.

The Kingston trombonist appeared with the band a few weeks ago at West Point, where the Military Academy band director praised the Rutgers band for making exceptional strikes forward.

To attain this status, hard work has been necessary for Whitener, Peller and other band members—popularly known on campus as "The Marching Hundred." As with the football squad, the band's season started before classes.

The Kingston student and the rest of the group follow a rigorous schedule during band camp. A recent weekend found them assembling Friday evening at 6:30 to rehearse until 10:30. This was followed by a skull session on marching band techniques until 1 a. m., with the drums staying on until 3:30 a. m. for their own session.

Reveille sounded at 6:30 a. m. Saturday and the band was on the field at 8:15 for marching drill until a 12 noon lunch break. Back to playing and marching from 1 to 5 in the afternoon and, after dinner, from 7 p. m. to 12 midnight, members viewed films of leading college bands around the country.

Sunday was a comparatively easy day with breakfast at 8 a. m., time out for church and lunch, marching and playing from 12 noon to 4:30 p. m., then back to the Rutgers campus.

During football season, which ends shortly, rehearsals are held three times weekly, starting with calisthenics to limber up the bandmen for the intricate and fast-stepping performances scheduled for Saturday's game.

Peller would admit that Whitener works the group hard but that band members love it.

In addition to entertaining spectators at football games, Whitener has organized some 50 of his bandmen into the Rutgers Wind Ensemble, which debuted at New York's Town Hall last spring to high praise and has been invited for a return engagement there this year, as well as a five-day Canadian tour.

The energy, enthusiasm and spirit of the boys and Whitener have made the Rutgers band famous, Peller and his fellow members feel. And they give much of the credit to the youthful director, who is descended from a long line of band leaders, including his great great grandfather and grandfather. New York's Juilliard School and the University of Michigan gave him his training and he has played first trumpet with the New Orleans Symphony and at Manhattan's Lincoln Center. Now, in short days, he whips his band into shape each September for Rutgers' opening convocation and the traditional opening football game with Princeton.

Choristers in Holiday Concert

Lyric Choristers, a local mixed group, will sing at Middletown State Hospital Wednesday evening, Nov. 29. Their appearance at the Orange County Hospital will mark the seventh year the Choristers have performed for patients there during the holiday season.

Choir director Richard A. Blish is a member of the faculty of Onteora Central Schools; teaches vocal music at Woodstock and Phoenicia Schools. A graduate of Union College, Kentucky, with a degree in music education, he has also taught in Ohio.

Shaw; Climb Every Mountain, from "The Sound of Music;" Sleigh Ride; Ring Those Christmas Bells, and others.

This year's Kingston concert by the Choristers is slated Sunday, Dec. 17, at 4 p. m. at George Washington School.

The Middletown concert is being presented in cooperation with the Ulster County Association for Mental Health, a member agency of the Community Chest.

HELEN LING

Accompanist for the Choristers will be Mrs. Helen Chen Ling, who came to the U. S. from Hong Kong two years ago, is now employed by Kingston Trust Company, and who has taught music for some 16 years.

The Choristers regularly offer two public concerts a year in addition to the program at Middletown—and have also performed at Hudson River State Hospital, Poughkeepsie, and Wallkill Prison.

The coming hospital concert will include several Alfred Burt carols from the Choral Pageant, "This Is Christmas;" Jesu Joy of Man's Desiring, by Bach; Fanfare for Christmas Day, by

Turnau on Tour

Woodstock's opera company, Turnau Opera Players, is touring this fall with three operas.

That perennial favorite, "The Barber of Seville," was performed in schools in Pennsylvania and New Jersey. Two special performances were given in the New York City school system under the auspices of the New York State Council on the Arts.

Lehigh University hosted Turnau Opera for the fourth time in five years last week when a performance of "The Rake's Progress" was presented. In December Turnau will travel to Buffalo for Christmas performances of "Hansel and Gretel" with the Buffalo Symphony Orchestra.

Turnau is one of the most active opera companies in the U. S., performing, on an average, once every three days of the year.

Woodstock's Winter Art Show

Opening today at the Woodstock Artists Association Gallery is the big Winter Exhibition of Drawings and Prints. The gallery, which has been dark since Labor Day, dons holiday decorations to highlight the show which will be on view for three other days in addition to today.

The public is invited to browse again tomorrow and on Dec. 2 and 3.

Artist-residents of the Woodstock area will exhibit a wide variety of drawings and prints in both black-and-white and color. Print collectors should be drawn to the show since prices will be moderate and, with prints gaining in popularity and Christmas gift time looming on the calendar, the general public might solve a few shopping problems posed by Yuletide giving at the exhibit.

Veteran gallery goes to this art colony center on Tinker Street will find a transformation in interior decor for this show. The gallery's front door is now a vibrant blue and the first wall to confront visitors has been redone in red, albeit a nice tone of red. The reception area, too, is now completely reorganized in tailored decor and equipment and officials plan numerous other decor improvements throughout the entire gallery.

The new AAA executive board is hatching plans for a Christmas Exhibition, to be announced soon. Recently elected to the board were Kenneth Downer, chairman; Arnold Blanch, vice chairman and activities head; Daniela Passal, program; Cecile Germain, treasurer; James Cummins, corresponding secretary; Cecile Forman, recording secretary; Sylvia Grad, membership; Sam Prager, exhibitions; Brock Brokenshaw, Burr House representative; John McClellan, house committee; and Alfred Parke, publicity.

"Anthology" of Art at Bard

The final exhibition of the fall semester at Bard College's Proctor Art Center will be an "anthology" of paintings, prints and sculpture, mostly by New York artists, showing cross-currents in the art of the mid-1960's. There will be representative work by all members of the Bard Art Department faculty.

The show will present a variety of contemporary approaches to art as exemplified by several professional artists of high standing. Although no attempt has been made to include all of the styles in vogue, the work will reveal attitudes in painting which range from the clearly figurative to the wholly non-figurative, including semi-abstractions. All the artists have been involved with painting or sculpture for many years and have had impressive exhibition records. All have undergone stylistic changes. The exhibit seeks to discover in a modest way some of the artistic points of view typical of the exhibitors here and now, and at the same time reflect something of the character of American art during these shifting times.

The show will be open to the public on the Dutchess County campus daily from 11 a. m. to 5 p. m. from Nov. 29 through Dec. 20.

More Indian, Iranian Art

"Contemporary Art of India and Iran," an exhibition sponsored by the Ben and Abby Grey Foundation, St. Paul, Minnesota, is now being shown at the Vassar Art Gallery through Dec. 15. Exhibit includes 37 paintings, drawings and sculpture which give Westerners their first view of modern Indian and Iranian art as selected by Mrs. Grey and purchased directly from the artists in their native countries.

Mrs. Grey, who was graduated from Vassar in 1924, has been a leading figure in international art exhibitions and has been acclaimed for her past exhibition of "Turkish Art Today" and the show of modern American art "The Minnesota Art Portfolio" which has circulated throughout Europe and the Middle East under the auspices of the U. S. Information Service. A second exhibition "Communication through Art" consisting of American drawings, watercolors and prints, accompanied by a library of 55 books and slides, also circulated in Europe.

Of Etrog Holders

The Pairpoint Glass Company, of New Bedford, Mass., had established a display of Limoges enamel, rare Tiffany striped agate glass, and Austrian enamel — and we thought of our bull in the china shop once more. A local gallery was showing chess sets of all nations and the books ran the gamut of animal and architectural styles. Local pride took us to the booth of Karl Wede, of Saugerties, for a look at his whaling ship models of the Puritan era, and into the artisans' area to admire the hand weaving of Woodstock craftsmen. In one nook, we lost track of time as we scrutinized some old maps of America, made when New York and New Jersey were Nova York and Nova Jersey.

By now the hour was late and our mind was awl with sugar crushers, knives, furniture, prints, old political campaign buttons (one of which we talked a man out of for 75 cents), telescopes, sextants, wood carvings, Tapisart and brushes for currying horses and humans.

We bought a cup of coffee and leaned against a wall to ruminate. It was clear to us that we would probably enjoy playing chess with rooks fashioned as pagodas, but we would not like to drink our 7-Up out of a vessel of wood in the shape of a monk. We would like an old American map for our den, but we would not care to own a pair of dancing slippers from the Revolutionary War period. We prefer our own vacuum cleaner to those from out of the distant past which seem to pump rather than inhale, but there is something to be said for those goatskin paintings we saw. What a conversation piece they'd make for the assembled relatives at Christmas. And, perhaps, if we served eggnog made out of goat's milk in an etrog holder, they just might spend next Christmas somewhere else, the following year, a change which would certainly make for a happier holiday for us.

Baroque Group At Local School

The Hudson Valley Philharmonic Baroque Ensemble performed at the second assembly in the Cultural Arts Program at Bennett Elementary School, Boiceville, last week. Musicians composing the group were Karl Van Ausdale, cello; Andrew Berdahl, viola; Dr. Mary Jane Corry, harpsicord; Lila Baker, violin; Marianne Monteux, flute; and Martin Sperber, oboe. The ensemble offered selections by Bach, Daquin, Purcell and Rameaux, with each performer describing his instrument, giving some of its history and playing short selections to enable students to familiarize themselves with its sound and to identify it in the ensemble selections. A spirited question and answer period followed between the student audience and the Philharmonic Ensemble.

The stage had been set for the assembly when the pupils had learned something of the history of the Baroque area, with emphasis on its composers and their music, in music classes instructed by Mrs. Paula Blish of the Bennett faculty.

Program was arranged by Mrs. Gordon Andersen, PTA Cultural Arts chairman, in cooperation with Ronald P. Vanni, Bennett School principal. Mrs. Eleanor Proper, Bennett PTA Cultural Arts representative, introduced the Ensemble to the audience.

Art Deadline

All active members of the Woodstock Artists Association are asked to submit work for the coming Christmas Show. Submission time is Wednesday, Dec. 6, between 4 and 9 p. m. at the Tinker Street gallery. Artists are limited to three pieces of work, none to exceed approximately 30 inches, or the retail price already suggested. All must be suitably framed, matted for hanging, with sculpture reasonably secure.

The public will be hearing more about this big show, which opens Saturday, Dec. 9 and runs through Dec. 23.

The show will present a variety of contemporary approaches to art as exemplified by several professional artists of high standing. Although no attempt has been made to include all of the styles in vogue, the work will reveal attitudes in painting which range from the clearly figurative to the wholly non-figurative, including semi-abstractions. All the artists have been involved with painting or sculpture for many years and have had impressive exhibition records. All have undergone stylistic changes. The exhibit seeks to discover in a modest way some of the artistic points of view typical of the exhibitors here and now, and at the same time reflect something of the character of American art during these shifting times.

The show will be open to the public on the Dutchess County campus daily from 11 a. m. to 5 p. m. from Nov. 29 through Dec. 20.

Of Etrog Holders

The Pairpoint Glass Company, of New Bedford, Mass., had established a display of Limoges enamel, rare Tiffany striped agate glass, and Austrian enamel — and we thought of our bull in the china shop once more. A local gallery was showing chess sets of all nations and the books ran the gamut of animal and architectural styles. Local pride took us to the booth of Karl Wede, of Saugerties, for a look at his whaling ship models of the Puritan era, and into the artisans' area to admire the hand weaving of Woodstock craftsmen. In one nook, we lost track of time as we scrutinized some old maps of America, made when New York and New Jersey were Nova York and Nova Jersey.

ture, prints, old political campaign buttons (one of which we talked a man out of for 75 cents), telescopes, sextants, wood carvings, Tapisart and brushes for currying horses and humans.

We bought a cup of coffee and leaned against a wall to ruminate. It was clear to us that we would probably enjoy playing chess with rooks fashioned as pagodas, but we would not like to drink our 7-Up out of a vessel of wood in the shape of a monk. We would like an old American map for our den, but we would not care to own a pair of dancing slippers from the Revolutionary War period. We prefer our own vacuum cleaner to those from out of the distant past which seem to pump rather than inhale, but there is something to be said for those goatskin paintings we saw. What a conversation piece they'd make for the assembled relatives at Christmas. And, perhaps, if we served eggnog made out of goat's milk in an etrog holder, they just might spend next Christmas somewhere else, the following year, a change which would certainly make for a happier holiday for us.

Baroque Group At Local School

The Hudson Valley Philharmonic Baroque Ensemble performed at the second assembly in the Cultural Arts Program at Bennett Elementary School, Boiceville, last week. Musicians composing the group were Karl Van Ausdale, cello; Andrew Berdahl, viola; Dr. Mary Jane Corry, harpsicord; Lila Baker, violin; Marianne Montoux, flute; and Martin Sperber, oboe. The ensemble offered selections by Bach, Daquin, Purcell and Rameaux, with each performer describing his instrument, giving some of its history and playing short selections to enable students to familiarize themselves with its sound and to identify it in the ensemble selections. A spirited question and answer period followed between the student audience and the Philharmonic Ensemble.

The stage had been set for the assembly when the pupils had learned something of the history of the Baroque area, with emphasis on its composers opens Saturday, Dec. 9 and and their music, in music classes instructed by Mrs. Paula Blish of the Bennett faculty.

Program was arranged by Mrs. Gordon Andersen, PTA Cultural Arts chairman, in cooperation with Ronald P. Vanni, Bennett School principal. Mrs. Eleanor Proper, Bennett PTA Cultural Arts representative, introduced the Ensemble to the audience.

Art Deadline

All active members of the Woodstock Artists Association are asked to submit work for the coming Christmas Show. Submission time is Wednesday, Dec. 6, between 4 and 9 p. m. at the Tinker Street gallery. Artists are limited to three pieces of work, none to exceed approximately 30 inches, or the retail price already suggested. All must be suitably framed, prepared for hanging, with sculpture reasonably secure.

The public will be hearing more about this big show, which runs through Dec. 23.

ELECTRIC LIVING GUIDE

AS rights reserved. H. T. Dickinson & Co., Inc., New York.

At a Thousand a Day, It Adds Up Fast

If you asked the man down the street ten years ago about the likelihood of his living in a totally electrically heated house, he might have said, "Yeah, maybe someday. And maybe someday we'll land on the moon." Now the same man may already have had electric heat so long he's taking it for granted.

For seemingly overnight, perfected electric heating started catching on six or so years ago until now a thousand American families every day install electric heating in their present homes. (And more than twice that number of installations are made in new homes.)

"And the best part of it is that electric heating systems put in half a dozen years ago will still be functioning like new, most likely, whenever that earth man finally does get to the moon . . . for electric heating systems just have much longer life spans than any of the old-fashioned types. Few or no moving parts to wear out," says a heating industry executive.

Other plus factors, he says, for electrical heating over other types are:

- even warmth everywhere you want it (no need to heat into another)

- vary temperatures as you wish (with electric heat it's possible to have thermostats in each room and to heat each room according to individual preference)
- no seasonal limitations (electric heating systems need no annual deactivating for professional cleaning; they're ready to go back on the job at the instant a spring or fall day turns unseasonably chilly)
- no bulky equipment (depending on type of electric heating equipment selected—there are several to choose from—the "visibility" ranges from unobtrusive to nil)
- lowering costs (presently competitive in most areas, the cost of electricity as fuel is expected to drop still more in the coming years.

QUESTION BOX

Question: I've heard it said that even when you don't have an air conditioner, a house with electric heating is cooler in summer. Why is this?

Answer: Probably because a house constructed according to the recommendations of the electric heating industry is well built and well insulated.

In the winter, of course, proper insulation lets you get the full benefit of your good electric heating system without waste. In summer, it stands to reason, the sun's rays can't bake right through.

Incidentally, if you should decide to add air conditioning to your electrically heated house, naturally your operating costs for that, too, will be lower since the insulation will prevent waste.

Question: I read something in the paper last year about electric light being used as a source of heat. Why aren't we hearing any more about this?

Answer: It is a prospect with a future . . . but it isn't going to obsolete the present methods of electric home heating.

An authority on "salvaged light utilization" says it is primarily under consideration in commercial and industrial situations where very bright lighting is used for many hours a day.

Question: What fraction of an inch does the "R" measurement for insulation equal? We're in the early stages of reading the plans for our retirement house.

Answer: The whole reason for switching over to "R" was to get away from mere inches and spell out insulation according to the job it must perform. The "R" stands for "installed resistance" and the higher the number, the stronger the insulation. And the more you save on fuel. After all, electricity is 100% usable, you know. And it's the only fuel that is.

Indeed it would! For heat that's clean, healthful, comfortable. For heat that's flameless, fumeless . . . soot and dirt-free. Low installation costs, too. No ducts, pipes, radiators, chimney or fuel storage space required. There is an Electromode electric heater or heating system to fit any remodeling plan. Let us help you choose the one best for you.
